Finals for the state level pageant will be August 15, 8 p.m. at the University of Maryland, Langsdale Auditorium.

Contestants must be between the ages of 18-25, high school graduates and single. The girls can be sponsored by an organization and the fee is $100.

An interview is scheduled Saturday, July 11, 4 p.m. at the Arena Playhouse. For further information write to P.O. Box 1000, Baltimore, Md. 21203.

Deadline for entries is July 25.

show sharp increases in the black population in Montgomery and Prince George's Counties and attributes this to the large number employed by federal agencies.

For example, he states:

"In Prince George's County alone, the number of nonwhite residents should reach 80,000 by 1970 as compared with 32,881.

Since 1960, there has been a population growth totaling 743,000 for these two counties, as compared to a loss in Baltimore City of 43,000.

Dr. Gorwitz sees the percentage of black citizens in the 18 non-metropolitan counties identified locally as the Eastern Shore, Southern and Western Maryland remaining constant or changed only slightly with relatively small populations.

Between the past April 1 and July 1, 1973, he estimates a 222,000 population increase in the suburban counties, a loss of 3,000 in Baltimore City and a gain of 14,000 in the rest of the state.

His statistics show that Maryland's population passed the 3 million mark in 1969 and is expected to reach around 4 million by December of next year.

plain happy," she exuberated.

In addition to title, she wins a trophy, $1,000 cash money, a wardrobe from any place of her choice, and a number of personal appearances.

So far, Carolyn has appeared on WBAL — TV, Channel 2, and is scheduled to appear on Channel 11's North Star with two of the runners-up sometime later on this month.

Carolyn told the AFRO, she will be participating later on this summer in the Miss D.C. Beauty Pageant.

She hopes to be getting some modeling contracts, but so far none has come.

"I have considered acting, mainly in the area of commercials but my main interest is in modeling."

Miss Barbara Baltimore describes herself as an "outdoor girl" and especially enjoys horseback riding and sailing.

For the pageant, she wore a floor-length yellow gown.

"I thought of the idea for the dress, but Mrs. Francis Hutch was the seamstress."

Her mother, Mrs. Rose Stennett, of Nevada St. was there and the girls described her as a regular "stage mother." She was just as excited as anyone else that her daughter had won the title.

The AFRO went on tour with Carolyn and found that children adore her as much as she adores them. Some of the children just gazed with their mouths open when they found out who she was and one little boy stood starry eyed as he shook her hand.

Deidra Vinson, 8, told her: "I'd like to be a queen one day. Does she own Baltimore city now?"

Andre Humphrey, 6, added "I think she is very pretty . . ."

JULY 14

A lecture tour of liturgical objects in the Walters Art Gallery will be held at 1:30 P.M. today, while a general tour, designed to introduce visitors to some of the most outstanding objects in the gallery's collection, will be given at 1:30 P.M. Thursday (July 16) hardly make ends meet, that as of July 20th they will earn only $.85 per hour."

As an alternative, he suggested that the program be continued as is, past the July 20th deadline and in the meantime he asked the Congressmen to use their influence to get the Administration to reconsider a formula admitting new NYC enrollees at a lesser figure and paying the workers at a graduating scale depending on the job they are doing.

A figure of from $1.25 to $1.60 was suggested which would average out to about the $1.40 now being paid. In as much as the new policy would effect NYC programs across the country, Mayor D'Alesandro reported that repercussions were being felt throughout the country.

He read to the Congressmen a resolution approved by 600 Mayors of the U.S. Conference of Mayors which favors the graduating pay scale idea.

During the 45-minute session, it was pointed out that contact had been made with Vice President Agnew who was checking the situation as it effects other cities and is reported to be sympathetic for holding the line.

Congressman Gilbert Gude, (Rep. 8th) after hearing the Baltimore delegation, offered to work with Mayor D'Alesandro and associated congressmen in an immediate effort to confer with James Hoddson, Sec. of Labor to see what can be done.

One of the two NYC 3 enrollees in the delegation was a 17-year-old Dwight Daughton who attends Calvert Educational Center Annex and works at Johns Hopkins Hospital in special services.

He told the Congressmen that he would quit the program if the salary cut were effected.

The other enrollee, Miss Linda Stokes, 17, is an OIC student and works as a pharmacist's aide at Project ADAPT.

She said that many of the girls have responsibilities of paying for baby sitters, rent, food and clothing andwith the cost of living today she didn't think they should work for wages like what their parents earned in 1930.

Other speakers such as Melvin Smothers of OAA's East-West Advisory Council cited the danger of losing young men from the program if the salary is cut.

He warned that the crime rate would increase because they would probably go out to steal the money they are now earning, and that racial gangs as well as family economic conflict would develop.

In the delegation were: James M. Chavis, director of NYC; Clarence W. Blount, chairman of CAC; William Boucher, businessman, Parran J. Mitchell, former CAA director; Linwood Ivey, acting director of CAA; Lani A. Gadhia, associate director, James Miller, public relations, Rev. Jacob Cunningham, of the Regional Council of Christians and Jews; Rev. Francis Stafford of the Archdiocese; Frank Gunther Jr.; Mrs. Alma Walker of the NAACP; Lincoln Ward of the OAC.

There was Del. Edwards and the enrollees along with Rev. Harold Dobson of St. Marks Baptist and Mrs. Angela Bambace of the Garment Workers Union.

Cherry Hill Council to install officers

Cherry Hill Co-Ordinating Council, Inc. will hold its installation services of the newly elected officers for the 1970-71 term on Sunday, July 12, at St. Veronica Catholic Church, 800 block Cherry Hill Rd.

The services will begin 5:30 p.m. at the church. Raymond V. Haysbert, executive vice president and general manager of Parks Sausage, Inc., is guest speaker.

Mr. Haysbert, is active in civic affairs and serves on the board of South Baltimore General Hospital.

Officers to be installed are Shepard H. Burge Jr., president; Harry Oglesby, 1st vice president; Mrs. Audrey Howard, 2nd vice president; Mrs. Elizabeth Greet, treasurer; John Johnson, executive secretary; the Rev. Mr. Wesley Kelley, parliamentarian and Father Richard Wagner, chaplain.

The affair marks the beginning of a drive to increase the council's membership rolls to over 2000 members in Cherry Hill Mt. Winans, Farrfield, Westport and Curtis Bay.

A special plan involved in this effort is a one year membership in the Cherry Hill Co-Ordinating Council with the admission price of $1.50.

OFFICERS of Cherry Hill Coordinating Council, of which Shephard H. Burge, above, is president, will be installed on Sunday 5:30 p.m. at St. Veronica's Church.

'No race' marriage law now in effect

On July 1 a 100-year old Maryland law that required marriage licenses applications to contain the race of the parties became obsolete and illegal.

When the law which most lovers and lawyers called "nonsense" faded into history, clerks in the Court of Common Pleas left the space for race on the application blank, asked no questions.

The interim clerk of the court, Joseph C. Dersch, however, wanted the designation left on "for the record" and told the AFRO, "Pretty soon they'll be taking everything off and there won't be anything left."

Mr. Dersch succeeded Frank C. Robey, clerk for 35 years, who died this year. He will have to stand election in November and is opposed by Paul C. Chester, a black public school science teacher, who filed to run on Tuesday.

There never have been any black employees in the Court of Common Pleas which accepts and grants not only marriage licenses but also traders' licenses.

Employees who have no special educational nor other type of qualifications listed are placed in the positions by political bosses.

Before Mr. Robey died he told the AFRO, "Touch them and they're warm and we have to take them. It's politics. We'd be glad to have colored employees if somebody sent them in when there are vacancies.

"We don't get many vacancies. They all stay until they retire voluntarily or die."

All other courts located at the Court House have black employees, although "token" and not in the majority, they have been named within the past five years.

The 100-year old Maryland law making it a crime for a black person to marry a person of another race, was outlawed in 1966.

The first persons filing for marriage licenses on July 1 under the new norace law were Melvin Hughes, a chauffeur, and Miss Ella Louise Miller, who registered at 1:22 p.m.

Last applicants to have race recorded on June 30 were Thomas Jones, Jr. 800 block E. 41st St., a janitor and his bride-to-be Miss Ineda Rich, 22, 411 Oxford Ct., who filed at 3:43 p.m.

Their historic license number is 70,320 which means they were the 70,320th couple to file applications this year.

Filing at 3:07 p.m. June 30, just minutes before James Hicks, 21, 4710 Greensprint Ave., a student and Miss Terry Hicks, 20, 4918 Greensprint Ave.
