And it's the Pill again. Kenneth, the eminent beauty authority, predicts that the next great innovation in the cosmetic field will be a pill with which one's type of hair and shade of skin may be adjusted to desire. You will look the way you like through chemical treatments from the inside, he feels.

It seems that we are edging towards a mighty uninteresting age, minus mlaze as the guess-work that keeps things popping. No longer will we have to wonder what the new baby will be (they're solving that problem by making it possible to conceive a boy or girl as wished) and no excitement over whether junior will have his Daddy's eyes, or little Jane her mother's curls. If nature doesn't cooperate in the manner you want her too, just pop a pill into baby's mother and she'll turn into what you want.

So what else is new? The first full line of electronic wrist watches have been perfected by the Swiss Horological Electronic Center. Reaching to a maximum peak of accuracy, good to one minute per year, the computerized control timepieces were introduced at the 1969 Basle Watch Fair. They will be available this fall.

Fashion Note: If you are a boot lover you are in luck. They will be high on the fashion pole this fall and winter. American designers continue their love affair with knee-high ones in vinyl, patent and calf. For after five, the booted leg will wear satin or velvet leg coverings.

Recipe of the week: Here's a recipe for Corn Pancakes that can make a welcome change from pancake mixes, and can be used for a weekend supper or breakfast or luncheon main dish any day of the week.

Combine a beaten egg, a half cup milk, two tablespoons of salad oil or melted butter, a tablespoon sugar and a pound can of corn.

Add a cup pancake mix, stirring only until flour is moistened. Drop batter by tablespoonsful onto hot greased griddle and spread each cake with back of spoon.

Cook until cakes are puffy, full of bubbles and edges are cooked. Turn and cook on the other side. Serve with your favorite topping —a sweet syrup and butter — bacon, sausage or ham — hot creamed chicken or meatballs in gravy.

Makes about 15 Corn Pancakes.

Litter drive in the home

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chances are your home has more than a bushel basketful of litter around it. Right now.

Couldn't be? Perhaps not. If you've just swept, raked and shoveled everything. Otherwise, you may be amazed at the quantity of trashy debris tucked here and there.

Keep America Beautiful, Inc., the national litter prevention organization, suggests that homeowners take a "litter inventory" at least twice a year, followed, of course, by anti-litter action.

A spruced-up home, says KAB, not only gives personal pleasure and satisfaction, but actually increases property value.

It also encourages less diligent neighbors to keep their own land as litter free as yours; thus enhancing the entire neighborhood's appearance.

A&T plans food course

GREENSBORO, N.C. — A course in Problems of Institution Management will be offered at A and T State University June 15-July 3.

The course will be offered by the University's Department of Home Economics and will be available for both college- and non-college credit.

According to Dr. Cecile Edwards, chairman of the department, the course will include training and related food sanitation, food management and personnel selection. The class will meet Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

TSU professors publish book

NASHVILLE —The Negro Speaks, the Rhetoric of Contemporary Black Leaders," edited by Dr. Jamye C. Williams and Dr. McDonald Williams, both of the Tennessee State University faculty, is currently available at bookstores across the country.

Published by Noble and Noble, Inc., New York City (April, 1970), the edition (paperback) contains speeches "to articulate problems, to arouse the national conscience, to affirm rights and responsibilities, to assess the past and chart the future, to inspire, and to emulate black awareness."

Among those whose speeches are included are Martin Luther King Jr.,

Colorful Mondawmin exhibit work of special ed classes

Bright and colorful, with an amazing variety of materials represented, the "Correlated Handwork" exhibit at Mondawmin Shopping Center was the work of school children in the Elementary Special Curriculum classes of twenty-one city schools.

The exhibit, which closed Wednesday, was exciting and beautiful, but there was more to it than that. The projects reflected teaching and learning at their best, as outgrowths and extensions of social studies, science, health, and safety units that have been studied by the children in these classes this year.

For example, there were recurrent themes at the exhibit such as "Our City, Baltimore"; "Man and Space"; "Alaska"; "Clothing; "Easter;" "Hawaii."

* * *

Children learn in different ways and at different rates. The slower learning child in the ESC class receives a full academic program each day. Particular attention is paid to reading, mathematics, speaking, spelling and writing.

Correlating a handwork or activity period with social studies or science is one of the ways learning is made real as well as fun. If you can't take a trip to Hawaii, the next best thing is to see films and pictures about Hawaii, or read stories about Hawaii, taste Hawaiian food, dance a hula, or even better, to build a "little grass shack." (Yes, there was one on display!)

The exhibit is evidence of the value of teamwork: teamwork in the classroom between the students and teachers; teamwork among the children as they created murals, friezes, teamwork among the teachers of each school and their senior teachers; and teamwork of the senior teachers and classroom teachers who worked together to set up the exhibit.

All worked under the direction of Mrs. Lois T. Murray, Supervisor. Dr. Harrie M. Selznick is the Area Superintendent in charge of Special Education.

The senior teachers and their schools were the following: co-chairmen, Marie Fortune, schools No. 10 and No. 30; and Hattie Richardson, schools No. 139 and 101; Waltina Coles, Schools 53, 112 and 149; Ann Dunaway, schools 204 and 223; Shirley Howard, schools 61 and 107; Verna Kushel, schools 88 and 4; Nicey Lipsey, schools 11 and 44; Doris Taylor, schools 50 and 85; Almarie Wedley, schools 16 and 20.

CURED of cancer on the increase

"We estimate there to be 6,660 persons in Baltimore City leading normal active lives who are cured of cancer — that's what the 1970 educational and fund-raising Crusade of the American Cancer Society is all about."

Benjamin O. Tayloe, chairman of the City Unit's educational and fund-raising drive which began in April, explained, "By cured we mean they are without evidence of the disease at least five years after diagnosis and treatment."

He reported that there are 1.5 million Americans alive today who have been cured of cancer.

An additional 700,000 cancer patients, diagnosed and treated within the last five years, will live to enter the ranks of cured.

This means in about three years the "Army of the Cured" will total 2,000,000.

"This is the hopeful message we bring this year. But cancer cures just don't happen by magic. Successful treatment of cancer often depends on early diagnosis. We are out to teach everyone in Baltimore how to help protect themselves by early detection measures — and the importance of the annual health checkup," he said.

As part of this year's Crusade, an army of 8,000 American Cancer Society volunteers will distribute 170,000 leaflets listing cancer safeguards.

"We'll use about 45-million leaflets this month across the U.S. We'll be happy to have one in each home and business!" Mr. Tayoe said.

Free outdoor concerts now underway

The Baltimore Symphony, in cooperation with private business and city government, will again this year perform a concert series in parks through Baltimore, according to announcement Wednesday by Mayor Thomas J. D'Alesandro 3rd.

The initial concert today is at 8 p.m. in the Federal Plaza south of the unit block W. Baltimore St., with the orchestra under direction of Rainer Miedel.

The concert series, like last year, will be subsidized through contributions from local business establishments.

"Again this year I am happy to announce that the Baltimore Symphony will be playing a three-week engagement in parks in every section of Baltimore," Mayor D'Alesandro said.

"These concerts demonstrate that the Symphony belongs to all of the people of Baltimore, and is eager to play for individuals who have never attended a regular concert at the Lyric.

"I want to thank those businesses and organizations who have agreed to support this fine community function, for without their continued cooperation this series could not be presented."

Following the concert today, others are scheduled this Saturday and Sunday. The one Saturday will be at 8 p.m. at Burdick Park, and on Sunday at 4:30 p.m. in Patterson Park.

Participating businesses include the National Brewing Co., Equitable Trust, Committee for Downtown, Greater Baltimore Committee, the Telephone Co. and the Gas and Electric Co.

SCSC grad gets Illinois U. grant

ORANGEBURG, S.C. — James P. Davis, first honor student in the South Carolina State College Class of 1970, has accepted a graduate fellowship in French from the University of Illinois at Urbana.

A native of Charleston, S.C., he is the husband of the former Audrey M. Green. They are the parents of four children.

Davis majored in French and his minor was Spanish. He is an Air Force veteran.

Fashion, jazz offered at 2nd MUND Festival

A large parade, a drum and bugle corp competition, outdoor art show, a fashion show, a jazz concert and a Festival Ball are among highlights of the second annual MUND Summer Festival planned for mid-city residents of MUND during the month of June, it was announced last week.

"The Festival will climax our third year of community organization and our effort to eliminate poverty and apathy among residents of Baltimore's Model Urban Neighborhood Demonstration," said Floyd Rogers, chairman of the Neighborhood Development Corporation, MUND's governing body.

The MUND program is funded by the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity as a pilot demonstration for the nation's Model Cities Program.

MUND residents and staffers are presently formalizing plans and preparations for the second annual MUND Summer Festival for 1970. The theme of this year's festival is "Your Thing, My Thing, Our Thing."

The event-filled festival will begin with a gala parade on Saturday, June 13 at 10:30 a.m. It is planned to be the largest parade held this year in Baltimore, consisting of colorful floats, car caravans, thirteen marching bands including the First United States Army band, the VIP's, the VFW Lancers, the Falcons, Dundalk Drum and Bugle Corps, the United States Post Office Band and many others.

Ten or more color guards will create a brilliant spectacle as they parade through the streets of the MUND Community which is bounded by North Avenue, Harford Road, 25th Street and Jones Falls Expressway.

At least 25 organizations and schools from the area will participate as marching units. The Boy Scouts of America and the Police Cadets will also receive recognition.

The morning parade will be followed by a 1 p.m. drill contest, to be held at Kirk Field. The participating color guard units, the units, the VIP's, the Defenders, the Royal Lancers, Westshire, Dundalk and Chesapeake will compete for the cash prizes.

Later that afternoon, Drum and bugle Corps competition will commence with the beat of drums and the sound of horns. Kirk Field will continue to be the scene of colorful drill formations, and music, with hundreds of onlooking spectators. Six drum and bugle corps will perform in competition. Professional drum and bugle corps judges will decide the winners of the prizes, which will be presented by the Neighborhood Development Corporation.

An outdoor Art Show on Saturday, June 20 is another Festival feature, scheduled for the Calvert Educational Center parking lot. The art exhibit will also be continued with a bake contest, followed by a jazz concert that evening.

Another festival highlight planned for Sunday, June 21, is a fashion show, complete with entertainment. New fashions for all ages will be modeled by MUND residents ranging in age from toddlers to the elderly. Songs will be provided by the Singing Cadets, and the dance will be performed by a local group under the direction of Carolyn Covington.

MUND's Second Annual Festival Ball will be held Friday, June 26, at the Famous Ballroom, 1717 North Charles Street. The adult Ball will feature music and entertainment by the Jamaica Steel Band.

Also during MUND Festival month, a Junior King and Queen and a Senior King and Queen will be selected. Applications have been circulated throughout the community for possible candidates.

Other activities for the Summer Festival, still in planning stages, include a MUND family picnic at Gwynn Oak Park and a teenagers' dance.

The theme, "Your Thing, My Thing, Our Thing" is an effort to bring all events which strives to bring a community closer through residents enjoying themselves together at the MUND Summer Festival, Mr. Rogers added.
