Dr. Lu Tour speaker for beauticians

BIRMINGHAM, Alabama — (Special) — "You can get anything you want through love, peace and service", Dr. Lou Lu Tour said to a capacity audience at The Tutwiler Hotel, here, Monday night.

Dr. Lu Tour, giving the keynote address for the 26th Annual Award Dinner of The Southern Beauty Congress, said many of the demonstrations that are going on today aren't necessary. There is nothing a person could desire that he cannot obtain through demonstrating genuine love for his fellowman, and a willingness to serve."

Following her address Mrs. Ruth J. Jackson, chairman of The Southern Beauty Congress, presented Dr. Lu Tour with a plaque for the 1970 Award.

Performer gets $25 check

The hour-long special in which he appeared was produced by Baltimore area residents and featured the talents of the ballet dance of black Americans. Also appearing on the program were Marsha Coates, the Baltimore Ballet, the Fellowship Chapel, The Arena Players and The Creatives, a modern dance group.

In the letter, Reas' benefactor praised his performance as being "superb" and stated "for me, it was the highlight of the program."

It isn't every performer who opens his fan mail and finds a letter, but James Russ Miller, a Baltimore dancer, is one such lucky performer.

Miller, who recently appeared on WBAL-TV's Aug. 9 presentation of "Songs For My People," received a letter and a rarity by performers: a check for the performance during the telecast.
