Advice on buying a house

Charles A. Skirven, prominent Catonsville area realtor, will speak on the subject "The Role of Your Realtor in Buying a House" on Wednesday, December 2 at the Grace A M E Church, 87 Winters Lane, Catonsville.

This is the third in a series of four meetings jointly sponsored by the Catonsville Fair Housing Council and the Western YMCA on the topic "Counseling for Home-Buying." The public is encouraged to attend. Coffee will be served from 7:30 p.m.; the program will follow.

The final program in this series is scheduled for Wednesday, January 27, at Grace A M E Church at 7:30. This meeting will be a panel discussion of the problems, prejudices, and fears involved when a black family moves into a previously all-white neighborhood.

taken off his arm and eight one dollar bills were removed from my right overcoat pocket."

While the robbery was in progress, a patrol car carrying two officers passed the robbery scene where Sgt. Harry A. Gonzales, 30, reported he saw four men leaning over an elderly man who was on the ground.

The officer and his partner reported that they jumped out of the patrol car and Sergeant Gonzales pursued the four assailants up over the railroad tracks while the second officer rendered aid to Mr. Morton.

Sgt. Gonzales stated that he chased the men "up the hill and onto the track when one of them turned and I felt something hit my shoulder."

The officer reported that he had called "Halt, police! twice to the fleeing suspects and that when one of them turned he "saw something shiny in his hand," before he fired the bullet which struck 16-year-old Dwayne Boyer in the chest and killed him.

After the shooting, Sgt. Gonzales' partner reported that he went to the area of the railroad tracks to give assistance and found Boyer lying on the ground and bleeding from a bullet wound in the chest.

A man's trench coat and a .25 caliber automatic were found 134 feet from the body.

There was no report of medical treatment for Sgt. Gonzales.

FRIENDS of deceased Thomas E. Blake, 48, who are seeking to mount an investigation of the circumstances of his death are left, Nathaniel Coleman and Mrs. Ella Wright. Preliminary information indicates that the injured merchant mariner was ousted from a bar in East Baltimore and died from additional injuries received when he was bodily thrown out of the place. Police officers are said to be involved, and the Police Department is conducting its own investigation. Mr. Blake died Sunday night at the Public Health Hospital.

GUTTED is the building at Gwynns Falls Parkway and Reisterstown Rd. by an early morning fire Tuesday, more than 35 persons who lived in apartments above the drug store were made homeless and damage was estimated to be in the multiple thousands of dollars. (AFRO photo by I. Henry Phillips) referred to the director for study and action, when discrepancies in payments were discovered.

In the earlier complaint, Nicholas C. Mueller, chairman, promised that the systems of grants would be re-studied.

What is really wanted, the commission asetold, is that be vendor forms be deleted and the recipient be given he full grant so "she can shop around with dignity" for the best buys.

Presented earlier was the agency's proposed budget for the coming fiscal year, representing a general fund increase from $70,840,149 to $101,106,638.

This is an increase of $30,266,489, or a hike of 42.7 percent in these funds.

Also requested were 840 additional positions, an increase of 18.2 percent.

The fiscal year saw appropriations for 180,502 recipients. The number projected for the coming year is 205,511.

was shot again in the right foot and struck to the ground by a blow from a revolver.

The wounded man is quoted by police as saying when the passengers were all seated in the car, the vehicle pulled off at high speed.

Police summoned the ambulance which took Mr. Burch to the hospital. Investigating officers report they have warrants for suspects.

Black artists on exhibit at Old Town

The second in the series, "Loose Leaf Pages of Black History," sponsored jointly by the Committee of Citizens for Black History Exhibit and the Peale Museum can be seen after the opening Sunday, November 29, each Tuesday through Friday, 10-3 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday, 1 to 6 p.m.

There is no admission fee but an illustrated catalog is on sale. School groups may call the chairman of the exhibit at 448-0446 or Peale Museum at PL 2-2000 Ext. 2154 to arrange guided tours.

The Citizens for the Black History Exhibits say that these paintings were gathered for the University Art Museum of the University of Texas as a result of basic research by Professor James of the Department of Art, Morgan State College, who also wrote the catalog for the exhibit used at the first showing in Austin, Texas and the second showing in Boston Massachusetts.

In Boston the paintings8 were located at the Elma Lewis School of Fine Arts, National Center of Afro-American Artists in Boston.

Simms who admits with some laughter and bitterness that he has been in "more houses than more people in Annapolis" gave special tribute to Mayor Roger (Pip) Moyer, who has been his friend and supporter even before he left his life on the otherside of the law. Zastro was the man of the hour with many people remembering how he has begged and dogged everyone for his center.

He succeeded in getting tickets to football, baseball and basketball games for the children; begged busses and transportation from private citizens and anyone who has had something he needed. The Annapolis businessmen received special attention from Zastro and his assistant Reynolds, for consistently constructing whatever was requested.

The Center was opened in 1968 with nothing. It is now beginning to have an organized program including swimming and dancing lessons and includes an equipped playground with projected swimming pool.

Food for the affair was contributed and prepared by mothers and other supporters of the Center with music by the Morrells.

Among those present for "Zastro's" Hour of Triumph were: George Phelps, William (Bill) Reese, City Councilmen Parker and Chambers; John Carrol; Thomas Hunt; Walter Blasingham; Mrs. Rollie Matthews who also spends time working with children of all ages through the Y.W.C.A. and the Center, and many others.

Zastro ended his program with a gently but nevertheless meaningful warning that his next project would be a football team for his children.

All who know and love this man who gives all of himself to children and people are convinced that telephones will be ringing, doorbells will chime and Zastro will be "riding again."

—McKissick

McKissick directed the affairs of the Durham CORE chapter and was State Adviser of the NAACP Youth Groups. In 1963, he was elected National Chairman of CORE, and in 1966, he was appointed National Director, succeeding James Farmer. McKissick, as National Director, assumed the responsibility of reorganizing CORE from the business as well as the philosophical point of view.

McKissick's plan for CORE was a six-point program for black power and self-determination encompassing economic power, political power, community self-image, the development of black leadership, the enforcement of federal laws, and the mobilization of black consumers.

In 1968, Mr. McKissick, resigned as CORE's head in order to spend full time helping build the black economy which he first advocated twenty-five years earlier. His current undertaking, Floyd B. McKissick Enterprises, Inc., is a national company formed to help organize and finance substantial black business across the nation.

Mr. McKissick will speak as part of the UMBA Student Government Lecture Series. The address will take place December 2 at 8 P.M. in the Student Activities Room of the Student Union. The public is invited. There is a $1 charge for admission.

CCB strives for record in democracy

By DR. SIDNEY KOBRE

The 26 departments at the Community College of Baltimore operate under a democratic system, seldom found in universities or colleges.

The faculty members in each department elect their own chairman and assistant chairman. They remain in office for two years, then come up for a vote again.

At the beginning of this term, we told about the election of Prof. Edward Meyers as chairman of the CCB English department. Now a new election has been held, with Prof. Joel I. Glasser becoming the assistant chairman, the choice of this large and growing department.

Prof. Glasser's election is a result of the expansion of courses and the addition of a number of full-and part-time instructors in this department, which is under the general direction of Dr. Martin S. Reff, dean of the faculty.

In an interview, Prof. Glasser told about the department and his new duties. "We cannot overstress the importance of communicating today," he said. "Our department seeks, therefore, to develop the oral and written skills of students. For those with creative writing ability, we give the background necessary for their growth. For those who need to know technical writing, such as future engineers, the department provides a course which meets their needs.

Mr. Glasser pointed out that the new courses in World Literature furnish a wide perspective for students who want to understand the writers of other countries.

For the young black and white student, a course in Afro-American literature is given. Through it, the student is exposed to principal writers from the period beginning with slavery to the 1960's.

The literature is representative of the Black man's culture, revealing his concept of himself. All students benefit by the course which brings a better understanding of the black man and his problems in White America, the educator said.

A quiet-spoken teacher who is at the same time outspoken, Prof. Glasser P.M. in the Student Activities Room of the Student Union. The public is invited. There is a $1 charge for admission.

In 1953, then enrolled at the Johns Hopkins University, where, as an English-educational major, he received his B.A. degree.

At the Johns Hopkins University, he continued his studies under an Esso Foundation Fellowship in linguistics and literary criticism.

Hopkins awarded him the M.A.A., master of liberals arts, a teaching degree. Later he began his work for the doctorate at Catholic University.

Prof Glasser foresees considerable expansion of the English department at CCB, with the introduction of new courses and new methods of tea
