Dr. Noone to head state's mental retardation center

A nationally known expert in the field of mental retardation Dr. John J. Noone, has been appointed by Dr. Neil Solomon, Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene, to the post of Superintendent of the Metropolitan-Washington Mental Retardation Center.

Part of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene's accelerated program to provide better therapy and training for the State's retarded, the Center, in its final stages of construction, is expected to be operational soon after July 1.

It is located near Silver Spring at the Prince Georges-Montgomery county line.

The new facility is being constructed in two stages, the first of which will care for nonambulatory patients.

Some of the patients at the Center will be those transferred from Rosewood State Hospital in Owings Mills, and others will be from the Center's service region which embraces Southern Anne Arundel, Calvert, Charles, Montgomery, Prince Georges and St. Mary's Counties.

The initial construction phase will provide five buildings connected by covered walkways. Included will be an administration building, a 30-bed hospital, a 110-bed nursery infirmary, a 90-bed intensive habilitation unit, and a service structure.

• • •

All of the buildings include the latest in modern concepts for the care of the retarded and will be of one story which will not only be utilitarian, but blend with the suburbia where the Center is located.

Opening of the institution is one of the major actions taken at the request of Governor Mandel to act with dispatch to improve the State program for the retarded.

Among other actions taken have been the establishment of a separate Directorate for Mental Retardation, the appointment of an ad hoc blue ribbon Secretary's Committee on Retardation, and actions to reduce the overcrowding at Rosewood and improvement of housekeeping program at that hospital.

A native of Lynn, Mass., Dr. Noone attended St. Anselm College, Manchester, N.H., where h reived his N.H., where he received his A.B. degree in 1938.

His Master Degree in Social Work was obtained at Catholic University, Washington, D.C., in 1940.

During World War II he served with the U.S. Navy in the Pacific Theatre, remained in the reserves after the conflict, and retired in 1965 with the rank of Lieutenant Commander.

He received his Doctorate in Education from the University of Maryland, College of Education, Institute for Child Study, in 1962.

Follow-up phase now for census

District Manager Mrs. Betty B. Brown reports good progress in this area of the follow-up phase of the 1970 Census of Population and Housing.

Census takers are visiting homes from which no questionnaires were mailed back, as well as those from which questionnaires were returned incompletely filled out.

The District Manager asks householders to welcome these census takers when they call and to give them full cooperation in getting the required census information.

Most of the census takers are women. Each wears a red, white, and blue identification badge which is her official credential. It bears her signature and certifies that she is authorized to perform the duties of a Census Enumerator, and has sworn to keep confidential all census information given her.

MAY 25-27
Diggs-Johnson Elementary and Junior High No. 82 will hold its 2nd Annual Fine Arts Festival, beginning at 1:30 p.m. each day.

'Up Against The Wall,' is piano in ghetto school

Change must come through communication, 25-year-old pianist, Larrin Hollander believes. So the Juilliard-educated artist takes his piano to a ghetto school in Philadelphia's Edison High School to play music for students.

Larrin Hollander believes the conversation is spirited on all sides. Classical music is fresh and bold. Students are challenged to ask the question, "Of what importance are Bach and Beethoven?" The answer is clear: They are important because it that they were not already bad up in this world, they would be.

They were also human beings, men, they felt and thought and made music. And they said something about it. Bach had 23 kids, so that in his music, he was saying something inside him."

When Larrin Hollander plays Bach and Mozart for these teenagers who perhaps have never attended a concert before, they are engrossed with eloquent emotions.

Says one "I can relate to the music (Mozart). It is like bringing me in, making me think of things I did not think of before. Listening, I feel I could pay for it and what I could do now, not for myself, but for ... people who need to 'help them out.'"

Lens of the ghetto, but rather, conveys a lack of hope, a lack of sense of commitment, forever, and personal dynamics are conveyed with race overtones.

Mozart and Beethoven are real to them. Music is a language which they understand. Bach and Beethoven are not dead composers but living men who have something to say to them.

Most of the students are black. Hollander is white. He attended the prestigious Juilliard School of Music. The ghetto school is in a neighborhood where gang violence is a familiar terror.

Yet the program does not rest on the negative problems of the ghetto, but rather, conveys a lack of hope, a lack of sense of commitment, forever, and personal dynamics are conveyed with race overtones.

SHERWOOD HAWKINS, 17 year old choist, is one of four talented Peabody preparatory students featured on WBAL-TV's 'Music of Peabody' contest.

May 17, at 4:30 p.m. Providing piano accompaniment is John Phillips, a full-time Peabody student.

'You And The Law,' premieres on Sunday

The May 17 premiere will spotlight U.S. Senator Robert P. Griffin of Michigan. Griffin, a conservative Republican and a leader of his party who, will face a panel of four students from Michigan colleges.

Dialogue for each of the "You and the Law" programs will cover subjects of interest to teenagers and include discussions on drug use and abuse, urban involvement, consumerism, law enforcement, conservation and personal rights.

"You and the Law," a series of 10 half-hour programs which deal with contemporary challenges facing the American judicial and legislative systems, will be presented in color on WBAL-TV Sunday, May 17, at 4:30 P.M.

Raymond Burr, star of TV's "Perry Mason" and "Ironside" is host and moderator of the series which each week features participants representing a cross section of the student population.

Dear Nancy

Q. Who is paying the money for Jim Brown and Raquel Welch to Mississippi checking on the so-called poverty of black folks down there? — E. L. D., St. Louis

A. Jim Brown and his Black Economic Union, and athletes like LaRoy Kelly, Irv Cross, Curtis McClinton, John Wooten and Gene Washington, are using their money, time, talent and the power they wield to help the poverty-stricken districts in the United States. Some manufacturers are supplying tons of food, and distribution is made both to black and white people.

Q. What's the best cure for a cold? I'm ready to fly to Washington or Baltimore for interventions to Washington? What kind of political play is that? — Theodore Soffin, Chicago.

A. Black entertainers appear regularly at White House programs. But your inkling must be about the Black Republican Workshop slated for June 13-15 in D. C. at the Hilton, with conclave of the national coordinators of the plan which will bring 500 black GOPers to D. C.

Q. I wrote you some time ago asking how I could contact Doris Akers and buy her records. You have not answered. — Sarah M. Edwards, Dover, Del.

A. Gospel singer Doris Akers records on RCA. Check your large record stores in Washington or Baltimore, or write to Gretchen Landon, RCA Corp., Sunset at Vine, Hollywood 90028.
