Judge Rifman told the AFRO he felt there was wrong on both sides and that he was inclined to give probation before and clear the matter up. 'My job is to promote unity and have each side use good judgment.'

Witnesses who filed the complaint with police investigating officers included Jon Feather, local actor and director and his wife. Mr. Feather said he was driving behind the police car and saw it circle and order the Booth car to the side.

Mr. Feather expressed concern that he and other gentlemen bystanders who offered to put Mrs. Booth's car in a safe place were denied this right even though Mrs. Booth desired it.

Her car was subsequently taken to a police impounding lot.
