Task Force report 'old hat,' sanitation now black concern

The highly critical report issued by the mayor's task force on nutrition which revealed that grocers in the inner-city sell inferior foods at quality prices has failed to stir a comment from the Grocers' Association of Baltimore but several elected officials were outspoken on the topic.

Fourth District Councilman Robert Marshall declared that "this is a well known situation which has been going on for sometime without anything being done about it.

"I saw it coming when the major food chains moved out to the suburbs and turned the inner-city over to their subsidiaries.

"The only means left to us is to set up a Commission," Mr. Marshall suggested, "which would police these places and force them to comply with existing ordinances which govern this type of thing."

• • •

State Senator Verda F. Welcome (D. 4th) declared, "when I used to do my own shopping I found that the same condition existed.

"Stores in the inner-city sold goods for far more than the same items sold for in the county."

Senator Welcome admitted that even though the obvious exploitation of poor blacks by grocers in selling inferior and thereforp unhealthy food is well known among elected officials, "the Health Department has been a little lax in enforcing the health laws but there have been so many things to be done that it seems that everything hasn't been done".

• • •

Dr. Emerson R. Julian chairman of the City Council's Health Committee has long been concerned with the way food stores are operated in the inner city but he says "the issue of cost is dead because we've been confronting these people with it.

"What I'm more concerned with at this time is the terrible sanitary conditions these inner-city stores are in".

Dr. Julian pointed out that as recently as two weeks ago he inspected a northwest Baltimore center along with Health Department officials.

As a result of his findings at one store, the Councilman said "the people up there have done everything they could to comply with us. They have had the place repainted and a complete scrub down has been done to the entire store."

• • •

The conditions which the Councilman's inspection team found have been eliminated and Dr. Julian points out that he has been assured that the highest standards will be maintained.

He indicated that he was not through, "we have to clean up this whole business of unsanitary conditions in these stores".

This should be one of the prime concerns of a Consumer Protection Commission if one is established, Dr. Julian added.

'Patriots' attack youth, 14

A 14-year-old Cherry Hill youth told Central District police he was the victim of an "unprovoked" attack on Monday in the 700 block of Cathedral St.

He reported he was walking along the street at the time of a patriotic parade by construction workers when he was set upon by one of the paraders.

He reported two passersby took him to Maryland General Hospital where he was treated for cuts of the eye and abdominal pain.

The youth, who attends Benjamin Franklin Junior High, was unable to furnish a description of his attackers. No arrests have been made.

MRS. SUSIE GROSS
Going on 102 and about her knitting

Jolly, lovely at 102 years young

By PAUL EVANS

"I can't do it," — that's one phase I never use. Try. You can do it," says 102-year-old Mrs. Susie Gross of 1824 West North Ave.

With eyes as sharp as any child's, with face as wrinkle-free as a youngster, Mrs. Gross has not let age interfere with her business of crocheting spreads, both for profit and for self-satisfaction.

"I'm usually up about 5:30 in the morning, as soon as it is light, starting my crocheting. I must keep busy and keep my faith," says the alert and humorous centenarian.

"I remember after the Civil War," she told the AFRO, "when Union troops would ride down the road and steal horses and pigs."

With facts as good as any historian, the afternoon spent with Mrs. Gross was like a history lesson from someone who was really there.

Mrs. Gross states that "colored people have made progress in one way, and in another way they haven't."

She observed, "They don't stay home and care for the children and teach them right and wrong as they should."

She added, "There was a

The AFRO goes to closing exercises at School No. 32

Guilford Ave. Elementary School No. 32, located at 1634 Guilford Ave., is a model school where youngsters have innovative programs.

Team teaching — where children move to different classes with different teachers, just as they do in junior high school, has brought some interesting results.

A visitor can sense there is a relaxed atmosphere with teachers and youngsters busy as can be, the minute he enters the doors of the old building.

There is no drabness inside, plenty of bright color and more important bright-eyed, eager children, and concerned, dedicated teachers.

• • •

This reporter's visit coincided with the sixth graders' closing week activities, entitled, "Dream Week."

Prior to the week's programs, they researched about people's careers and personal ties, people they would like to emulate. They invited local leaders to come and meet with them and talk about their work.

When they were presented as a group to the student body, faculty and parents last Monday, the sixth graders demonstrated their ability to speak well and to sing with feeling.

Under the direction of the music teacher, John Nelson, they gave a creditable rendition of 'Climb Every Mountain, and the school song, 'Adieu To Thirty-Two,' to the tune of 'Yellow Days.'

The lyrics were written last year by Mrs. Beatrice Wright, senior teacher.

'Days are fleeting and real soon the junior high we shall be meeting . .'

• • •

In addition to Mrs. Wright and Mr. Nelson, other teachers who planned the week's program with the sixth graders were: Mrs. Ruth Lee, chairman; Mrs. Ruby S. Rinehardt, and senior teachers, Mrs. Janet Addison and Mrs. Sadie Jenkins;

Also, Mrs Josephine Grant, Mrs. Bernadette Trottner and Mrs. Lavalette Camoher.

Mrs. Mary G. Lewis is principal. Assistant is Mrs. Bette Topp.

During the Monday program, Sandra Robinson said the welcome to the speaker, AFRO Vice President, Mrs. Elizabeth Murphy Moss.

Weldon Lester presented a plant; the class gift to the school. After the program, the children went outside and watched as it was planted in a permanent spot.

The 48 sixth graders who have selected Clifton Park, Hempstead Hill, Booker Washington and Herring Run for their junior High work in the fall are.

Quarter-Way House, new alcoholic aid, scheduled by CAA

Details of the Community Action Agency's new Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program were explained to members of the Community Action Commission at its June meeting at CAA headquarters.

The Commission gave unanimous approval to the proposed program.

Funding will be provided through a grant of $125,000 from the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The project is both preventive and remedial in nature, designed to aid the incipient alcoholic and to cure and rehabilitate the chronic. It provides counseling for the former group, with back-up in-patient medical treatment for the latter.

• • •

The primary targets of this program are those alcoholics, who, having no house or family to aid them in their fight against their problem, need the kind of substitute home and family that can best be provided by a residential facility.

The facility will be known as the "Quarter-Way House."

Such a facility will be provided by Pathfinder Homes, Inc., a private non-profit corporation, in conjuction with Provident Hospital, the primary service organization.

Pathfinder's Quarter-Way House will be a three-story house centrally located in the CAA target area. It will accommodate 25 residents along with five resident staff members.

• • •

The medical services will be provided by the Provident Hospital Complex, composed of Provident Hospital, Provident Neighborhood Health Center and the Provident Community Mental Health Center.

The residence will be staffed by a house manager; a trained alcoholism counselors, a secretary, cook-housekeeper and a part-time cook.

Services will be provided 24-hours a day, 7 days a week and would be available for the alcoholic-in-crisis at any time.

Resources for the program include alcoholic clinics in the Baltimore City Health Department, the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Echo House, etc.

Also such halfway houses as Bridge House, Flynn House and Omega House would be used.

The specialized alcoholic detoxification units at Crownsville, Spring Grove and Springfield State Hospitals will also be utilized.

• • •

The service of such private groups as AA will assist.

The residence will be administered by the Provident Hospital Complex. A coordinator, responsible for the overall program goals, will oversee operation of social services and manpower training needs of the residents and supervises outreach and community education activities of the alcoholic counselors.

Any alcoholic in the target areas of the Community Action Agency will be eligible for the program. The target areas have been expanded to include the Druid Hill area and to Cherry Hill.

Any person may contact the Community Action office in his neighborhood for further information.

Workers from the Community Agency will be going out into various areas of the city for greater personal contact with persons prone to alcoholism.

There is no charge for these services

Circuit Court vacancy announced

Chief Supreme Bench Judge Dulaney Foster has announced that a vacancy now exists in the office of Examiner-Master in the Circuit Court and Circuit Court No. 2 of Baltimore City.

Any attorney admitted to practice before the Supreme Bench who desires to be considered for this position shall submit a detailed resume to Thomas P. MacCarthy, Esq., Administrator, Room 510 Court House, no later than July 15.

Happy Fathers Day

Happy Father's Day because you helped give birth to me, birth, a beginning, and with this beginning I am able to say Happy Father's Day. Every day is a Happy Father's Day when I know you are alive; if some day I shall awake and find that you are gone, then I'll know it will be a sad day, and the days to come.

Happy Father's Day, because you shared the sad times as well as the happy times of my life. There were times in the nights, and even days, that I could not really see my way clear, but you were there to see me through, and as a child you took care of me, like a farmer planting a tree, caring for it day after day, month after month, year after year until fully bloomed. Like the tree fully bloomed and grown I am also, and the tender care that you gave to me as a child is still there for these reasons and many more I want to say Happy Father's Day.

Construction begun on Baber-Daniels Gardens

Housing Commissioner Robert C. Embry, Jr. announced recently that construction has started on the Baber-Daniels Gardens, and urban renewal apartment complex at Eutaw Place and North Avenue.

The 268-unit development expected to be completed within 18 months is sponsored by the non-profit African Methodist Episcopal Church-Prince Hall Masons Development Corporation.

It is hoped the first units will be ready in six to eight months.

• • •

Urban renewal is bringing a total of 324 new units to the Eutaw-North area. Ground was broken two weeks ago for the 56-unit Me-De-So Manor development on the west side of Eutaw Place across the street from Baber-Daniels.

• • •

The development corporation's directors voted last week to change the name from Eutaw Gardens so as to honor their chairman and president, AME Bishop George W. Baber and Grand Master Samuel T. Daniels.

• • •

The development is on a 6.71 acre lot bounded by Eutaw Place, North Avenue, Bolton and Robert Street.

Ames-Ennis, Inc. is the contractor on both Baber-Daniels and Me-De-So Manor.

Baber-Daniels Gardens will consist of ten brick buildings grouped around three major inner courts. The buildings are to be three and four stories high and will be air-conditioned.

The four large buildings will contain storage space and laundries, with drying areas just outside. Space for parking will be pro-

Clean Block Fund now at $483 mark

By JEANETTE LEATH
Clean Block Director

The AFRO Clean Block Prize Fund this week climbed to $483.50, almost to the $500 mark; twenty-nine contributions were sent in from civic-minded individuals and business organizations, and churches.

Personal visits to the office were made by some supporters, while others sent checks and enclosed a message for the success of the campaign.

One letter brought in to the office by a representative of the M. Goldseker Realty Company reads:

"It has been seen throughout the years that the unselfish, dedicated efforts of a few can serve to make neighborhoods more attractive.

"Let us all work together to make all the blocks beautiful, and thus make the city of Baltimore a more desirable place in which to live.

"We shall continue our efforts to make this a more beautiful city, not only for this month, but all the months to come." (check $100)

Signed Sheldon Goldseker

Another letter received with $10 check, said:

"Dear Mrs. Leath,

Good luck with the 1970 Clean Block Campaign. I have always been impressed with the AFRO-AMERICAN's Clean Block Campaign and am pleased to send a contribution.

"I know that we share the belief that clean and attractive surroundings make people want to be better citizens. I commend you for all that you and your paper are doing to make a better Baltimore.

Black member lost on Elections Board

For the first time in the past five years, Baltimore's three-member Board of Supervisors of Elections is not now integrated, and black community leaders see this as a step backward at this vital agency.

Gov. Marvin Mandell this week named William J. Evans, attorney and former board president, to the Republican minority post held by Marshall W. Jones Jr.

Mr. Jones, East Baltimore mortician and veteran GOP leader, was the first, and only one to integrate this sensitive board

School Board makes 406 appointments

(Complete list of appointments on Page 21. Other School Board story on Page 27.)

The School Board, at its meeting Thursday evening, unanimously approved a total of 406 personnel items recommended by Superintendent Thomas D. Sheldon.

Among them were appointments of principals of three new senior high schools due to open late this year or early next year.

These included Dr. Joel Carrington to Walbrook; John Feathers to Southwestern and John Ward to Lake Clifton.

The appointment of Dr. Carrington and Mr. Ward, marks the first time in history black persons have been named to open brand new facilities. In the past, they have been limited to hand-me-down schools.

In addition, three of the city's oldest high schools will have black principals for the first time.

They are Charles Michael to Forest Park; Pierre Davis to City College; replacing Dr. Jerome G. Denaburg who is on sabbatical; and Miss Betty Williams to Eastern.

Miss Williams moves to Eastern from assistant principal at Northwestern. At Eastern, she succeeds Miss Olga Bowden, who becomes vice principal at Northern High.

Miss Bowden was Eastern principal earlier this year when the all-girls' school erupted. After a series of student uprisings, an independent citizens' committee conducted a full-scale investigation. Among the recommendations was further integration of staff.

At Northern, Miss Bowden will be assistant to W. Norris Weis, who becomes principal succeeding Mrs. Gladys Mitchell, who retired. Mr. Weis was formerly at Forest Park.

New principal of Western High is Angelo Fortunato, succeeding Mrs. Dorothy Kell who retired.

Still another black educator, Lewis Richardson, is the new principal of Edmondson High, also a first. He succeeds Carroll S. Rankin who retired.

The new personnel actions also stress some increased segregation of junior high principalships,

Leaders join NYC protest of wage cuts

What was supposed to have been a Community Action Agency press conference to announce that the Department of Labor had recommended a decrease in the wages of the Neighborhood Youth Corps enrollees, turned into a tactical strategy session to discuss ways that blacks could bring pressure on the Nixon Administration to desist in cutting social programs relative to blacks in the nation.

The meeting at Union Baptist Church, Thursday afternoon had been called by the CAA along with Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro, and business leaders to protest the cuts and to announce the forming of a protest committee to go to Washington to meet with the Secretary of Labor and demand the money be restored.

• • •

Neighborhood Youth Corps enrollees receive a training pay of $46.50 for a 32-hour week.

Under the Department of Labor's new proposal enrollees would receive a stipend 60 cents below the legal minimum wage of $1.45 an hour, thus cutting salaries to $35 a week.

With prominent members of the business community, religion, labor, government and the NAACP present, the leaders promised that there would be a cohesive attempt to go to Washington and see anyone necessary to restore the cuts in salaries.

No date has yet been announced for the trip to Washington.

Clarence Blount, chairman of the Community Action commission announced members of the official delegation to join the delegation to meet with government leaders will be:

William Boucher, executive director of the Greater Baltimore Committee; Mrs. Angela Bambace, president of the International Ladies

BODY FOUND — House at 3929 Fernhill Ave., Arrow shows spot on porch where two unknown men dumped body of 23-year-old Bennie Smith, shown in inset, on Sunday evening. Police are looking for orange car in which suspects were riding.

Body-on-porch killers still free; arrests due

Mystery still surrounds the death of 23-year-old Bennie Smith, son of Mrs. Shirley Smith, 3600 block of Duvall Alley, a well-known church leader and Morgan State College faculty member.

• • •

At AFRO presstime, police had made no arrest, although they expect a break in the case this weekend.

Mr. Smith, 3700 block of Derby Manor Dr. was found shot to death on the front porch of an apartment house in the 3900 block of Fernhill Ave. about 9:50 p.m. Sunday.

An unidentified eyewitness saw two young men in their early twenties get out of a 1969 orange Mustang and dump his body on the porch.

• • •

Homicide detectives are speculating that young Smith's death might be connected with a robbery or a filling station in the 4600 block of Liberty Heights Ave., twenty minutes earlier.

It is also suggested that he might have been a hostage of the robbers.

The station owner, John Bagby reported two young men in their twenties robbed him of $100 at gunpoint.

• • •

He said he fired five shots at the bandits as they fled on foot up the alley.

Lt. Arthur Cook of the Homicide Division advises police are now making tests to determine whether the bullet fired from Mr. Bagby's revolver matches the one found in Smith's body.

Mrs. Alverta Fernell, 3900 block of Fernhill Ave. first to discover the slain youth's body told the AFRO what happened:

"I was sitting near the window doing my homework, when I heard this thump on the porch and I decided to get up and run out and see what the noise was about. When I got to the porch I saw this body lying there."

Mrs. Fernell said she yelled to a neighbor, Mrs. Patrina McEachern, who recognized the now motionless form.

"Mrs. McEachern cried out, "I know him. I know him, that's Bennie Smith. I used to go to school with him."

Mrs. Fernell said she called police and told them there was a man on the porch.

"It took them about 15 minutes to come," she said, "as I had to call them a second time."

Smith was pronounced dead at Sinai Hos-

Frank Ellis sentenced on 38 counts

By
ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

Judge J. Harold Grady imposed 38 concurrent 2-year prison sentences upon Community Action Agency director Frank J. Ellis when he appeared in Criminal Court Thursday morning for disposition of convictions revolving around a 1968 Riot Emergency Fund of over $6,000.

The state accused Ellis of depositing the fund through a series of checks and converting the cash to his own use.

Since the terms are to be served concurrently, the actual time is two years.

However, if Judge Grady had specified the terms to be served end-to-end (consecutively) the time would have been a total of 76 years.

The $25,000 a year CAA chief was found guilty in May by an all-woman jury, who according to Judge Grady's interpretation, "rejected his denials and explanations of any wrong doing."

The convictions included 15 indictments with eight of them finding Ellis guilty of forgery, larceny after trust and malfeasance in office and seven of larceny after trust and malfeasance.

Immediately after imposition of sentence, defense attorneys Archie D. Williams and Charles P. Howard filed notice that Ellis is asking the Maryland Court of Special Appeals to review all evidence in the case.

Ellis has been free on his own recognizance since his arrest in November, 1969. However, after sentence was imposed, Judge Grady set bail at $3,000 which Ellis immediately posted.

• • •

Highlighting the Thursday hearing was Ellis' lengthy and passionate insistence that "I am not a criminal. I have never done any more than my job required, to help people. I have never taken a penny from anyone in my life."

During the explanation of what happened concerning the fund, Ellis said the investigation of the fund came as a surprise since the CAA commissioners, members of his staff and all concerned "knew what I was doing and thought it was all right."

Blaming City Auditor Daniel Paul and City Comptroller Hyman Pressman for bending over backwards to destroy black city officials, Mr. Ellis said directly after he told Pressman he was a "bigot," the auditors came in to check the CAA fund and records.

Stating that the auditors had just completed inspection of the same operation a few weeks before, Mr. Ellis told Judge Grady and a crowded courtroom that upon their return they were

Powell loses by 205; asks recount

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

NEW YORK — State Assemblyman Charles B. Rangel, who defeated Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. in the Democratic Primary, said Wednesday that Harlem "could no longer afford the luxury of an Adam Clayton Powell."

Whatever the reason, voter support which had kept the flamboyant 61-year-old Baptist minister in public office since 1941 had dwindled until it was no longer strong enough to bring him victory in Tuesday's five-way race.

His 7,599 votes made him second to Rangel who received 7,804.

• • •

His defeat was by 205 votes and at least one Powell supporter suggested there might be a recount.

On Thursday, Powell met the press and announced he had demanded a recount. His attorney, Henry Williams, said the election ballots had been impounded for a recount.

When a newsman asked Powell what he would do if the recount confirmed he had lost to Rangel, he answered, "fight on," indicating he would like to be in

Paterson gets Dem nod for 2nd Empire State slot

NEW YORK — State Sen. Basil A. Paterson won the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor this week by a 2 to 1 margin, giving the ticket a minority flavor. The four other statewide candidates are Jewish.

Paterson easily defeated James Ambro, a Long Island supervisor.

Since both Arthur J. Goldberg and Howard Samuels, the principal gubernatorial contenders, endorsed Paterson, the showing is expected to enhance Goldberg's chances of November victory.

The former Supreme Court Justice narrowly defeated Samuels in the same election.

• • •

Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, who reportedly spent more than $1 million on television, radio and newspaper advertising in his campaign, won the four-way race for the Democratic nomination to oppose GOP Sen. Charles E. Goodell.

Goldberg's close victory over upstate millionaire industrialist Howard J. Samuels, following a lackluster campaign, sent the former Supreme Court justice against Rockefeller, one of the nation's most powerful Republicans.

IN DIVORCE COURT

'I agreed to go and do my life and she agreed to go and do hers'

"I agreed to go and do my life and she agreed to go and do hers."

This was one of the statements Joseph E. Ringer Jr., a bus driver, made in Circuit Court recently to help him win a divorce.

Mr. Ringer of the 4200 block Bergen Ave., was married Sept. 15, 1961 to Mrs. Marie L. Ringer, 3900 block Kenyon Ave.

The husband testified they separated by mutual agreement on Sept. 15, 1966 and he left their home on Kenyon Ave.

"We couldn't get along. We agreed to live apart," he stated.

Judge Robert B. Watts signed the decree on June 23.

Assuring the court that Mrs. Ringer is a good mother and should have custody of the two children was the husband's brother, Kenneth W. Ringer, 3900 block Northern Parkway.

• • •

In another case, Mrs. Hugh E. Bowers, a sewing machine operator, was granted a divorce from her husband this week on grounds of adultery. Judge Robert B. Watts signed the decree June 23.

Mrs. Bowers told the court that she and her husband were married in Wilmington, Dela. on Jan. 28, 1942 and separated in June, 1969 when they were residing in Baltimore.

She said, "He kept on going next door and staying over there with the lady named, 'Marie.'

"Then he started staying out all night. He told me he wanted her and he was in love with her. He moved in June."

Also testifying was the Bowerses' adult son, Juad D. Bowers, 600 block N. Carey St. who said he knew his father had become enamored with another woman.

The matter of alimony for Mrs. Bowers still rests with the court and will be decided at a later date.
