O. J. thankful, takes top slot at WSID

Anthony M. Giordano, general manager of United Broadcasting Company of Baltimore, has announced the appointment of Oliver Johnson as station manager of WSID Radio, the UBC, AM outlet in Baltimore.

Mr. Johnson, better known as O. J., a nickname bestowed on him by the boys at a camp where he served as director, came to WSID from WJDY in Salisbury, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

His duties at WSID have been far-ranging. In addition to having his own disc jockey show, O. J. has served as muci director and sports director as well as performing other assignments.

Mr. Johnson has also fulfilled duties on United Broadcasting's Baltimore television station, WMET-TV, Channel 24, covering sports and conducting a regular sports show, "Let's Talk Sports," every Wednesday from 8:30 to 9 p.m.

The 31-year-old new station manager of WSID graduated from Carver High School in Baltimore in 1956. He attended Morris College, Sumter, S.C., and the University of Baltimore, where he majored in public relations.

Mr. Johnson served in the U.S. Army from 1956 to 1958 and while in the service was All Europe Bantamweight Boxing Champion and All Europe All Star Second Baseman.

He played in the G. I. World Series as a member of the 86th Infantry Regiment team which won the series and also played from 1957 to 1959 on the U.S. Army Basketball Team.

From 1963 to 1966, he played on Behrman's Basketball Team in Baltimore.

Mr. Johnson took a four-week short course at New York University in Boys' Club work and is a certified Boys' Club worker. While living at Snow Hill, on the Eastern Shore, he helped organize a boys' club there.

Mr. Johnson was introduced to boys' club work through the American Camping Association and eventually became physical director of the Salvation Army Boys' Clubs of Baltimore, Franklin Square Branch.

The popular O. J. also served as public relations director of the American Camp Association, Maryland Section, and was a member of the board of Camp Algha Omega, where he directed for two years.

WSID's new station manager resides in Baltimore with his wife, the for a native of Salisbury whom he met while he was working on the Eastern Shore, and their one-year-daughter, Andrea Monique.

Expressing his appreciation to the United Broadcasting Company for the confidence it showed in him in appointing him as station manager of WSID, Mr. Johnson said that he would also like to thank the many other people who have helped him to carve out a worthwhile career.

Among those due special thanks, Mr. Johnson said, are Jerry Sachs, general manager of the Baltimore Bullets, and two members of the clergy: the Rev. Madeline Phillips and the Rev. John C. Mabe.

FTC puts clamp on wig claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has advised wigmakers to be careful about advertising claims like "virgin hair," "natural hair," "true hair" and "custom colored."

It said if a wig is made of animal or artificial hair, the ads and the label should say so. "True hair," "natural hair" and "genuine hair" should mean human hair, the FTC said.

"Custom colored" claims should be avoided "unless the hair is to be dyed or is made of a mixture of precolored hair stock to meet a customer's personal requirements," the agency said.

A wig isn't "virgin," the FTC said, unless it "contains only human hair that has never been bleached, dyed or permanented."

The suggestions came in tht form of guides for the wig, toupee and chignon industry. Although advisory, the FTC said they are the agency's interpretations of the laws it enforces. "The guides have been issued to encourage the hairpiece industry to comply voluntarily with these statutes," the FTC said.

Susan of Sesame Street pays visit to School 99

The boys and the girls in Class L-209, under the instruction of Mr. Berkley C. Dorsey and aide, Mrs. Evelyn Wallace, at Columbus P.S. No. 99 were rewarded this summer be havyin Susan of Sesame Street on Tuesday, July 21, 1970 in their classroom.

Susan came to see her friends, who watched her daily on the 1970 Emmy Award Winner proram Sesame Street on Maryland Educational Network, Channel 67.

During Susan's short stay, she answered many questions about the characters on the televison show, Susan, Loretta Lon, told the pupils that she taught in a public school before going into show business.

She autographed her new album, Susan Sings Songs From Sesame Street With The Children's Chorus.

She told the pupils that she was glad to see that they were interested in coming to summer school to improve in their reading.

She also stressed the importance of continuing their education. Susan encouraged the pupils to become good citizens in their community.

Before leaving the boys and the girls, Susan treated them to lollipops and pictures.

She visited the school office where she met Mrs. Ada Weaver, the winter school principal, Mr. Isaac Harmon, the summer school principal and Mrs. Rosalie Thomas, the curriculum coordinator.

Larry Deane, Eddie C. get TV announcer spots

Despite recent conflicts with a small local radio station two DJ's have caught the Gold'en Ring.

As of September 7, Eddie Castlebury (Eddie C) who was fired from WSID Radio for refusing to cross a picket line, will begin broadcasting duties at WJZ TV.

Also longtime Baltimore jock, Larry Deane who left WEBB Radio after serving a short period as station manager begins commercial and booth work at WMAR-TV on September 27.

ject which has been going on for several years is located adjacent to the George Murphy Homes at the corner of Myrtle Ave. and George St.

The Board also approved a $15,000 grant to be given to the Guilford Association over a three-year period for the improvement of Sherwood Gardens.

The City had taken over the maintenance of the gardens after the death of the garden founder, John W. Sherwood, in the mid-60's. Now that job is being turned over to the Guilford Association with the added funds for the improvement of the tulip beds.

Channel two features show on the 'America'

WMAR-TV, Channel 2, will televise "Sail to Glory," a one-hour color television special about the famous schooneryacht "America" on Monday, August 24, at 7:30 p.m.

"Sail to Glory" will dramatize one of the most exciting events in United States Yachting history — the victory of the "America" over the best vessels of the British Royal Yacht Squadron in 1851.

It was this unexpected and surprising victory over the British that was the forerunner of the America's Cup races off Newport, R.I., beginning on September 15.

Robert Stack will head an all-star cast that will be featured in "Sail to Glory."

However, the actual star of "Sail to Glory" will not be an actor. It will be the "America," a 104-foot, 170-ton schooner-yacht which was recreated by R.J. Schaefer, president of the F. and M. Schaefer Corporation, the program's sponsor.

House ok's tough bill on narcotics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Commerce Committee approved tough drug abuse legislation Friday that would double most penalties for pushers and provide for a presidential commission to review the legal and medical controvery over marijuana use.

Like a bill already approved by the Senate, it also includes a controversial "no knock" provision sought by the administration to givt police authority to enter private premises unannounced if they believe there is danger to themselves or a threat of evidence being destroyed.

In other respects, the far beyond the admistration misure passed by the Senate.

Besides much stronger penalties for drug pushers, it would provide $200 million in three years to expand rehabilitation programs and would authorize $6 million to hire 300 additional agents by the bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

None of these provisions is in the Senate bill.

John H. Powell Jr., general counsel of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, completed his first hearing in that position this week, but he conducted himself with insight and finesse that would belieth atfact. that would belie that fact.

A native of Mineola, Nassau County, N.Y., Powell comes to the commission with a long line of honors and lengthy professional experience as a judge advocate in the Air Force, as an attorney in the Office of the Solicitor in the Labor Department, and as an assistant U.S. attorney in the U.S. Department of Justice in Brooklyn.

A graduate of Howard University in Washington, and the Harvard Law School and the New York University Graduate School of Law, Powell has also worked with the Wachtel and Michaelson law firm in New York City, with the Celanese Corporation and the Inmont Corp.

In addition he was in private practice in Mineola, where he served as counsel to the investigative subcommittee of the board of HARYOU-Act and as special counsel to SCLC.

Mr. Powell and his wife and son, 2 and daughter, 5, reside in Washington where he now directs the legal staff of the Civil Rights Commission.

"My goal," he told the AFRO, "is to work on employment. If that problem could be eliminated most of our worst problems would be improved."

Public defender planned

The Governor's Commission on Law Enforcement and the Administration of Justice has taken the first step towards freeing Baltimore from the judicial mess which resulted from the July order of the Supreme Court which outlawed the practice of holding preliminary hearings for indigents without leal counsel.

In what will hopefully result in a full-fleded Pubic Defender system the Commission alloted $48,000 in federal funds to the city to set up the system which will provide attorneys for all indigents' preliminary hearings.

An additional $32,052 will be provided by the Legal Aid Bureau through Model Cities to pay for the team of 11 lawyers, eight investigators and administrative program.

Legal Aid will supervise the program which is part of Governor Mandel's three step remedy for the City's court problems.

The first step was to end all preliminary hearins on criminal cases and send them straight to the Grand Jury.

The final step will be the institution of a Public Defender system when funds to run it are provided.
