MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM (BIRDIE) ADDISON

Tears mark Mrs. Birdie Addison's retirement after 26 years at DPW

By ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

Mrs. Birdie Addison retired officially last week after 26 years in maintenance at the Greenmount Ave. Department of Social Services.

She started in custodial services May 15, 1944 when the city agency was known simply as the Welfare Department and was located at 327 St. Paul St.

Beloved by hundreds of persons who have passed through the halls of what came to be known later as the Department of Public Welfare, Mrs. Addison was a bit reluctant to leave.

• • •

At a testimonial luncheon given in her honor Tuesday at Haussners Restaurant on Eastern Ave., the pretty, soft spoken lady shed a few tears and then explained why.

She stated "I came to love the people and they seemed to have loved me. I will miss them.

"The days were not all pleasant because the human suffering you see at DPW saddens and troubles you, naturally.

"And, believe me, I have seen them all, the very poor, the sick, the needy, alcoholics, dope addicts and human beings with all kinds of problems. Every day there was something different.

"And, a piece of your heart goes out to everyone of them. But, along the way I feel I was able to help somebody.

"I think they had some feeling for me. That's the reason I shall miss them. That's the reason for my tears."

• • •

As a token of esteem and "to start you on your way to happy retirement days," the persons present at the Tuesday affair gave Mrs. Addison a check.

Andrew Robinson and Samuel Batten, under whose supervision Mrs. Addison worked, made the presentation.

Present was the honoree's husband, William Addison, who retired from 34 years on the staff at the Municipal Building in January, 1968.

The Addisons have been married 31 years. Mr. Addison helped organize the Colored Municipal Employees Association.

• • •

She is past matron of the Eastern Star, Prince Hall Affiliation, and business manager and treasurer of the Gardenia Club. Both Mr. and Mrs. Addison belong to Sharp Street United Methodist Church.

Mr. Addison insists that his wife is coming home during retirement to watch over him. However, they have decided to travel together and "generally enjoy life" side by side. They have no children.

Among those present at the Tuesday luncheon were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Batten; Mesdames Mary Apple, Sanella Kief, Elva Thomas, Anne Sparkman, Julia Spahn, Lottie Trice; Messers Andrew Robinson, Clarence Bishop, Frank Abrams, Frank Jefress, Marvin Seward and Irvin Field.

Arena Players cite Actor Brock Peters

The Arena Players' annual award for commendable contribution to the performing arts went to Brock Peters, actor, here, Sunday.

The citation was made at the fifth annual presentation field in Eastwind at which time citations also went to Mrs. June Thorne Garrett, TV hostess, and Mrs. Mary West Miller, actress. Both Mrs. Garrett and Mrs. Miller are also members of the Baltimore School system.

• • •

Mr. Peters, born in New York City was graduated from Music and Arts High School, New York's famed scholarship school for gifted children. There he studied violin and voice. He also attended New York City College, where he studied physical education and psychology. He manifested superb athletic progress but a weakness for acting caused him to abandon the sports arena for a tour of the United States with "Porgy and Bess."

There followed numerous roles, on and off Broadway, in road and stock companies, night clubs and television.

After completing his formal education at the University of Chicago, he moved on into such roles as bass soloist for the DePaur Infantry Chorus, and then into roles in such films as "The L-Shaped Room," "To Kill A Mockinbird," "Criss Cross" and "The McMasters," released this year.

• • •

Judge Robert Watt was master of ceremonies at the presentation, a dinner meeting.

Other program participants included Samuel H. Wilson, Jr., founder and managing director of Arena Players; Mrs. Verna Day, who gave the grace; Mrs. Mary Carlee Smith, who introduced Mr. Peters; Warren Dorsey, who introduced Mrs. Miller and Miss Jaon Gaither who introduced Mrs. Garrett.

An African Jazz Ensemble from Washington provided the musical interludes. Members of the ensemble are Rashid Criss, pianist; Pasha Criss, vocalist; Adnam Barakat, percussionist; and Salib Daoud, bassist.
