By the way...

by Joe Black

Violence is rampant at many schools today! During the past year, there were fights and brawls following many of the football games. The basketball season saw more of the same. Stabbings and fighting are becoming so prevalent, there is now talk of curtailing interscholastic athletic competition entirely.

I would like to remind parents, athletes and students alike, that varsity athletic programs are NOT an obligatory part of a school's educational program. The inter-school sports program is a privilege granted by state and local Boards of Education. And you don't have to be a mental giant to recognize that black youth has benefited greatly from these athletic programs. Athletics has been one of the few areas where black men have been able to break the barrier and gain the admiration and respect of a sports minded America. It's been a door-opener to scholarships and education...an uncommon opportunity to earn big money and win national acclaim. And very often a stepping stone to jobs with futures unrelated to sports.

Today, when millions of blacks are marching and protesting to gain a greater share of wealth and respect for the black community, it's a damned shame that we allow a handful of unthinking radicals to smash this fine avenue of opportunity.

To those relatively few trouble-makers I say: search your souls. Ask yourselves whether your actions depict a people who are black and proud...or just plain, flat-out ignorant?

Community College trustees approve 4 new programs

By
DR. SIDNEY KOBRE
of Baltimore
Community College

The Community College of Baltimore's Board of Trustees has approved four new educational programs which will involve more than $1.8 million and which will train hundreds of persons in Baltimore, many from the disadvantaged-level.

Here, in a nutshell, is a summary of these significant projects:

1. This first project will provide training for medical corpsmen veterans of the U.S. armed services.

2. The second program will train environmental aides, sanitary aides, and environmental planning and development aides to work in the fields of air and water pollution.

3. The third concerned the college's co-operative program with Model Cities Agencies, whereby the college would provide instruction for residents to train them to participate more fully in community life.

4. The final program approved was the Career Opportunities Program to train teacher aides in co-operation with the Baltimore City Public Schools.

The trustees met in the board room at the college on Wednesday, with President John H. Moxley III, president. The board approved some of these projects "in principle," awaiting further study, but others were approved on the final reading and motion.

To meet the needs for male nurses in the entire Middle Atlantic states area, the CCB and the Johns Hopkins Hospital are planning to embark on the above unique nursing education program, providing the training for medical corpsmen who have been released from duty.

This will be funded by the federal department of the Health, Education and Welfare. The grant will amount to $500,000 over a five-year period.

The trustees also approved, in principle, the proposal to train the environmental aides. This is a part of the effort of the federal government to meet the ecological needs of the nation today.

The request for the federal grant is for $699,000, according to a report submitted by Malcolm Davies, head of the college's Earth Science Department, and Manuel Q. Goldstein, director of Institutional Research.

CCB's Community Services Division, of which Dean Andrew Bohle is head would be in charge of the project. Mr. Grover McCrea, assistant on the Community Services staff, explained the importance and operation of the project to the Board.

The co-operative project sponsored by CCB and the Model Cities Agencies will train community residents, particularly in the inner-city, to participate more fully in community affairs.

This project was described in the AFRO when the project was approved tentatively. At the Wednesday meeting, the board gave its final approval to the program. This will involve more than $600,000.

Another project, the Career Opportunities Program, to train teacher aides in co-operation with the Baltimore City schools, will amount to $70,000, and will be directed by the Community Services Division of the College.

Skylark Custom

If it takes value to make you believe in a car, believe in the new Buick Skylark.
Every Buick is crafted with integrity. And filled with value.
You get things like a cooling system that should never overheat, even with air conditioning.
You get an automobile so well built that its drive train and chassis are literally tuned to the bias-belted tires that are standard equipment. So that they'll last even longer and provide even greater traction.
One other point. Value also has to do with the man who sells and services the car you buy. Good service can help you maintain the value of your new car.
Check the good deals your Buick dealer is offering right now on the Buick of your choice. If you're looking for something to believe in, you'll find it there.
After all, wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?

Miss Boston and Dr. Contee married with Lula Mackay

By EDITH HOUSE
(Substituting for vacationing Mrs. Mackay)

In a lovely and elegant wedding Memorial Day at the St. James Episcopal Church, Miss Carman Boston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Boston, Sr., was married to Dr. Clarence Contee, son of Howard Contee and the late Mrs. Contee, all of Baltimore.

The newlyweds are both faculty members at Morgan State College. The new Mrs. Contee is a modern language instructor and he is a history professor.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony were Father Crayton Dudley of St. James and the Rev. Arthur J. Payne of Enon Baptist Church.

When she walked down the aisle on the arm of her father, the bride was a picture in a gown of silk organza re-embroidered with alenson lace and simulated pearls. The gown featured a scooped neckline with long sleeves and an empire waist.

She carried a cascade of white carnations with stephonotis and orchids and satin streamers.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Portia Boston, who wore a candy pink gown with matching accessories. She carried white and pink carnations and pom-poms.

The four bridesmaids, all of Baltimore, wore light shades of pink and carried nosegays of white and pale pink carnations and pom-poms.

They were: Miss Marilyn Polk, Miss Lois Mickens, Mrs. Beverly Boston, sister of the bride; and Mr. Ruth Colbert, cousin of the bride.

As the dainty little niece of the bride, Carman Boston, walked down the aisle in her white dress trimmed in pink ribbon, she dropped pink and white roses and rose petals along the path.

Ushers were the bride's two brothers, Frank Boston, 3rd, Gary D. Boston, brother of the bridegroom, Howard Contee, and George Sinkler.

Ringbearer was Frank Boston, 3rd, nephew of the bride.

Guests are still talking about the unique music arrangement for the wedding. Organist Maurice Murphy was accompanied by a trumpet player, Phillip Pfiffer, who played "Trumpet's Tune" by Purcell.

Miss Margaret Lindsey was soloist.

The church was decorated in white and pink carnations with white and pink gladiolls and snapdragons.

Mrs. Catherine Frisby, who directed the wedding was radiant in cornflower yellow with matching accessories.

Other members of the wedding party were dressed in pretty pastel colors with matching accessories.

Mr. Ruth Boston, mother of the bride, wore a blue lace ensemble and veil. Bride's grandmother, Mrs. Georgia Boston, wore mint green and the sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Margaret Ogle, was in aqua.

The pink and white color scheme was carried out at the reception in St. James Guild Hall. Mrs. Ruth Russell, in a pale pink outfit, introduced the over 300 guests, who came from Alberquerque, New Mexico, Buffalo and Washington, as well as Baltimore. They danced to the music of Meredith Birch, who came out of retirement to play.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Contee are graduates of Douglass High School and Morgan State College. Mrs. Contee holds a master's degree from Harvard University.

Mr. Contee received his master's degree from Howard University and earned
