Babies Die Because They Don't Learn How To Breathe Through Their Mouths

BY DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK —Of all the land mammals human beings are among the very few who are not reluctant to breathe through their mouths. Dr. Edward B. Shaw, a medical scientist, made this observation to bolster his theoretical explanation of SUD in infants.

In medical shorthand SUD means sudden unexplained death. It occurs in between 15,000 and 25,000 American infants less than six months old every year and, Shaw added unnecessarily, "is the cause of incalculable parental agony."

Many mammals other than man are "almost incapable of breathing through their mouths, Shaw said —indeed', a rat can be killed by blocking its nose. That being so, it is reasonable to believe mouth-breathing is an acquired trait of people.

Before the age of six months about 30 per cent of infants are still incapable of mouth-breathing, Shaw argued. All is well unless they catch a cold which blocks the nasal passages.

If it happens at night when they are sleep and untatended, there may be another SUD.

Shaw offered this explanation several years ago. Because its "very simplicity may have prevented it from being seriously accepted," he has offered it again with bolstering evidence in a technical journal of the American Medical Association.

Almost all other theoretical explanations have been disproved and "it is unlikely that murder by a parent — an exquisitely cruel suggestion — would fail to leave sufficient evidence to be detected by a pathologist," he said.

Yet postmortem examinations usually fail to explain SUD in infants although many reveal mild respiratory infections which could have blocked nasal passages. Shaw also cited medical experiences with infants who were born with blocked noses.

Some spontaneously breathe through their mouths. The newborn who doesn't "will make desperate efforts to breathe through his nose and will close his mouth tighter in the attempt, cut off the only other source of air, and will probably suffocate" — unless emergency measures are taken, Shaw said.

He specializes in pediatric research at the University of California in San Francisco. He advocates testing infants for mouth-breathing capability. If it is lacking, it can be taught.

"There is rarely a SUD in infants older than six months. That's because mouth-breathing capability has developed naturally.

For that family vacation, try packing with a purpose

When packing for the family vacation, there's no need to consider calling in the local trucking company.

You can get the whole thing together on your own initiative, plus some advance planning.

Unlike assembly lines, you'll have no need for duplication. Don't bring nine different products, when one will work for everyone.

From infant through teenager, and on to parents, baby soap can solve everyone's problems. Mild and sage enough for the baby it was made for, the soap with hexachlorophene will keep teen skin smooth and soft by combatting germs and dirt that give blemishes room to grow.

Women, who had abandoned soaps, and men, who had used whatever was handy, will find babying themselves the natural way to keep clean.

Now that you've cut down some of the extras, try and convince everyone that changing their clothes 25 times per day isn't going to be as much fun as it seems.

If teenagers prove most reluctant, remind them of the originality they can foster by limiting themselves to 10 basic items that can be mixed, matched and accessorized with jewelry, scarves or beads that they can make or buy along the way.

Children's toys and games need not take up 65 per cent of the cargo space either. Simple ideas for compact entertainment can be listed before the trip so a few necessary items may be taken.

Word games, license plate reading games, a empty containers can keep children occupied for hours.

The only rational rule is that any toy with five or more moving parts stays home.

When you get to the packing, arrange the clothes smoothly in the suitcase, wrapping them in sheets of plastic (dry cleaning bags are useful) to help prevent wrinkling and keep clothes clean.

The bags can be used during the trip to bundle to-

Wine rack . . . a gift that bride and groom can enjoy

small supply of books and several interesting-looking

Let others do the same old thing when it comes to the prenuptial party.

Get lost, Lazy Susan.

Copper toasters are fine but need polishin'.

Electric carving knives? Okay, but be careful.

So what's left, besides tired linens, way out towels and Pop art?

Answer . . . A sophisticated shower of selected wines. Now you're talking!

This is a gift that both the bride and the groom will appreciate. An enjoyable wine, accompanying even those first attempts at home cooking, will hide a burnt roast to a fare thee well.

As hostess at the shower, you can supply the wine rack. Portable racks are available in all price ranges and sizes to fit even the vest pocket size area of the coziest apartment. Some racks are cleverly designed so that they can be added to as the collection expands.

To start the rack you gift should also include a selection of California wine unique in taste and just the right thing and the right time. You might even want to throw in an extra bottle or two for the wedding celebration itself. Hang the cost — it's worth the cost!

Ask your guests to supply other wines as well, so that the average rack of 12 bottles is well filled and the bride to be and her groom are ready to start their adventures in the wonderful world of wines.
