2nd D. Demos face heated factional fight in primary

By MAX JOHNSON

Baltimore's 2nd Legislative District is the battleground in the Sept. 15 primary election for one of the most diversified and heated Democratic factional fights in the city, for nominations to Maryland's General Assembly.

The picture is no less heated in the Democratic State Central Committee race.

There are four separate factional tickets bucking each other in the Assembly field, with a total including independents of eight Democratic candidates for State Senate and 35 for the House.

This district will nominate two party senators and eight candidates for the House in the primary.

Two of the eight candidates in the Senate race are black, and 14 of the 35 House candidates are also black.

Two of the four factional tickets are integrated, one is all black, and the other is all white.

The whole primary picture is one of utter confusion, even to some of the political leaders and candidates themselves.

Here the jockeying for power among the major factions has reached tremendous proportions.

Voter registration wise, this district's black citizens are in the majority, and have been since prior to the gubernatorial elections in 1966.

In that election four years ago, black Democratic candidates were able for the first time to capture two House seats.

Since, a black city councilman was elected. To date, this remains the only black representation to elective public office in this decisively majority black district.

This lack of proportionate representation has been the result of black politicos fighting each other and bucking for leadership roles.

The current primary scene remains the same.

Perhaps the 2nd District's oldest Democratic club headed by black citizens and involving blacks is the Associated Civic Democratic Councils Inc.

This organization, headed by Paul J. Cockrell, attorney, is fielding this all black ticket:

Senate — Samuel R. Sawyer; House — Walter Burrell, Irwin Conway, Titus Garnett Jr., Mrs. Zatella Giles, William H. Murphy Jr., Mrs. Inella Redmond and Major Raleigh Slade.

State Central Committee — Mrs. Gladys Alford, Mr. Burrell, Leonard E. Cannady, Mr. Garnett, Mrs. Giles, Mrs. Redmond, Mrs. Emma Rice, and Mr. Sawyer.

A second integrated ticket has been formed by a coalition of convenience between the New Democratic Club, a splinter group from the district's old Mount Royal Democratic Club, and the Eastside Democratic Organization centered around Robert L. Douglass, the district's lone black city councilman.

Its ticket includes:

Senate — J. Joseph Clarke, and Robert L. Dalton, a black State Central Committeeman.

House — Floyd B. Adams, black incumbent; Torrey C. Brown, John W. Douglass, black; Mrs. Lucille Gorham, black; Frank O. Heintz, Marlyn McCarthy, incumbent, Walter S. Orlinsky, incumbent, and James A. Scott, black.

State Central Committee — Percy Davis, black; Robert L. Douglass, black; Robert J. Fitzpatrick, Keith D. Gardi, Mrs. Hattie N. Harrison, black; Samuel J. Lloyd, black; Mrs. Mary Kathleen O'Ferrall, and Joseph G. Robinson.

A third ticket fielded by the Mount Royal Club is headed by Senator Julian L. Lapides, incumbent and only candidate for the upper chamber.

Joseph A. Chester, incumbent, and Samuel H. Davis Jr., are the lone black candidates for the House.

White House candidates include Eugene Blum, Harry P. Schmidt Jr., Mrs. Betty Sunderland, Francis G. French, George B. P. Ward Jr., William G. Flagg.

Others are D. Chester O'Sullivan, Thomas P. Kelly Jr., Loring E. Hawes, Mervin Gray, Howard H. Warner Jr., Sylvan G. Sack and William H. Wiley.

The Bohemian area of the district has the all white ticket. It includes:

Senate — Carl J. Holub, now in the House, Edward J. Albers.

House — Camillo N. Antonelli, incumbent; J. Charles Beasley, William P. Blake Sr., Mrs. Helen B. Cassady, incumbent, Mrs. Margaret P. Cornwell, Thomas P. Sampson, James E. Soul, Courtlandt A. Tyenor.

State Central Committee — Alexander O. Cushing, Robert N. DeLane, Joseph Hertz, Elmer W. Kesting, Anthony L. Kolarik, John F. Peterson, Edward C. Pfisterer, Vincent J. Spicer.

On the Republican side of the picture, there is no primary contest.

Black House candidates are Mrs. Barbara J. Anderson, James C. Dupree, Joseph G. Locks 3rd, Pernell Jones, Robert O. Bonnell Jr., and Leon E. Key. C. E. Barner is another candidate.

Dean asks black 5th D. candidate get together

Walter Dean, a Democratic candidate for the House of Delegates in the city's 5th District, suggested Thursday that the black candidates meet with him and form a black "togetherness platform."

He set the meeting at 9:30 a.m. Sunday at Brice's Hilltop Inn, 5400 block Reisterstown Rd.

In letters to the district's black candidates in the Sept. 15 primary election, Mr. Dean, an instructor at Baltimore Community College, stated:

"During this campaign it has become increasingly clear that a form of barracuda politics is being practiced.

"As black candidates interested in the welfare and concern of our community, we cannot afford division among us.

"It is time for black politicians to set aside petty differences, and form a united front which will gain the power that the black community needs to combat racism and indifference."

Charge Friedel ducks debate with opponents

State Senator Carl L. Friedler has challenged incumbent Samuel N. Friedel to come out of hiding and conduct his congressional campaign like the "representative of the people he claims to be."

"I keep hearing about how Sam is my congressman, and his supporters tell me he ought to be re-elected, but I'd like to hear it from him just once — if I could ever see him in the district," Sen. Friedler said.

"The other challenger and I keep accepting appearances where we're supposed to debate the issues with Mr. Friedel, but it turns out that Friedel doesn't turn up.

"Mr. Friedel has missed an appearance with his opponents in the Democratic primary again, and this debate was a long-scheduled program on WMET television."

Charge Eastside Demos refuse Murphy backing

The AFRO learned from informed sources Thursday that Robert L. Douglass and his Eastside Democratic Organization, sponsors of the half-white ticket, the Clark-Dalton Slate, have refused to endorse a prominent black attorney.

The attorney is William H. Murphy Sr. who is running for a Municipal Court judgeship.

Mr. Douglass and his organization reportedly issued an ultimatum to Mr. Murphy that they would not endorse him unless he persuaded his son, William H. Murphy Jr., a candidate for East Baltimore's Second District House of Delegates seat, to withdraw from the race.

When advised of this report Thursday evening, Mr. Douglass had this comment:

"I have not talked to either of the Murphys about endorsements."

The AFRO asked Murphy Jr. if this threat had been made.

His reply was, "Indeed. It is so. It seems like the Douglass organization will stoop at nothing to try to win. I cannot understand how they consider me the enemy and on the other hand endorse a slate full of white candidates and try to sell these candidates to the black community of Baltimore.

"Furthermore, I guess I am in good company not only will they not support me or my father but they also don't intend to support Milton Allen, the black candidate for States Attorney.

"I think black people are sick and tired of so-called black organizations like the EDO who talk black on one hand and support white candidates all the way down the line on the other hand.

"This is a new kind of slick politics which is much more dangerous than the days of old when Uncle Tom was not ashamed to tell black people they were supporting white candidates only because the white man gave them money."

Mahoney says more arrests is answer

The answer to the nation's crime problem lies in more policemen and more arrests, according to George P. Mahoney, U.S. Senate candidate.

"Take Washington where Senator (Joseph D.) Tydings has been on the Senate Committee for the past five-and-a-half years and where he has been committee chairman since Jan. of 1969," Mr. Mahoney said.

"Although the number of crime index offenses reported in the District of Columbia in 1969 was more than double the number reported in 1953, there were actually fewer arrests made.

"In 1953 the arrest rate the District was 46 per for indictable offense in cent. In 1969 it fell to a mere 16.1 per cent — almost a third of the 1953 rate. Is there any wonder why crime is up?

"Instead of setting up all the commissions and administrative personnel that Sen. Tydings has asked for in the war on crime, I would have asked for more and more policemen until crime was brought under control. It would be cheaper in the long run and our streets would be safer."

New Heroin Substitute Found

al researchers are testing a new three-a-week pill with a tongue-twisting name that might replace the controversial methadone treatment for hard-core heroin addicts.

Dr. Roger O. Egeberg, the government's top health official, dropped a hint of the new drug recently in testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee during hearings on a drug abuse bill.

"We are all aware of the investigations which have been conducted during the past five years in which methadone maintenance is used in the treatment of certain heroin addicts," Edgeberg said "Recently it has been found that alphaacetylmethadol can do as well as methadone for this purpose, and its effects last at least twice as long."

JF Theaters Host Clean Blockers With Comedy

Neighbor rewards children

Mrs. Margaret Hawkins of 912 N. Gilmore St., resident of the block for well over 40 years, decided to get the children together in her block to see if they would be interested in spucing up the ugliness caused by litter.

She called the young people together; a chairman was selected for each side of the street: the eastside, Jean Jackson of 918 N. Gilmore; the westside Charrice Granger of 907 Gilmore.

The youngsters began sweeping and cleaning their blocks. They too were interested in cleaner, healthier surroundings.

Mrs. Hawkins wanted to reward the workers displaying interest in some manner. So she took it upon herself to purchase an assortment of games, such as Nuts To You, Bowling Game, Space Game and others. Also Puzzles, Donald Duck Push Toy, Spinning Tops and other toys.

Not only did this good neighbor purchase these games and toys out of her own pocketbook, but she also bought potato chips, candy and cookies and punch for the boys and girls that helped. Seeing her interest in this community project, the grocer in the block donated some cookies and another neighbor, potato chips. Only a few of the adults in the block assisted Mrs. Hawkins in her project.

Regent Theatre scene of fun for everyone

Last Tuesday morning several hundred AFRO Clean Blockers were treated to a movie by JF Theatres, owners of the Regent Theatre on Pennsylvania Avenue at Pitcher.

The Movie Party was scheduled for 9:30 a.m. but the line began to form before 9. Workers arrived in cars from distances far away from the movie, while others walked from their homes and still others came by bus.

Busy preparing hot dogs, popcorn and cold drinks at the concession stand was Daniel Harrison and Miss Charlee Heggie.

Other employees assisting with the crowd was Joseph Gorman and Mrs. Corn D. Thomas.

The picture shown the youngsters was a comedy, "The Laughing 20's", with Laurel and Hardy, Merrie Melodies Cartoons preceded the picturw. Walter Robolt was projectionist for the showing.

Judging to begin Sunday

Judges for the 36th AFRO Clean Block Campaign will begin the day-long tour of the blocks Sunday. They will leave the AFRO building at 9:30 a.m.

Your block should be sparkling, the alleys clean, no trash or garbage in sight, continued Mrs. Jeanette B. Leath, director.

Shades and curtains should be evenly hung at windows and not blowing outside.

The grass and shrubbery should be neatly trimmed, painting completed and flowers on display.

Accompanying the judges on the tour will be Director Leath, a reporter for the AFRO and a photographer.

Med students help instruct others

A group of students who will be entering their sophomore year in medical school spent their summer orienting black students in what to expect on their freshman year of medical school.

A six-week program, the orientation ran from June 22 to July 31. Money was procured from a private source for 25 students, seven instructors and one secretary.

The students participating in the program came from Morgan, Howard, University of Md., and Maryland State. Most are juniors who have another year before they receive their degree.

Four instructors came from the University of Maryland Medical School and three from the Johns Hopkins Medical School.

The black medical students from the two schools got together in November, 1969 to plan this summer program which would not only help minority groups but motivate blacks in the various fields of medicine.

The program was based at the University of Maryland Medical School in Baltimore.

Most programs that are geared for orienting freshmen in medical school give remedial courses such as basic chemistry. But the planners of this program felt that by "stimulating the freshman year we could be able to improve reading skills and all other deficiencies, and we would also be able to give these students a first-hand look at what medical school is really like."

In this program, the most difficult courses of the freshman year were offered. They were organized into schedules similar to the freshman year at Maryland's medical school.

They are: biochemistry, physiology, gross anatomy, microanatomy and neuroanatomy.

The first three had 30 lectures and the last two had 15 lectures each.

The clinical aspects of medical school were scheduled in the form of one to two-hour patient demonstrations from doctors working on both Maryland's and Hopkins staffs.

Joanne Chambers, a sophomore at the University of Maryland Medical School, told the AFRO, "We won't know actual success until they make it through the first year."

"According to feedback from students, they're learning a lot about themselves, their weaknesses and strong points.

"They are gaining confidence from the program. They feel they can make it through medical school which is the nebulous in the beginning.

"On the whole, students are doing quite well. We are seeing an improvement."

SSA prepares for 22,000 commuters

Social Security officials have asked the Regional Planning Council to draw up plans to head off massive traffic deups when 23,000 employees jam the highways commuting to the Woodlawn Headquarters in about six years.

This employment figure is nearly double the present number of 12,700 and is likely to climb to 30,000 by 1985.

The increase includes 3,500 employees expected to move from Baltimore City to the Baltimore County complex as soon as new offices are constructed.

Congestion problems will be compounded by traffic from other new developmeints in the rapidly expanding western end of Baltimore County.

Several major industries are springing up in the area and one of the region's larfest shopping centers will soon be located on Security Boulevard, just across the beltway from the federal complex.

Social agencies hire 135 students from area schools

The Social Welfare Careers Service of the Health and Welfare Council of the Baltimore Area, Inc. announced today that through its auspices, 135 college students from 57 colleges have been placed in jobs in 41 social agencies, organizations and institutions throughout Maryland.

The students are taking part in the Summer Jobs in Social Work Program which is designed to provide an opportunity for students who have completed their sophomore of junior year of college to test their interest in and aptitude for a career in social work.

The Summer Jobs in Social Work was begun in 1962 under the auspices of the Maryland Chapter of the National Association for Social Workers and is currently administered by the Health and Welfare Council of the Baltimore Area, Inc. The 1970 budget for administration of the program is funded by: Associated Jewish Charities, the Community Chest of the Baltimore Area, the Maryland Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers, the Maryland State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, and the Maryland State Department of Social Services.

Each participating agency pays the salary of the students working in that agency and provides the necessary supervision by experienced social workers on its staff.

Each student is working for a period of eight to twelve weeks in either a public or voluntary agency including hospitals, family agencies, Departments of Public Services, children's institutions, recreation programs, community planing organizations, etc.

Under the close supervision of experience social workers, the students actually does some of the work of the agency. He may be working with individuals, with groups, with community organizations, or with all three.

He may be working with children, teenagers and/or adults. Through his job he learns about the agency, about the skills required of a professional social worker, about people and their problems.

To give the student a broader view of the various areas of social work and to provide additional information about the field, a total group of students has been participating in a series of meetings and in a day of field trips to various agencies.

The Careers Service, in cooperation with the University of Maryland School of Social Work and the University's work-study program, also has placed ten graduate social work students in summer jobs with nine different organizations in the Baltimore area.

These include: American National Red Cross, Baltimore Regional Chapter; Associated Jewish Charities; Baltimore City Department of Planning; Community Chest of the Baltimore Area; Girl Scout Council of Central Maryland; Health and Welfare Council of the Baltimore Area; University Hospital and the "Travelers Aid Society; and the West Baltimore Lutheran Parish, in cooperation with Lutheran Social Services.

Tate maid says scene was 'too much to bear'

By JACK V. FOX

A police officer calmly described Thursday finding body after body strewn around the Sharon Tate estate a year ago and the word "pig" daubed in blood on the white front door of the luxurious home.

Patrolman Jerry DiRosa looked at grisly color photographs of the victims and identified them as the "bodies I observed" in the living room, on the lawn and in a car parked in the driveway.

Winifred Chapman, 55, the maid who first came across the scene of carnage, said it was "too much for her to bear" to describe the mutilated corpses of the beautiful actress, polish writer Voityck Prykowsky, heiress Abigail Folger, hair stylist Jay Sebring and 18-year-old Steven Parent.

Defendant Charles Manson took the witness stand briefly Thursday morning in the absence of the jury to protest bitterly about the "humiliation" to which he said he was subjected in county jail.

His long hair and beard trimmed and uncombed, the 35-year-old defendant looked far from his usual assured self as he testified in support of a motion to order the sheriff to "cease and desist" his harassment.

Manson described the "harassment" he undergoes several times each day in which he is forced to strip naked, open his mouth and wiggle his tongue, turn his head to show each ear, raise his arms, shake out his hair, lift his feet and bend over in the presence of officers and other inmates.

"It is symbolic of humiliation," he said. "It's like kicking a dead man."

Judge Charles H. Older reserved a ruling pending further testimony. Manson admitted other prisoners are similarly searched.

The prosecution scored a telling point in backing up the testimony of previous witness Linda Kasabian by calling John H. Swartz Jr., a former ranch hand at the Spahn ranch where the "Manson family" lived.

Swartz testified that one night in August, 1969, some members of the hippie cult drove away in his white 1960 Ford which bore the license plate GYY435.

Mrs. Kasabian had told the jury they drove to the Tate home in the Swartz car. Another witness Wednesday testified that a car with that license plate was parked near his home not far from the Tate estate in August and that they were using his garden hose.

Mrs Kasabian had testified that Charles "Pex" Watson, Susan Atkins and Patricia Krenwinkel were washing off the blood in which they were drenched during the slayings.

Next door, at 1626 is the Moye family. Mr. and Mrs. William Moye (Nancy) have six children. They have been living here for four years.

Jacqueline is 13, John, 11, William Jr., 10, Francine, 9, Linwood, 7, and Kenneth 3. Mr. Moye has been working for the Canton Railroad for 12 years.

With running a household and seeing after six children, Mrs. Moye still finds time to be advisor for the clean block campaign. She is the one who has helped Olive along when things were rough. Olive is happy to have her as her advisor.

"So far, it has been good being the advisor. The neighbors are co-operative," said Mrs. Moye. Mrs. Moye enjoys all types of sports.

This reporter talked to Mrs. Moye's nine-year-old daughter Francine. Fran cine likes school and in the summer time she likes to play and swim.

Remember the pictures in the movies where the guy marries the girl next door.

There is a similar case on Bradish Ave. Charles Pryor married the girl down the street.

Charles was sitting on the steps of his mother-in-law's home (1616) talking with a friend. Charles has been married for five years. He works at Western Electric.

His wife is Mrs. Maudrie Murphy Pryor's parents are employed by Social Security at Woodlawn. The couple has a two-year-old daughter, Jeneen.

Mrs. Pryor's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James L. Murphy (Ethel). They have been living here for 16 years. Mr. Murphy has been employed at Sparrows Point for 16 years.

As for the block, Charles thinks it is a "lot better." Across the street is the Gulf Oil Company. Before that, a brick shoe Company was there but it burned down.

During this time, dirt, dust and noise was overtaking the block But, things are different now.

For such spotless fronts and the upkeep of the oil company, Braddish Ave. is on this year's AFRO Clean Block Honor Roll.

My next stop was at the home of Charles' mother, Mrs. Velma Fogus. She has been living at 1622 for 17 years. Mrs. Fogus spends much of her time raising flowers.

During the summer heat waves, she spends most of her time in-doors enjoying her air conditioner.

Next door, at 1624 are Willard and Rosalie Wilkes. They have been living here for about seven years.

The couple has five children: Beatrice, Alfonso, Wardell, Lynwood, and Jerry.

Mrs. Wilkes is a housewife. Mr. Wilkes has been with the Ravens Copper and Brass Co. for 30 years.

They are life-time members of Central Union Baptist Church.

Small streets are like small towns. They are cozy and friendly little streets that reminds this reporter of a large family living and working together.

In such a large metropolitan city as Baltimore, it is nice to know that urban dwellers can get a taste of small-town living with a city flair.
