HOWLS AT HOWARD: Dr. James E. Cheek's prediction that there may be more student uproars on college campuses in the fall may have a close-to-home outlook if reports of a boiling pot at Howard University prove true. Ever since the June commencement when permissiveness was the order of the day, there have been rumblings among old alumni members about changes going too far in the "wrong" direction, and from veteran faculty members who oppose many of the new president's actions.

Now there are increased howls from the students who are seeking to rid the university of all its white faculty members. At a "secret" meeting at Arlie House in Virginia recently, reports are that the student leaders made this point one of their major goals and insisted that it be done before school opens in the fall.

Besides, a number of the student leaders are upset over Dr. Cheek's "close ties" to the Nixon Administration, pointing to his service as one of the President's top advisers on student activities and the fact that he "was selected" to host the Congo's President Joseph D. Mobutu at his 16th St. home during his Washington State Visit.

The situation has members of Howard's board of trustees deeply concerned, and there is behind-the-scene talk that the university may be shut down until the dissidents are weeded out.

CUFF NOTES: James C. Evans, who for 30 years was civilian assistant at the Pentagon to a number of Department of Defense Secretaries, retired as of July 30. Although he acted without fanfare, Mr. Evans played a dig part in helping promoe desegregation in the military program. He played a top role in the writing of "To Secure These Rights," the document issued by President Truman which formed the basis for the elimination of discrimination in the Armed Forces. Friends of Mr. Evans tossed a going-out party for him at Bolling Air Force Base last week.

Bernard (Tippy) Sewell, acting director of Evening and Summer Schools in the District Public Schools System, also retired as of July 31. Sewell's dedication to the job has been so outstanding that fellow workers expressed it in a beautiful message: "Happy Retirement, See You Monday."

James Farmer, Assistant Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, apparently plans to stay at HEW despite consistent reports of his leaving. He says: "The militants who said that I shouldn't join the Nixon Administration when I first took the job, are now urging me to stay. They cite Jackie Robinson as an example, saying that baseball desegregation would not have become a fact if Jackie had quit when the game got rough."

Colts postpone sale of tickets

The sale of single game tickets for Baltimore Colt home football games originally scheduled to begin on August 17 has been tentatively postponed to August 24.

The postponement is caused by the uncertainty of the site of the Sept. 20th game with Kansas City.

(UPI —)General services for (UPI — (UPI — Funeral Mrs. Helen Wilkinson Sheffield, a prominent leader in prominent leader in Orangeburg County, were held here last week.

Mrs. Sheffield died last Wednesday at the age of 71. She was involved in a two-car accident on the U.S. Orangeburg children and another youth, Van Zeigler, 17, were injured slightly in the accident.

Mrs. Sheffield was the daughter of the second president of S.C. State College and served as a professor of chemistry at the school from 1922-61.

THINKING OUT LOUD
'Black Is Beautiful' And It Should Include Picking A Queen

By RALPH MATTHEWS

The popular saying "Black Is Beautiful" never seems to live up to its words when it comes to behavior and whenever the mere question of eye appeal is left out of the equation. It never seems to live up to its vaunted promise where beauty contests are concerned.

Let's take a peek at what transpired at the "Miss Black D.C." contest several Saturdays ago. After much newspaper publicity we set out to pick the fairest of the fair among us to represent the capital in the "Miss Black America" nationwide contest coming up in New York City. The efforts proved that running a beauty contest is not really our bag.

We like to pick a beauty, put her in competition with a number of others to give the affair charm, and go on from there. We proceeded that way the other night. The young women did their prescribed routines, and there before the television audience of say a quarter of a million viewers, Miss Jo Ann Jones, comely lass, was crowned "Queen."

She was given an elaborate golden crown and permitted to parade up and down aisles amid the murmur and adulation which accompanies beauty contests.

She was kissed by the losers and sponsors as well. It was a happy evening and everybody turned off their TVs and went to bed satisfied that the evening had been well spent.

But by Monday everything had changed. Some busybody had discovered an error in the compilation of the computers and a city wide press conference was held to expose the whole thing to nobody's satisfaction. Anyway they took Miss Jones' crown and gave it to someone else leaving Miss Jones naked and humiliated.

Pretty good end was served? I would say none except a bit of unnecessary embarrassment to the glorified young woman. To wipe it away is much like having the bridegroom disappear on his wedding day. "Pom pom moment" of ecstacy that cannot be recaptured, matters not that we do. The laughter, the joy, the tears were given for a moment and no amount of reasoning will recapture them for anyone else. The people who blundered should have kept their mouths shut and hope for better luck next time. There is such a thing as kindness to temporize all our actions.

I speak from experience. This is not the first nor will it be the last contest in which we will be involved.

I recall vividly a similar contest held at one of Baltimore's amusement parks a few years ago, either Sparrow's or Carr's Beach. Amid much fanfare, Miss Billie Burke, a beautiful statuesque girl, was chosen to represent and selected to represent Washington at the World's Fair in New York.

Mable Alston Grammer, then the AFRO women's editor, went out to get her story and came back dejected with the announcement! "Miss Burke is not going to New York. The sponsors have vanished with all the application for the city and the Dunbar Community Council.

As with all such applications, the city planning department has had the role of establishing a program of services and activities and obtaining operating agency commitments in accord with the needs and preferences of the community Council.

The Dunbar Multi-purpose Neighborhood Center is the fourth to be approved by HUD in Baltimore City. These four proposals developed by the City Department of Planning represent a significant step in the implentation of a plan for a comprehensive system of multi-service centers.

The others are to be located at Kirk Ave. and 22nd St., in the MUND Area, at Lafayette and Gilmor Sts., for the Lafayette Square Community Center and in a complex of buildings focusing on Mount and Lombard Sts. for neighborhood groups associated with Echo House.

The Center in the MUND Area is expected to open in September and will be the first in operation.

In line with community preferences and Mayor Thomas J. D'Alesandro's policy of making services more accessible and responsive to residents, the multi-purpose center component of the Dunbar Complex will include:

A major decentralized unit of the Department of Social Services, a day care center, employments counseling and guidance by the State Department of Employment Security, the State Department of Probation and Parole, a Mayor's Station;

Also Community Action Agency Credit Union, Model Cities Council A, Legal Aid, Department of Public Works services, and other activities.

These services will be integrated with recreation, adult education, cultural programs vocal training and other community oriented services in the total Dunbar Community School Complex and the Eastern Health District and Chick Webb Recreation Centers on the same site.

Commitments have been received by the agencies and groups providing services in the Dunbar Complex.

added:

"Had the other candidates received the opportunity to appear before COPE's committee, it is quite possible that another candidate could have appeared equally attractive to COPE.

"It is also possible that a candidate that assured the unionists only that their cases would be treated with fairness and propriety would not receive COPE's endorsement.

"The effect of this particular endorsement has been self-destructive, as it indicates that COPE is not looking for any of the attributes prescribed by the Sates's Attorney's oath of office, but just the opposite — a violation of injustice rather than justice; corruption rather than right and a destruction of the principles of fair administration of justice rather than the upholding of said principles."

The AFRO also talked to Mr. Allen's headquarters, Randy Carroll, the office manager for Mr. Allen's campaign, told this newspaper that he had taken a casual, random poll among the brothers on the street in the neighborhood surrounding the headquarters at Druid Hill and Biddle and among people who had called in to the office.

He stated, "most of the people I have talked to seem to feel that here is another example of a fix or deal that is extended only to political favorites or political creditors of the State's Attorney's office.

"A lot of people think that the cases against the persons accused of firebombing the trucks will be dropped or fixed as the result of this endorsement," Mr. Carroll told the AFRO.

Mr. Carroll added: "A lot of people have commented that it appears that Cardin got the State's Attorney's position through a deal, and now it looks like another deal has been made to get the labor endorsement."

Mr. Cardin and Mr. Menapace both deny the existence of a "deal." Mr. Carroll said in regard to the denial, "Well, this incident certainly has all the appearances of a deal, regardless of whether or not it actually happened."

Andrae Jennings, 14, 1634 N. Milton Ave., who also aided in the rescue along with other neighbors.

Mr. Davis says the occupant of the burning house was Samuel Robinson, a Harrowes Point worker, who had pulled double shift that day in mid-July and was so weary he fell asleep neglecting to put a cigarette out.

A fan nearby blew the sparks and the mattress went into flames.

Mr. Davis said he at first saw smoke and then scaling the stairs to the second floor saw the occupant asleep in the bed. The springs glowed red hot in the darkness around 1:30 a.m., he told the AFRO.

Mr. Davis reveals he dragged Mr. Robinson out of doors and then filled trash cans with water to douse out the fire sufficiently well before the fire department arrived.

Mr. Davis and his wife, Mrs. Barbara Davis, have been married six years and are members of St. Francis de Sales R.C. Catholic Church along with their three sons, Ricky, 10; Rodd 7 and Shacr, 6.

According to Mr. Kilgore, he and another neighbor found Clarke lying face down on his bed in the middle bedroom on the first floor. According to Mr. Kilgore, the man had been dead for at least two days. Slight decomposition of the body had begun.

"He was a quiet neighbor who bothered no one and kept to himself," Mr. Kilgore related.

"From time to time he would have two friends come over, other than that the kept to himself," he continued.

Mr. Clarke's brother could not be reached for comment. As of AFRO press time, funeral arrangemets had not been arranged.

Mr. Clarke was a native of Virginia.

Dr. Lincoln is married to the former Lucy Cook. They have three children: Cecil Eric, Joyce Elaine, and Hilary Anne.

They reside in New York City.

If named the new president of Morgan State, Dr. Lincoln would succeed Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, who retired last month after 22 years of service.

The State Board of Trustees of the State College named Professor Thomas P. Fraser, professor of Science Education, to serve as acting president until a permanent head has been named.

The search for a new administrative head of the university began in January when Dr. Jenkins announced that he would be retiring effective August 1.

The search has been a matter of controversy; a number of candidates have been in service. The Board could not decide upon a single person so an acting head was named.

THE CHAMP — 12-year-old Vickie Williams, winner of the statewide Recreation Department hula hoop contest, practices for the national event to be held in Philadelphia, Aug. 12. Six-year-old Tracy Harper looks on.

ALL IN THE MOVEMENT

Hula Hoop champ tells how she won state title

"It's all in the movement. You have to keep the hoop going around and around.

"The trick is knowing when to slow the motion down and then when to speed it up again.

"To do it right, you have to start at the waist and gradually progress to the neck and knees.

"After you get the hang of it, it's not too hard to keep it from falling. It's just a big plastic circle."

The words are those of 12-year-old Vickie Williams, who is Miss Hula Hoop of Maryland.

Vickie, daughter of Mrs. Shirley Williams, of 1716 Warwick Ave., was giving instructions on how to learn to hula hoop after being declared winner of the statewide Hula Hoop contest Friday.

To win the state championship title, the crown and a $25 savings bond, Vickie competed against five other Maryland city winners in six events: knee-knocker, wrap-the-mummy, hula hoop, alley oop, stork and free style.

In her free style performance, she twirled three hoops at the same time.

On July 8, Vickie, who won the 1969 city title, and her good friend, Carrie Minggie, 12, also of Warwick Ave., tied for first place in the Bureau of Recreation's city-wide contest.

Carrie, who had practiced daily with Vickie, was awarded fifth place in the state finals.

"I've practiced five or six times a day; every day since day camp started in June," said Vickie, a member of the Easterwood Park Recreation Center.

"I was happy that I won the contest and I hope I can win the next one in Philadelphia."

On Aug. 12, Vickie, with her proud mother, will go to Philadelphia to compete with other state winners in the regional contest, where the prize is a $100 savings bond.

If she wins that title, she will go to California to compete in the nation-wide contest. Top prize is $1000.

Vickie, talented and versatile, includes music, dancing and reading as her hobbies.

Her favorite book character is "Homer Price," an adventurous 12-year-old.

She attends the Charles Hamilton Houston Junior High School where she plays the flute and xylophone.

For the last three consecutive semesters, the hula hoop champion has been on her school's honor roll and has been awarded honors in all her school subjects: English, French, home economics, gym, social studies, art, science and math.

In June, she received an award for her volunteer services from the American Red Cross.

Vickie is a member of the Ames Methodist Church and participates in the Sunday School activities.

She has one sister, Michelle, 17, a 12th grader at Forest Park High School, and six brothers: McKinnis Jr., 16, Houston High; Michael, 15, School no. 451; Eric, 11, Raymond, 8, and Darryl, 6, who attend Matthew A. Henson Elementary School.

Lady Driver Halts Buses

HALIFAX, England — When Sandra Holt, 23, Halifax' first woman bus driver, reported for her first day at work this week, all the men drivers went on strike in protest. "A woman's place is behind a kitchen sink, not behind the driving wheel of a bus," said one driver. Later all but 30 per cent of the men returned to work.

Combat Pay for Cambodia

The Treasury has published plans to give GIs who took part in the Cambodian operation the same income tax breaks accorded for combat in Vietnam.

Because Cambodia was never officially designated a combat zone, the tax benefits would not otherwise apply to the 22,000 Americans involved in the two-month operation.
