Portsmouth co-ed Miss Black Va.

NORFOLK, Va. — EmmaJeane Morrison, a 19-year-old sophomore at Norfolk State Colleg from Portsmouth, is the first Miss Black Virginia.

She was chosen Saturday night over 17 other contestants in the first Miss Black Virginia Pageant at the Norfolk arena.

"At first I was afraid I was dreaming," she later said. "I was afraid I would wake up and have to go through all of it again," she said of her experience.

She won't have to repeat the performance until Aug. 28 when she represents Virginia in the Miss Black America pageant in New York.

Miss Morrison, who competed as Miss Black Portsmouth, was picked by the other contestants as Miss Congeniality.

An honor student, she is majoring in elementary education, but is thinking about switching to either mathematics or English.

She wins an expense-paid trip to New York City, a $100 gift certificate, a $300 wardrobe, a trophy, and a color television.

Her talent presentation was a dramatic monologue of her own composition, "Good-by, Sweet David." She plans to use it in the national pageant.

A collection of plays, stories and poems she has written is due to be published in September under the auspices of a 13-college cultural exchange program, she said.

This was the first time Virginia has participated in Miss Black America preliminaries. The state pageant, with its theme of "Young, Gifted, and Black," was sponsored by the Women for Political Action.

Prison 'Pushers' Indicted

WASHINGTON — A federal grand jury last week indicted nine men on charges arising from narcotics trafficking inside the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan.

Attorney General John N. Mitchell said the four-count indictment resulted from a two-year investigation into reports that narcotics were being sold to inmates inside the penitentiary. The indictment was returned in Kansas City.

A lawyer from Rockford, Illinois, Herbert Hoover Franks, and eight former inmates of Leavenworth were named defendants in the indictment.
