GRIEVED AND SHOCKED — The family of Mrs. Lucille Frye, victim of a weekend stabbing by her sister, Margaret, departs from the March Funeral Home, Wednesday afternoon, after short services. Mrs. Frye's mother, Mrs. Mary Frye is assisted by an attendant. Her four sons, ranging in ages from 5 to 9 also leave. Two of Mrs. Frye's sisters bow their heads in shock at the family tragedy.

MRS. HILL PROMOTED

3 assistant directors of social services

Maurice A. Harmon, director of the Baltimore City Department of Social Services, has announced the appointment of three new assistant directors in line with a reorganization of the department.

The new appointees are Mrs. Geraldine Aronin, Assistant Director for Community Services;

Mrs. T'Jon Hill, Assistant Director for Staff Services; and

Edmond Jones, assistant director for Family and Children's Services. All three appointees were upgraded from previously held posts in the department.

Lloyd Anderson and Eugene Henry continue in their respective positions as Assistant Director for Income Maintenance and Assistant Director for Administrative Services.

• • •

Mr. Harmon stressed that the reorganization will permit this department to give a concentration to the provisions of services and provide the opportunity for active involvement with all facets of the community.

Mrs. Aronin will carry responsibility for coordination and liaison activities with all public and private agencies, organizations and groups at a local, State and Federal level.

Included in these activities is the development operation of new and experimental programs, participation in comprehensive planning programs, and community education programs.

Mrs. Aronin has been with the department for twelve years.

Mrs. Aronin received her B.A. Degree from Brooklyn College in Brooklyn, New York, and her M.S.W. Degree from the University of Maryland, School of Social Work, in June, 1965.

Mrs. Aronin is married and the mother of two teenage children.

Mrs. Hill will carry the

Sister of deceased charged in slaying

A game of chance ended in death late Friday night for the mother of four.

Miss Lucille Frye, 100 block South Exeter St. and two other sisters — Miss Margaret Frye, 1100 block East Baltimore St. and Miss Evelyn Frye, 1000 block East Pratt St. — were at Evelyn's home playing a game of cards.

The night was very humid the sisters got together to pass the evening and forget about the heat.

According to police reports, Lucille and Margaret commenced a violent argument with each other over a disputed sum of money which ended when Margaret grabed a kitchen butcher knife and repeatedly stabbed her sister in the upper chest.

Blood gushing from her mortal wounds, the fatally injured woman shrieking with pain, ran from the second floor apartment into East Pratt St. to seek assistance.

Collapsing on the ground, her breaths deeper and deeper, Miss Frye received help from Clay Evans, a passerby, 2000 block Barclay St. who tried to support her until the ambulance arrived.

Breathing faintly when police arrived, the victim was rushed to Mercy Hospital and pronounced dead-on-arrival.

Meanwhile her assailant shocked at her momentary violent act, ran from the death house, and was later picked up by a patrol car when she hailed it down to inquire about her sister's condition.

When told by police that her wounded sister had expired, Margaret allegedly admitted her role in the tragedy and was taken into custody.

Funeral services at March's Funeral Home on Wednesday afternoon were solemn and grievous as friends and neighbors gathered to comfort the bereaved family.

Miss Frye, previously married, is survived by four sons ranging in agee from 5 to 9. Also surviving are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elihue Frye Sr. and five brothers and sisters.

They are, Miss Lillie Mae Frye, Miss Margaret Frye, Miss Katherine Frye, Mrs. Elsie Lee Sears, and a brother, Elihue Frye Jr. Burial was in Mt. Calvary Cemetery.

Miss Frye attended school in Baltimore and graduated from Dunbar High school.

Register to vote near home

Baltimore's Supervisors of Election officials are again making it convenient for unregistered citizens to register and become eligible voters at supplemental stations near their homes.

This is the third of four scheduled weekends of supplemental voter registration in city neighborhoods.

Following that of today (Friday) and Saturday, next Thursday through Saturday will mark the end of such neighborhood registration prior to the Sept. 15 primary.

Citizens who wish to vote in that primary must get on the books before the close of registration Aug. 17.

Persons who should register are those over 21 years of age or those who will be 21 by time of the Nov. 3 general election, not yet on the books as an eligible voter.

Also, those who have lived here a year, or will have lived here a year by Nov. 3, who are still unregistered.

The books will remain open too for change of voting address, and change of voting name for those women who may have married since the last election.

The supplemental registration is being conducted along with that daily at the Elections Office, People's Court Building, Fayette and Gay Sts.

Hours there are Mondays through Fridays 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., and 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Thursdays.

No voter registration, change of voting address or change of voting name will be accepted after Aug. 17, just two weeks away.

Here are this weekend's supplemental registration stations. Look for the one near your home.

Court halts cemetery's race policy

AFRO BUREAU

ANNAPOLIS — "The Hillcrest Memorial Cemetery is legally obligated to sell burial plots in its cemetery to all citizens of the United States on equal terms, without regard to race, creed or color."

This was the opinion on the complaint of an AFRO reporter about the conduct of a driver on the No. 19 line.

The situation involved an elderly black citizen who had asked the driver for direction and had received a curt, abusive reply.

The elderly man and several other passengers were disturbed by the driver's attitude and he told the driver he should not be employed on the line.

Noteworthy was the fact that the elderly customer who had to stand on the crowded bus, was so hurt by the incident his voice shook and his condition presented a pathetic sight.

The AFRO immediately reported the incident to Mr. Headley by calling the Metropolitan Transit Co. LE. 9-5000, Ext. 306.

New captain called on carpet for talk

Captain Louis R. Harper, first black man to hold that rank in the history of the Baltimore Fire Department, began the first week after his promotion 'on the carpet.'

At Tuesday's meeting of the Fire Commissioners, Captain Harper was asked to explain why he was reported in a daily news article as having said "there is deep rooted prejudice in the department."

In a prepared statement Captain Harper explained

Citizens should report discourteous bus drivers

The Metropolitan Transit Authority expects all bus drivers to conduct themselves in a courteous manner at all times.

According to Clyde T. Headley, superintendent of Customer Services, any failure of a driver to treat passengers respectfully is considered a serious offense by the authority.

Mr. Headley also states that passengers should not hesitate to bring complaints to his attention at any time.

The official's statements came as the result of the complaint of an AFRO reporter about the conduct of a driver on the No. 19 line.

WITHDRAWAL DEADLINE

Record 95 candidates still remain in top primary races

By MAX JOHNSON

Unless there are some currently unforeseen, last minute withdrawals tonight (Friday), Baltimore City will face the Sept. 15 primary with a record high of 82 black candidates for a wide variety of top city and state posts.

There are at least an additional 13 such candidates running in Anne Arundel and Prince George's Counties, bringing the state's total by AFRO count to 95.

Deadline for withdrawals is 3 p.m. today.

Few are anticipated, however, for the law now prohibits the return of filing fees in such cases.

Then, too, in at least two of the city's legislative districts with large batches of black Democratic candidates, there are factional fights involved with maneu-

Corn-on-the-cob for treat of week

By VIRGINIA McLUCKIE, food economist

Sweet corn season is here.

Most of us look forward to eating this all American favorite every summer. Corn-on-the-cob, with its wonderful natural sweetness adds so much eating pleasure to picnics and everyday meals.

It is the sweetness in corn we want. Preserving this sweetness requires the cooperative efforts of the producer or grower, the retailer and you the consumer. A number of growers are icing the ears as soon as they are picked, others are field cooling the ears with ice water to hold the high quality until it reaches the store.

Progressive retailers are anxious that you like he corn they buy for you. They keep the corn in refrigerated cases or in iced display bins. They are aware that the transformation of sugar to starch is rapid at room temperatures.

Picked sweet corn begins to lose its sugar content within 24 hours. When you buy sweet corn at the store or roadside market, check on how it is handled and displayed.

Buy sweet corn that has been kept refrigerated or iced. Buy only the amount that can be used immediately. Get it home and into the kettle or refrigerator as soon as posible. The responsibility of maintaining the quality of sweet corn is up to you.

One way to keep corn in the refrigerator is to leave the husks on, wrap in a wet towel or cloth then place the ears in the hydrator or a plastic bag in the refrigerator. If you lack this must space and the corn is to be eaten the next meal, husk the corn then place it in the damp cloth and plastic bag.

In selecting corn look for bright green snug husks, golden to brown silk a sign of well filled kernels and kernels in the milk stage for tender corn.

Do not overcook corn. It is done when the milk is set and the kernels slip from the hull when touched with a fork.

Put the corn in boiling water, cover the kettle, bring the water back to boiling as fast as possible then cook 4 to 6 minutes.

• • •

If you cook corn on the grill in the husk or in aluminum foil, turn the ears as they cook evenly and allow 15 to 20 minutes for the cooking time. The yellow corn is a fairly good source of vitamin A.

As you shop for vegetables select those that are in season and locally produced for quality and price. Include on your shopping list snap beans, summer squash, cucumbers, sweet corn, green pepper, lettuce and new cabbage. Local tomatoes are starting to come to market. The first of the season production is usually higher in price than when the crop is in peak harvest.

Recipe for this week is for peanut butter — grilled corn.

Husk corn and spread ears lightly with peanut butter. Wrap each ear in bacon slice, fasten with tooth pick. Place on grill; Cook over hot coals, turning until done, about 10 minutes.

Greek Customs, Cuisine, Accent Barbecue Party

Imagine! . . . A Greek taverna right in your own backyard. While you can't import that bright Aegean moon, you can try this unique party idea that makes for easy, relaxed entertaining.

Number one food item on the menu is Rice-Tomato Packets . . . a delicious combination of enriched pre-cooked rice, condensed onion soup, butter, and parsley, flavored with garlic salt.

As rice steams in foil, it absorbs the double-rich flavor of condensed onion — the cooking soup extraordinaire.

A rack of lamb served with large chunks of lemon to squeeze over carved meat is the Greek manner. Accompany meat and rice with a Greek salad: Romaine lettuce, cucumber slices, feta cheese, and black Greek olives dressed with oil and vinegar.

RICE-TOMATO PACKETS

1½ cups packaged enriched pre-cooked rice, uncooked
4 tablespoons chopped parsley
4 teaspoons butter or margarine
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed onion soup
½ cup water
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
4 thick tomato slices
4 teaspoons grated Parmesan cheese

Divide rice, parsley, and butter into 4 servings on 4 pieces of heavy duty or double regular foil (each 18"x12"). Combine soup, water, and garlic salt; pour about ¼ cup mixture over each serving. Top each with tomato and cheese. Bring corners of foil together and twist tightly. Cook 6-inches above glowing coals for 30 minutes or until rice is tender. Makes 4 servings.

Hints For Homemakers

INEZ KAISER

The Fourth of July was a very festive occasion for us. We had a big family outing and picnicked all day long. Getting ready involved a lot of preparation, and several relatives pitched in to help.

After we finished, one of my cousins volunteered to wash the dishes. When the dishes were done, she remarked how surprised she was that her hands felt so good.

"That's DOVE LIQUID for you," I told her. "I know you've seen those TV commercials about the dishwashing liquid that thinks it's a hand lotion. Well, DOVE LIQUID's the one."

"Now I understand," she said, "but all this time I thought they were exaggerating."

"You know how careful I have to be about my hands," I said, "Well, DOVE has really ended my worries."

"I suppose now you're going to tell me that you have to bring your bottle of DOVE out of your bedroom every time you want to use it."

"No," I retorted, "but I sometimes think about putting it there when I run out of lotion."

We both broke out into grins and had a good laugh about the dove that thinks it's a hand lotion and really has you believing it.

SOILED CLOTHES NO HEADACHE

Soon it was time to start getting everything together to take outdoors. "Be sure to use those pink and yellow tablecloths on the tables," I reminded someone.

"I hope you aren't planning to take your good tablecloths outside," she questioned, with a look of amazement that I would even consider such a thing.

"They'll get barbecue sauce and everything else on them and you'll never get them clean again," she said.

"Oh, don't worry about that," I told her. "I use CONCENTRATED 'all' for washing. With 'all' there's nothing to worry about.

"CONCENTRATED 'all' has bleach, borax and brighteners in it. That's why I really like it, because one step does everything for you.

"Besides, 'all' is safe for all washable colors, whites and fine fabrics. What more could you ask for?

"You should try it on the kids' clothes. It gets out the toughest ground-in dirt, and you can stop worrying about how soiled the clothes get.

"My kids will be glad to hear about that," she said, "and you can be sure I'm going to give all my laundry to 'all'."

You know how it is when you have a lot of things to get together? You always forget something.

When we sat down to eat, one of the men asked for the butter. So I asked one of the children to look in the refrigerator and bring out the IMPERIAL MARGARINE.

"Don't you have any butter?" he asked. "I don't like the taste of margarine."

"Well, you'll like this," I told him. "I'd be willing to bet you couldn't tell the difference between IMPERIAL and butter. IMPERIAL has a superior natural flavor not found in other margarines because it contains special flavor ingredients like those that give butter its rich, natural taste.

"One of the nice things about new SOF-SPREAD IMPERIAL, which comes in pretty tubs, is that you don't have to be bothered about waiting for it to soften.

"SOF-SPREAD IMPERIAL keeps for several weeks in the refrigerator or you can keep it in the freezer even longer. It will always spread smoothly as soon as you take it out.

"Another advantage is that SOF-SPREAD IMPERIAL has a higher ratio of polyunsaturated fats than regular margarine. Because of this, it's rated as a 'special margarine' by the American Medical Association."

A BATH BAR WE ALL LIKE

Well, everyone had a great time and stuffed themselves royally. As the guests were getting ready to leave, one of the husbands came out of the house and whispered, "What kind of soap is that in the bathroom?"

"That's mint-refreshing LIFEBUOY. Why do you ask?"

"I like the way it smells, not all perfumey, like most toilet soaps."

"You know," I said, "both of my men—my husband and son—have said the same thing for a long time. I've finally found a bath bar that we all like.

"LIFEBUOY has long-lasting deodorant protection, too, yet it's gentle on the skin.

"Richard says he really feels clean after a LIFEBUOY bath or shower, and he doesn't feel like he's using a women's beauty bar."

"I'm sure going to ask my wife to get some mint-refreshing LIFEBUOY for us real soon," said the man.

I really enjoyed entertaining my family for the holidays but, boy, was I tired and glad when it was over. Hope your holiday was great, too!
