50th Elk Convention held in Frederick

At the annual convention of the Tri-State Association of Elks held in Frederick, Md. JHNSON were held to elect new officers.

Those who were lucky enough to win were, James A. Hill of Roch Hall, Md., who was reelected, 1st vice president; Spearman Butler of Newburg, Md., who was elected 2nd vice president; Dr. Charles Johnson of Baltimore, who was reelected 3rd vice president; Elmer Handy of Baltimore, Md., who was reelected treasurer; Ray Brightful of Frederick, Md., who was reelected financial secretary; Dr. Bernard Harris Jr. of Baltimore, Md., who was reelected medical director; Albert Summerville of Baltimore, who was reelected Chairman of Ways and Means and David Shockly of Baltimore, Md., who was reelected Tri-State Convention chairman.

The officers of the tri-State Association serve for two years.

Elks of all ages, sizes and shapes from Maryland, Delaware and Washington converged upon this mountain town to celebrate their 50th anniversary.

Activities featured at the convention were a beauty and talent show; the Dr. Bernard Harris Sr. Achievement Dinner and an oratorical contest.

One of the highlights of the festivities was an old fashioned parade, which brought about 2,000 people outside to watch this gala activity.

The decorated cars, the pretty girls, the Elks in their sparkling white uniforms, the marching bands and the majorettes in their mini-skirts, lined up in front of the Francis Scott Key Hotel to begin the one mile walk to the Elks Home, where the parade

During the parade most eyes were on the pretty girls dressed in their bathing suits.

Two of them were Miss Sheral Hawkins; 16, of Clinton, Md., who was crowned Miss Tri-State, and Miss Charmaine Elickson, of Baltimore, Md., who was the 1st runner-up in the beauty contest.

Miss Tri-State was the winner of a $500 scholarship.

Others present at the convention were Carlton Burns, Baltimore; past state grand exalted ruler; William Fountain of Milford, Del., president of the Tri-State Association; Mrs. Nettie B. Smith, New York, grand daughter ruler; Mrs. Amy Warden, president of the Daughters Tri-State Association; James Harris, Baltimore; Dr. Bernard Harris Jr. of Baltimore and Mrs. Bernard Harris Sr.

Mohamed regains 1st place

Parent hits teacher, gets probation

"Wenever your child tells you something, you always take his side, instead of trying to find out whether your boy is wrong.

"He will get the feeling that everything he does is all right."

These words were spoken by Judge Mary Arabian, sitting in Western Municipal Court Tuesday.

Standing before Judge Arabian was Mrs. Ruth Bridges, 1500 block of Carey St., the accused parent charged with assault.

"She struck me in the face several times, and I did not hit her back," said Miss Sarabel R. Gittings 3400 block of Rosedale St., principal of school No. 104, explaining how she was assaulted in the faced.

Speaking for his client, Legal Aid West attorney, Joseph Murphy Jr. said, "Your Honor, Mrs. Bridges was in an extremely emotional state when she went to the school" after her son told her that a teacher's aide and the principal had struck him.

Still, Judge Arabian said "this is no excuse."

Mrs. Bridges was granted 18 months probation and ordered to pay court cost.
