Shriver tells Baptist Convention of Peace Corps discrimination fight

Sargent Shriver, former ambassador to France and possible candidate for Governor, said there is need for a change in America in a speech at the United Baptist Missionary Convention and Auxiliaries of Maryland this week at Grace Memorial Baptist Church.

About 300 persons at the 44th annual session of the convention heard Mr. Shriver say, while delivering the Martin Luther King Memorial Address, "I had the privilege of knowing Martin Luther King since the middle of the 1950's and I will never forget the impression he made on me, this dedicated son of God and distinguished Baptist minister."

Mr. Shriver revealed that, while serving as Director of the Peace Corps, he had to brook opposition against the employment of four distinguished Baptist ministers on his staff.

"I will never forget when I was told that it would be wrong to have black heads of Peace Corps opraeions in Africa," . . . Mr. Shriver.

• • •

The theory behind this reasoning was the blacks were considered second-class citizens by Africans and that the Africans wouldn't want their operations headed by second-class citizens.

Mr. Shriver stated that five operations in Africa were run by black Americans and that "two went on to become Ambassadors to the U.S."

"We broke the idea; the experts were wrong," said Mr. Shriver. "The theory they were giving out was just to justify their own prejudices.

"If we will live up to our ideals we will have nothing to fear. The problem arises when we fail to live up to our ideals."

Other excerpts from Mr. Shriver's speech on the changing times and programs he participated in government service:

"It was from that program (Head Start) that hunger was exposed in America . . . I spent two glorious years in France but when I came back I was depressed . . . the country seemed to have lost faith in the Supreme Court, family; a lost of hope, could only look forward to death . . . kill may be the worst of the four letter words . . . We read the explanation that somewhere there was a sniper (Jackson, Miss.) but nobody found the sniper's bullets. . . .

"The political system seems to lie above us like a smog . . . we need a new politics; we need a new patriotism."

At the conclusion of his speech Mr Shriver recalled a story in African, when he served in the Peace Corps, wherein a child saw a white man walking up the road.

"'That's a white man,' said the child to his mother.

"'No,' said his mother. 'That's a Peace Corps Volunteer.'

Mr. Shriver declared a yearning that the equal should be neither black nor white but "no, there is a man.

"Let us bring that dream to a reality."

Other prominent political figures seated on the pulpit were Parren Mitchell and Del. Troy Brailey.

One of the highlights of the evening was the Union Baptist Church Sanctuary Choir's stirring rendition of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The United Baptist Missionary Convention will extend through May 22

The Rev. Alfred Vaughn and the congregation of Grace Memorial Baptist Church are hosts.

Baptist convention focuses on youth, church survival

Hundreds of Baptists, well represented by youth and women, are renewing religion in East Baltimore this week-end at the 44th annual United Baptist Missionary Convention of Maryland.

Most of the delegates are from the Baltimore area and the newly elected president, the Rev. Montague Brackett, is pastor of Central Baptist Church at Baltimore and Pulaski Sts.

The Rev. Mr. Brackett, along with other ministers interviewed by the AFRO was sure that the question raised by the theme "Church Survival" can be answered in the affirmative.

"The church will survive," the Rev. Mr. Brackett predicted. "It is a matter of bridging the gap between youth and adults from a spiritual point of view." The youth are "the life-blood of the church . . . and the church must do more itself for the youth through social programs, religious programs and spiritual programs."

• • •

The unanimous selection of the convention, the Rev. Mr. Brackett succeeds, the Rev. Leroy Bowman.

The Rev. Mr. Brackett's wife, Mrs. Helen Brackett is a substitute teacher, his two daughters, are Mrs. Barbara Cox, teacher at School 107 and Mrs. Brenda Henderson, who is living in Italy with her husband.

Wednesday afternoon was devoted to the youth, whose theme was "Youth Renewal in Principles, Loyalty." but it was not until Wednesday night that the message was given the force and power associated with Baptist music and speaking.

Mrs. Myron Powell delivered the message: "this mean old world's trying to fill up our young people's minds with marijuana and heroin telling them to forget about the problems of the world.

"The old world is sick young people . . . we live in a sick, sick world full of hypocrisy and lies and this is a mean old world

"The only answer is to return to God. Let Dr. Jesus operate on your heart."

"What the world needs is love, prayer, faith, honor, respect, and patience," she said.

"What's wrong with the younger generation is that you've got to learn to walk on the Lord. We want everything now . . . but remember He may not come when you want Him, but always on time."

• • •

Mrs. Powell, a speech therapist, also had words for the older generation whom she chided for not living the Christian life they preach.

To conclude she brought the tempo up a little higher: "If you want a kick out of life, try Jesus . . . I'm not somebody because I have a B.S. degree. I'm not somebody because of the honors I have received. I'm not somebody because I'm a speech therapist.

"I'm somebody because I'm a child of God."

When Mrs. Powell sat down, the youth to whom the evening was devoted took the spotlight. Outstanding was the Faithful Gospel Choir of Silva Vista Baptist Church in Fairmount Heights.

The 14-voice group sang a Cappella and survived the fact that the microphone was out of order when their lead singer, Miss Sandra Hampton, stepped back into the aisles and stirred the audience with "I Believe."

Thursday morning greetings were given by Sen. Verda Welcome and Mrs. Elizabeth Oliver of the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers.

The executive committee is scheduled to meet today Friday, at 1 p.m. to complete any business for the Woman's Convention.

At 2 p.m. resolutions will be adopted. Friday evening, the Rev. Robert Hurt will deliver the Missionary Sermon. Today is the last day for the convention.

Conn. civic leader may enter primary

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Backers of John Merchant for a position high on the Democratic ticket in the state election opened Bridgeport headquarters recently even though they haven't received a go-ahead from the potential candidate.

Supporters of Merchant, who is deputy commissioner of the State Department of Community Affairs, haven't agreed yet on whether they want him to shoot for lieutenant governor or whether they would settle for a lesser spot.

But they are agreed that an all out effort should be made to sell state Democratic leaders on the merits of Merchant, who was the first black graduate of the University of Virginia Law School.

• • •

Merchant remained noncommittal this week on running for any office. But he is known to have been sounding out various Democratic figures as to whether they would welcome him on the slate.

Merchant's backers, who include at least two state central committeewomen and several black city leaders, believe he would be a strong addition to a state ticket which needs aggressive campaigners.

Party leaders are reported to have settled for Rep. Emilio Daddario of Hartford for the governor's nomination. Daddario, however, is not well known outside Hartford County and the Middletown area, where he went to college and served as mayor years ago.

• • •

Merchant lives in Bridgeport, seat of Fairfield County, which abuts New York State and is an area where Daddario has never campaigned or pre-campaigned.

The 37-year-old attorney's work with the DCA in the past three years has brought him into contact with city and town officials, redevelopment and anti-poverty leaders, and other key people in most of the state's 169 towns and cities.

Although he enjoys considerable black support, Merchant is being promoted as a candidate who could appeal to large numbers of voters regardless of his color, and as one who could supplement Daddario's "middle of the road" stance with a liberal Democratic appeal.

HONORED — Lt. Col. Charles Rogers, of Clairemont, W. Va., was among 12 Vietnam heroes to receive Medals of Honor. President Richard M. Nixon made presentation in a White House ceremony, last week. The servicemen were cited for bravery "above and beyond the call of duty." All but one suffered wounds, and some were wounded three or four times. (UPI Telephoto).

View of Panthers differs by race

One quarter of the black people interviewed in a recent Louis Harris poll said that they held the same philosophy as the Black Panthers.

Among teen-age blacks, some 43 per cent said they agree with the Panthers, and 54 per cent of all black people feel that the Panthers have given them a "sense of pride."

The poll, conducted for Time magazine by the Harris organization, found however, that fully two-thirds of white people feel that the Panthers are a "serious menace to the country."

• • •

Whites — by 81 per cent to 7 per cent — that the shootings of the Panthers over the past few years have been mainly "the result of violence started by the Black Panthers themselves" rather than a "systematic effort of the part of law enforcement officers to wipe out the Panthers."

The question of the shootings of Panthers by police brought an entirely different response from the black community. 90 per cent of whom said that the shootings have made them feel that the blacks have to stand together."

• • •

The poll revealed that the white majority is extremely hostile to the Panthers. Some 62 per cent of whites — to 23 per cent against — agree with the statement, "The Panthers are an extremist group which wants to destroy America and cannot be tolerated."

A majority of whites also affirmed that the Panthers "want to destroy the police and should be put out of existence."

Young whites under 30 do not go along with the majority of whites, however. About half of young whites believe the Panthers give blacks a sense of pride and about a quarter feel they are doing good work "among young disadvantaged people."

S.C. county loses funds for poverty

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — State GOP Chairman Ray Harris last week said he has been advised that federal funds will stop on May 31 for poverty programs in Clarendon County because they were handled in an "ineffective and inefficient manner."

Harris said the investigation of the Clarendon County anti-poverty agency was ordered by R. Nixon appointee, Roy Bachelor, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity's Southeast Regional Office in Atlanta.

"I'm glad to see the results of President Nixon's promise to end waste and mismanagement of taxpayers' money in federal programs," Harris said.

The cutoff was disclosed May 5 by Alfonso McGhee, regional counsel of the OEO, in a letter to R. R. Durant, chairman of the Clarendon anti-poverty agency.

The letter cited specific instances where poverty programs administered in the county violated OEO policies, and the governing board of the agency was found to have been "ineffective."
