Baltimore and All That JAZZ

By ARCHIE R. MANGRUM

Stan Kenton "blew into town two Sundays ago with his newest 18-piece orchestra, and completely captivated over 600 jazzophiles. He appeared at the Famous Ballroom, courtesy of the Left Bank Jazz Society.

Bank Jazz Society.

Throughout the better part of three decades, Kenton has maintained a constant sound.

Of all of the concerts we have heard at the Famous Ballroom, his was, perhaps, the most exciting. His choice of selections was excellent.

There was something for everyone, no matter what a person's particular "bag" was.

He played some of the "oldies" for those of us that have been Kenton-Lovers over the years.

He had a dynamite arrangement of the Beatle's "Hey Jude" for the Beatle Lovers. He played a swinging minor blues for blues lovers.

* * *

One of the most unique arrangements in the book was arranged by Ron Madden, the baritone saxaphonist.

It was a lush, soulful arrangement of "This Time We Almost Made It," with some interplay between the baritone sax and trumpet; and alto sax and bass tuba.

The result was a very pleasing and interesting arrangement.

Who else, but Stan Kenton could take a single childhood ditty such as Reuben-Reuben and turn it into a swinging, screaming jazz classic?

The only fault I found with this group was its conspicious lack of outstanding soloists, something that we have come to a Kenton-led group. Other than that, it was an outstanding evening of big band jazz that the audience loved, often giving Mr. Kenton and his group standing ovations.

Next week the LBJS will present Horace Silver and his Quintet. Countdown at 5 p.m.

* * *

We stopped off at the Red Door after the Kenton thing. They have Sunday night Jam Sessions and the Greg Hatza Trio officiates. They appear at the Red Door nightly. Greg is on organ, Earl Wilson is on guitar, and Bunnie Cox on drums. It was a nice little session. One of Kenton's trumpet players came and sat in.

* * *

Those Guys, who sponsor local groups Saturday afternoons at Lennie Moore's Club 24, are sponsoring an Outdoor Jazz Show and Picnic at the Glenwood Country Club on Saturday, June 6th.

They have lined up two excellent groups. One will be led by Jimmie Wells, the vibist with the fluid dynamic driving sound.

The other group will be led by Rick Johnson the percussionist extrodanaire.

Rick is one of Baltimore's top drummers. They have set the whole concert up in such a manner as to make it a "Family Affair." There will be free soda for the kiddies, free beer for their daddies (you mothers have choice).

Incidentally, kids under 12 will be admitted free.

* * *

One thing about good jazz musicians, you can tell right away that they are destined for greatness. Horace Silver is such a musician.

This jazz pianist-composer-arranger has always given that impression. I recall the first time I listened to Horace. He was on piano with Stan Getz and did some recording with Stan.

His work was so fresh and original that I was sure that one day he would be a major force in Jazz, he has long since fulfilled that prediction.

Horace Silver is a "funky" jazz pianist.

From this premise springs the essential being of Horace Silver and his music. Whether he is playing (and most of the things that he plays, he writes) blues, latin-flavored compositions or tunes with Far-Eastern motifs, it has that one vital ingredient that sets itself apart from the ordinary: it always has that "funky" feeling.

* * *

Horace brought his quintet into the Famous Ballroom, last Sunday and played to an extremely enthusiastic, overflow crowd. That he was the master of the situation was evident from the start.

The group consisted of Cecil Bridgewater, Trumpet, Buddy Terry, Tenor Sax Ken Smith Bass and Harold White, Dums. It was as a good group as we have ever heard.

Horace has a varied and carefully chosen group of tunes that he can call on for a concert such as this. From the old familiar to the bewildering abstract he weaves, always entertaining and always soulful.

The group had that cohesiveness that one expects from a Silver-led group. Since they were playing his (Silver's) arrangements and compositions they had the unmistakable Sound.

* * *

There are certain songs that Silver has become identified with "Senior Blues," "Song For My Father," "Psychedelic Sally," "Filthy McNasty" to name a few, all of which he played, much to the delight of the partisan crowd.

As a matter of fact he ended the set with "Filthy McNasty" (and anyone who has the audacity to name a tune that, has to be funcky). All in all, it was an evening of excellent jazz.

* * *

After the Silver set, we went to the Civic Center to see what Isaac Hayes was putting down. Having heard only one record by Mr. Hayes (By Time I Get To Phoenix), I must admit to a bit of curiosity on my part.

Arrived at the Civic Center just as Isaac Hayes was going on. The first thing that struck you was his visual impact. His outfit could best be described as easily modified Robin Hood.

After the optical effect wore off the auditory took over, and one must admit that it was very pleasant.

* * *

The basic group backing up Mr. Hayes was piano, Fender Bass, Two Guitarists (one of them got this strange electronic, psychedelic sound that is so popular in Rock groups these days), and drums, Isaac plays the Organ, himself.

In addition to the above named instruments there was a "pit orchestra" composed of strings, woodwinds, and trumpets (and a couple of trombones).

The cats in the pit were directed by one of the most colorful conductors to ever mount a podium.

The total effect was extremely satisfying. Isaac has a very soulful voice, plays the organ and piano surprisingly well. I tried, in vain, to find out who wrote his arrangements, because whoever he is, he is a very talented arranger.

The high point of the night was, as would be anticipated, "By The Time I Get To Phoenix." His 15 minute monologue, even more extensive (and often amusing) than the "hit" 45, that he recorded, almost brought the house down.

U. of Md. has 2 graduations set for today

More than 3700 students received degrees from the University of Maryland at commencement ceremonies today (Friday) in College Park.

The ceremony was held in the William P. Cole, Jr. Students Activities Building at 10 a.m.

Degrees granted included about 3,100 bachelor's degrees; 350 masters' degrees and 240 doctoral degrees.

Dr. Wilson and three others will be receiving honorary degrees from the University. The other recipients are stage and and screen star Julie Andrews; Dr. John Hope Franklin, noted educator and author; and Edwin H. Gott, chairman of the board of directors, United States Steel Corporation.

* * *

This year, the University is holding separate commencement exercises at each of its campuses.

Commencement at University of Maryland-Eastern Shore for about 125 bachelor degree candidates was on campus Sunday, May 31.

The University of Maryland at Baltimore City will conduct ceremonies for nearly 700 degree candidates today (Friday) June 5, at 8 p.m. in the Baltimore Civic Center.

More than 180 master of science and master of social work degrees will be granted as well as 96 degrees in dentistry, 110 in law and 124 in medicine. Al-ur 240 bachelors degrees in physical therapy, nursing and pharmacy will also be awarded.

JUNE 7

The question of whether the nation's major corporations are responsive to the needs of the consumer and the environment, and how assurances may be given that they are, will be examined on the public television network program, "The Advocates" today from 10:00 to 11:00 p.m. EDT, on Channel 67.

FOCUS ON SCHOOLS:

57 schools set summer sessions June 22-July 31

By BENNI SINGLETON

Summer School will be open from June 22 to July 31 for a period of six weeks. There will be one legal holiday during this time, July 3rd, which will not have to be made up, making a total of 29 school days for the six weeks.

To meet the needs of students throughout the city the number of elementary summer schools has been increased from 30 to 48. Three junior high schools have been added making a total of 9. This will make it possible for more students to attend schools in their immediate communities.

This year an additional night school has been opened making a total of three day high schools and three night high schools. The night high school program gives the students an opportunity to work during the day and take a full program after working hours. The night program is from 5:45 to 10 p.m.

* * *

The day high schools are at Dunbar, Spingarn and Western (8:30 a.m. to 12:45 p.m.). Soingarn Day and Night Schools will be open.

The Junior High Schools open will be: Backus, Eliot, Evans, Deal, Garnet-Patterson, McFarland, Kramer, Hine and Johnson.

Classes on the Junior High School level will be for two hours a day only. Either from 8:30 to 10:30 or from 10:45 to 12:45. This means a person may take two subjects on the Junior High level.

On a Senior High level for a two-credit course a person can only take one course a day since it is four hours long. A one credit course is only two hours, therefore, a student may take 2 one credit courses a day. A person may attend a day and night program on a high school level.

A student may register at the school he is now attending.

* * *

A person in a non-public elementary or secondary school or a non-resident, may register at 415 12th St., NW, Room 1004 — not later than June 12.

For the first time, winter school principals will refer 5th and 6th grade pupils who have reading difficulties to the nearest Junior High School with summer programs.

This will give the larger children on elementary level an opportunity to become better acquainted with Junior High School facilities.

If it is not convenient for a parent to send her 5th or 6th grade child to the nearest junior high school, it will be permissible to send the child to the nearest elementary school.

* * *

In addition to the regular program each department has been asked to submit a proposal for enrichment courses to be taught in different schools throughout the city.

Enrichment courses are being offered in special education, art, vocational education science, remedial reading, fine arts, mathematics and English. The Model School Division, Anacostia Project, and Morgan Community School will also offer courses from these enrichment funds.
