EXPLANATION — Simon Peter of Galilee (Howard Keel) tries to explain to Princess Fara (Susan Kohner) the power of Jesus and His teachings, which she doesn't want to believe because of her determination to murder her father, Herod Antipas. A scene from Rowland V. Lee's production of the Lloyd C. Douglas novel, "The Big Fisherman," held over for a 3rd big week at the Met, starring Keel, Miss Kohner, John Saxon, Martha Hyer and Herbert Lom. The Buena Vista release, directed by Frank Borzage, is presented in color by Technicolor, Panavision 70 and stereophonic sound.

FRANK SINATRA and Gina Lollobrigida enjoy a lovers' quarrel in a scene from "Never So Few," MGM film version (in CinemaScope and color) of Tom Chamales' best-selling novel dealing with a wartime romance set against a backdrop of guerilla jungle fighting in Burma during World War II. Co-starred are Peter Lawford, Steve McQueen, Richard Johnson, Paul Henreid, Brian Donlevy and Dean Jones. It is at the Harlem.

FIRST RUN FILMS

TEN COMMANDMENTS' ON THE ROYAL'S SCREEN

Cecil B. DeMille's epoch making production of "The Ten Commandments," currently at the Royal Theatre, is just a chance to see this mighty film before it is taken out of release.

Acclaimed by audiences, the press and the pulpit as one of history's greatest motion pictures, the VistaVision—Technicolor masterwork has been playing to capacity audiences most immense spectacle.

Ten years in the making, the dramatization of the life of Moses has a huge starring cast headed by Charlton Heston, Yul Brynner, Anne Baxter, Edward G. Robinson, Yvonne De Carlo, a supporting cast of distinguished stars and 25,000 extras.

The three-hour-thirty-nine-minute — Paramount picture filmed in part at authentic biblical sites in Egypt, backgrounds the reverent story of Exodus with screen history's most immense spectacle.

FOUR POPULAR STARS IN REGENT'S OFFERING

One of the most important motion pictures of the season, the new Hal Wallis production, "Career," is now at the Regent Theatre with a cast headed by four brilliant and popular stars, Dean Martin, Anthony Franciosa, Shirley MacLaine and Carolyn Jones, supported by Joan Blackman and Robert Middleton.

"Career" is based on the stage play by James Lee, about the climb to success of a young actor who lets nothing and nobody stand in his way to the top.

Anthony Franciosa plays an actor and reaches new heights as a performer with his delineation of the ambition-obsessed man.

The fact that the man is in show business is actually incidental to the plot, which could concern itself just as fittingly with a man in any other line of endeavor, who was so driven so dedicated to fulfill himself.

In his rise from the lowest rung on the ladder Franciosa meets Dean Martin, penniless director who is just as ambitious as Franciosa and a lot less idealistic.

Martin, with his eye ever on the main chance, manages to dissolve the daughter of a top Broadway producer, and through her gets the breaks he couldn't get on his own.

When Franciosa looks to his now-successful "friend" for help, he is cynically told to wise up on the ways of helping himself. Franciosa takes it from there, and forges ahead to his goal.

TERROR IS A MAN' NOW AT NEW ALBERT

"Terror Is A Man," now playing at the New Albert Theatre, has a scene so shocking that a bell system has been installed to protect the squeamish and the faint-hearted.

The management suggests that at the sound of the bell you close your eyes and keep them closed until the second bell rings.

The film which stars Francis Lederer, Greta Thyssen and Richard Derr is a unique and off-beat terror film.

From the first moment, when Richard Derr, as the sole survivor of a mysterious shipboard explosion, drifts in an open boat towards a lonely and desolate beach, until the very end, an eerie aura of mystery and terror is sustained.

Greta Thyssen stars in "Terror Is A Man" as the lonely woman tormented by the knowledge that what she is doing is against the laws of nature.

Miss Thyssen, who first achieved international fame as Miss Denmark of 1954, has just been selected "most photogenic actress of 1959."

Francis Lederer stars as the man with an obsession so great that he willingly abandons his family, fortune and career to satisfy his terrible desire.

FRANKIE AND GINA IN HARLEM'S FILM

"A thorough professional!"

This sums up the opinion of everyone associated with Italy's beautiful Gina Lollobrigida, from the time of her arrival at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer through the weeks in which she co-starred with Frank Sinatra in "Never So Few," now playing at the Harlem.

Since the film is Miss Lollobrigida's first in America, she was the object of more than casual observation.

From the standpoint of the classic features and hourglass figure which have made her an international symbol of feminine appeal, she left nothing to be desired. On the screen and off, Miss Lollobrigida is an eye-stopper.

But what impressed her co-workers, from Sinatra to script clerks, was the fact that Miss Lollobrigida does not trade on her ample physical assets alone.

From first pre-production conferences it was evident that she was gifted with an intuitive dramatic talent and a rapier-like intelligence.

No detail of a scene is too small to escape her attention. She has a capacity for intense concentration and is never satisfied.

If her performance in a scene can be improved, she is eager to try. No matter how much additional effort and time is required, she is interested only in giving her best.

The Choral Society, new musical group, to make appearance in '60

By ADAH K. JENKINS

Highlighting the 125th Anniversary of the Christmas Conference of Methodism in the United States, was the program given by the Baltimore Great Hymns Choir, under the direction of the Rev. Daniel Ridout Sr.

The celebration, which lasted a week, was held at the Lovely Lane Methodist Church, St. Paul and Twenty-first Sts.

The evening proved to be a most rewarding one, both musically and spiritually.

As Dr. Ridout stated in his announcements "The choir is a living testimony of the faith of the individual members, whose music ministry is devoted almost exclusively to the glorification of the hymn."

The choir, which is interracial and interfaith, with members from many walks of life, including professional musicians, imbues its singing with the genuine atmosphere of fellowship.

The Great Hymns Choir grew out of Dr. Ridout's firm conviction that "Hymn singing can be beautiful and one of life's richest and most rewarding experiences."

VARIETY WAS introduced in various ways. Loretta Dorsey, a promising Peabody student, was soloist in "Arise, My Soul." In another hymn the female voices sang, with the male voices humming. This process was reversed on another stanza, with tenor and bass singing the melody. With the various parts sung accurately and clearly, one can appreciate the fine musical worth of the hymns.

During several of the numbers, the audience was asked to join in the final stanzas. In the second group of hymns, there were selections from the Presbyterian hymnal.

Dr. Ridout taps the varied resources of his Methodist hymnal, not using the same familiar meters (hymn tunes), but employing some from the "Salzburg Psalters and the Psalmodia Sacra of 1715. The modern writers were not omitted either and the commemorative hymn was the late Ralph Vaughn Williams' "For All The Saints."

Wendall Wright's tenor was clear and trumpet like in the spiritual, "Go Tell It on the Mountain."

Charlene Moore, an instructor in the department of music of the public school, played a flute obligato which enhanced the effect of the English carol "Snow Lay on the Ground."

The gifted soprano, Hazel Bryant, who is studying at Oberlin was soloist with fine effect in "Balm in Gilead," a spiritual arranged by Dr. Ridout.

The choir was given a standing ovation by the capacity audience of Methodist clergy and their wives.

WITH THE arrival of 1960 a new choral group appears on the musical horizon in Baltimore. Known as The Choral Society, the organization will hold its first rehearsal Tuesday, Jan. 19 at 8 p.m. at the Madison Avenue YWCA, 1900 block Madison Ave.

The founder and conductor is Shellman Johnson, a young musician who has gained considerable experience in conducting since he organized a community choir from among his high school classmates.

Mr. Johnson has already rehearsed a number of singers who are interested in serious study of the best literature. There are a few vacancies and auditions will be held to fill them on Tuesday evening. Interested singers may meet the conductor at the YWCA or call Madison 3-5724.

Liquor Board suspends Club 13 license

The license of Club 13, located in the unit block Schroeder St., suspended for 120 days four months.

On Wednesday, Thomas F. McNulty, chairman of the Liquor Board, informed the owners, Weiner and Joseph Oliver, that the current license period expires on April 30. The club license may be permanently revoked.

According to police, the location has been watched over a period of 60 days and undercover men for the Police Department narcotics squad raided the night spot "the former headquarters for one of the biggest narcotics peddlers."

WASHINGTON

"The Happiest Days of Our Life," a farce comedy by John Dighton, will be presented by the Howard University drama department and the Howard players, Wednesday, through January next Saturday in the Little Theatre, Spaulding Hall, on the university campus at 8 p.m.

The play, unlike anything the Players have performed in recent years, is a comedy centered around school life and will star Barbara Lewis and Donald Hall.

Other members of the cast include Marie Jones, Becky West and Oscar Crance. The play is under the direction of James W. Ritchie of the Drama Department with scenery by William T. Brown.

Chicago writers to honor Banks

CHICAGO (ANP) — Ernie Banks, the National League most valuable player and Bill King, head a list of baseball stars who will be honored at the 20th annual diamond dinner of the Chicago Baseball Writers at the Palmer House here, Jan. 11. He will be honored along with Nellie Fox of the White Sox, who won the MVP award in the American League.

The slugging Chicago Cubs' shortstop and Fox each will receive an award as Chicago's player of the year. They will be among six honored guests to be feted at the dinner. The others are Robin Roberts, Hank Bauer, Glen Hobbie and Jimmie Dykes.

Banks is a two-time winner of the MVP award, having won it in 1958.
