Phemister to lead Symphony Chorus

The Baltimore Symphony Chorus begins a new season on September 1st under the leadership of William Phemister.

The Chorus will sing thoughout the year with the Baltimore Symphony in the Lyric Theatre. The Stravinsky "Symphony of Psalms" and Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe" will be the first major works to be performed in October.

Rehearsals are every Tuesday night, 7:30-9:30, at the Babcock Memorial Presbyterian Church, 6240 Loch Raven Blvd.

Membership is open to anyone who loves choral singing and has the ability to read music. There are no dues required. Auditions for new members can be arranged by calling 661-5057 or the Symphony office at 727-7200. Former members will not need to audition again.

William Phemister is a graduate of the Juilliard School and the Ecole Normale de Musique, Paris.

He has a Masters from Peabody and is currently working on his doctorate there, studying with Leon Fleisher. He was formerly on the faculty at the University of Missouri. Last year he assisted Allan Miller with the Chorus.

Women gain in education

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The educational level attained by women has risen steadily since the beginning fo this century, reports the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

The bureau's study study, "Trends in Educational Attainment by Women," showed that in 1900 only seven of every 100 girls of 17 graduated from high school, but in 1968 the figure rose to 78 of every 100.

AKA's and senior citizens ready center for service

with Lula Mackay

Heart warming it was on Friday to watch the array of senior citizens busily organizing and assisting in their move to Saint Mary's Seminary on Paca Street. In fact, the Morton Movers had a difficult time accomplishing their job because the Senior Power that permeated the air made it difficult for the senior citizens of Project S.A.G.A. and the Multi-Purpose Senior Center to stay out of the way.

Whoever said that senior citizens are inactive should have seen these elderly ladies and men as they scrubbed, mop ped, arranged furniture, unpacked boxes, and did whatever was necessary to get things in order. By the end of the day it was quite apparent that this New Center, which is a Model Cities Program sponsored by the AKAs, would be ready to roll early Monday morning.

Project S.A.G.A., a component program of the Community Action Agency was also sponsored by the AKA's. There are 600 senior citizens who have already banded together to build Senior Power in our City. The Multi-Purpose Senior Center now offers them, and all other MC Neighborhood Area elderly an opportunity at employment, education, skills training, community service projects, health aid, rehabilitative care, as well as day care assistance.

The senior day care hopes to help keep hundreds of elderly people out of nursing homes and state institutions by offering specialized activities, special diet foods, love, care, and a chance for social contact.

When Carrie Jackson mentioned, a few days back that they (Alpha Zeta chapter of Zeta Phi Betas) had wrapped up all the details as well as ground plans for the annual dance next April, it made me realize how efficient and hard working these sorority gals are.

But then I realized, too, that the Baltimore Zetas are not ordinary sorors. A couple of weeks back when the sorority held its fiftieth anniversary boule in the Capital, Gamma chapter garnered two of the choice awards.

The first award was a white leather Bible autographed by the five founders of the sorority. This award was presented by the grand basileus, Mildred C. Bradham to Gamma chapter of Morgan State College, for being the most active undergraduate chapter. The second award was given to the chapter for being the third largest undergraduate chapter.

Gamma Chapter has been involved in several service and financial projects. The service projects have included the setting up of a booth at the Morgan State Carnival and selling of baked goods to support the Student Government's tutorial project; visits to Montrose School for Girls and presenting a program filled with fun, games and fashions; helping in the voter registration drive and participating in all of the following campaign drives: Parren Mitchell, Joseph Howard, Archie Williams, Joseph Tydings, Dennis Crosby, Allen Chester Murphy and Clarence Mitchell.

Zeta's have visited the Maryland Baptist Home for the Aged and offered gifts and presented a program. The sorors have been involved in a big sister-little sister project in the inner city, and have visited the House of Good Shepnards on several occasions and presented programs of fun, games and fashions to the girls at the home. The sorority has given dinners on the campus to bridge the gap of non-communications between on and off-campus students, and has also rendered to the school dormitory assistance in the offices.

They helped in a Christmas clothing drive by giving clothing to needy families in the inner city. They presented a talent show awarding trophies to winning groups, and participated in the Baltimore Tutorial Project, the Girl Scouts and assisted in the Zeta School set up by the graduate chapter. Alpha Zeta, in the city. They also are involved in a March of Dimes project to inform mothers of prenatal care and birth defects.

The financial projects have included supporting Project Hunger and the Community Chest.

Next term they will be involved in the following activities for the year September, 1970-May 1971:

November 13 — Unisex Symposium

December 11th — Forum on venereal disease

November — Adopt a family for Thanksgiving through a welfare agency

December — Arts and Crafts workshop at the Maryland Baptist Home for the Aged.

Members of Gamma Chapter are:

Zenobia Barner, Geraldine Bell, Saundra Brooks, Linda Brown, Elsie Butcher, Mary Carter, JoAnn Chambers, Hazel Colvin, Evelyn Dixon, Dorothy Edwards, Shirley Farmer.

Gloria Green, Nancy Hairston, Mary Hammett, Cheryl Harris, Evelyn Harris, Vernity Harrison, Jacqueline Highsmith, Joyce Hughes, Virgie
