'Tops' say guests of AKA supper dance

A social success of this winter season was the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority's formal supper dance on Friday last, in the beautifully appointed Alcazar.

From the first dance notes of Stan Bridges' orchestra, through the abundantly prepared supper served to the 900 guests, to the singing of the sorority hymn at midnight, the 90 Epsilon Omega Chapter hostesses provided an evening which set a new high in lavish entertainment in Baltimore circles.

Soror Margaret Jackson directed the singing of the AKA Hymn and Soror Charlotte Swann played the piano accompaniment.

At the guest table were Mr. and Mrs. Warren Brinkley of Philadelphia, week - end guests of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Dedmond. (Mrs. Emma Brinkley was elected first - supreme anti - basileus at the December Boule of the Sorority). Other special guests included the two Eastern Shore doctors, the husband - wife team, Dr. Bessie Small and Dr. H. L. Small of Denton, Md.

Counted among special guests, too were Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Bright since Dennis has just taken office as North Atlantic Regional Director, having jurisdiction over Epsilon Omega.

There were many warm, welcoming smiles when Mrs. Alice Arrington appeared with Mr. and Mrs. Abdella Campbell and escorted by Hutson L. Lovell, New York attorney.

The supper, served in 12 minutes at a cost of $2 from Dance Chairman Cleo Diggs, included roast beef, corned beef, sliced turkey, baked ham, Switzer cheese, American cheese, potato salad, tomato cole slaw, potato salad, assorted pickles and olives, rolls and breads, and steaming coffee.

And speaking of persons in the fashion spotlight, Cleo Diggs was certainly fetching in a lucious red bottle - shaped cocktail dress, draped from the waist in delicate folds at the knee line. Emma Bright was in white chiffon, with tiny rhinestone straps, shirred bodice, and matching white slippers.

Without a doubt, there were gowns of every description. Name and hue. Bernice Monroe was an eye - catcher in white, a short length gown which had a balloon size bow accentuating her tiny waistline and reaching to the floor, over which she wore a bright red taffeta evening coat.

Other eye - catchers were Gwendolyn Tartler in a pink brocade ensemble; Ida Hawkins (dance co - chairman) in multi - colored chiffon; Beatrice Butler in an Italian Import, a pure silk, orange flowered sheath with a petal neckline; Leila Terry in a gold metallic wrap - a - round, gently draped dress; and Leona Carpenter in three tiers of white organza.

In the line of stunningly different gowns, something to see, was Basileus Vernlece Reynolds in an old - rose colored tunic - type, floor length gown, each tier being tucked, with a matching short stole.

Lillian Ross was a beauty in a pale yellow satin sheath on which was embroidered large yellow flowers, complemented by a Grecian bow above the waist line and gold, daring slippers. Speaking of gold, Bonnie Lee Was a study in gold, wearing yards of gold net over gold lame, with gold slippers, tiara, slave bracelet, and gold Spunik earrings.

The bride in Epsilon Omega, Florence Dennis Bailey, was radiant in a dainty flowered metalic sheath, one of her trousseau dresses. Then Waltee Doles looked like a doll in white bouffant with flowers nipping in the waist all along one side.

And statuesque and striking was Charlotte Harper in a full-length white satin ball gown with a matching stole lined in vivid green.

Designers gowns were in numbers. Among them was Margaret Buck in an egg shell colored short gown with a folded collar above a low cut back, criss - cross bodice, and softly falling front panel. A beautifully, back detailed frock was the Grapless black lace gown worn by Katherine Gross featuring lace over blue with a blue bow in the back from the top to the hemline, and then black silk slippers on her beautifully shaped feet.

Sue Miles in creamy white satin fitted at the waist, draping to the knees, with gold beads at the top, and Beatrice Lomax, who selected beige imported lace with silk organza at the top and bottom, with shoes of the same fabric.

And, I hear that was quite a frock that the writer, Betty Williams, wore herself: a stunning long - sleeved, shocking blue sheath with the back cut to the waist.—Garrett)

In the line of jewelry, Barbara Ann Tabb was all smiles; and rightly so, over the full-carat solitaire Irvin Thomas placed on her third finger during evening before Marionette Croxton, ever demure and sweet, wearing deep red lace, was escorted by her godson, Leo Hollen, and was wearing the Hollen - Croxton diamond - modern dinner ring with a diamond setting, a gift from her late husband Bob Croxton.

Not with all the affair was a dance, and the dancing was featured.

Having a hilarious time was "Junky" Wood leading a chain line with his lovely wife Dot giving support as Thelma Bell, Bertha Forte, Betty Williams, Carrie Stokes, and Lillie Mae Young followed. Folks really joined the Madison Lines formed near the end of the evening.

In one group was Ed Young calling while Beatrice Myers, Leila Terry, John Myers, Anna Williams, Beatrice Holley, and Edith Davidson followed. Then, Harry Bruce, the Master Caller, as Margaret Driver, Cleo Diggs, Mamie Todd, Rebecca Davis, and Ellen Howard kept up.

At one o'clock when the orchestra played the last notes, the hostesses and guests were all in a glow over wonderful food and rhythmic dance music and happy friendships.

Mr. and Mrs. Ardis Pridgen celebrate golden anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Ardis Pridgen of 1803 E. Federal St. celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage at a reception in their home on Saturday.

The couple was feted by their six children on the occasion. They are also grandparents of 11; and great grandparents of one child.

MARRIED IN Rocky-Mount, S.C., where they had grown up the same neighborhood and attended the same schools, they have lived in this city since 1910.

Mrs. Pridgen, the former Miss Betty Davis, was 16 at the time of their marriage. He was 21.

THEIR CHILDREN are James Russell, Mrs. Verna Rice, McCoy Pridgen; Alton Pridgen and Miss Betty Pridgen of this city, and Mrs. Elmira Jones of Boston.

AT THE reception on Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Pridgen repeated their vows and received the blessing of the Rev. Walter Paige of Faith Baptist Church, of which they are members.

Attending the reception were: Messrs. and Mesdames Elmer Austin, William Jessie Jr., Wallace Irby, M. Redmond, M. Pridgen, Herbert Anderson of this city.

Messrs. and Mesdames Tarcas of Richmond, Va.; Charles Jones, Jr., Smith, Dyers, Richard Pridgen, M. Messrs. Pridgen, Walter Matthews, Percy Pridgen, Leroy Pridgen, Lloyd Schwiden, and Mesdames Mary Garrett.

IT IS in fact, a season of different sorority dances.

Saturday night, Zeta Phi Beta has held forth in the Madison Avenue branch YWCA, at flower bedecked, candle - lighted tables, which fruitful scores of beautifully crocked femmes, and more than a sprinkling of gentlemen to lend that feminine touch.

That "Weaver of hats" Olivia Bates (Mrs.) did, for this occasion her choice was a cloche of tiny blue flowers, which she wore above a navy frock the top of which was lace over flesh chiffon.

Basileus Ruth Cleaver was in a stark white sheath with a black feather at the hemline for contrast, and stately Mildred C. Boone, who is as brilliant as she is good to look at, chose brown, lace, with a fetching neckline that featured a band of mink from shoulder to shoulder at back. Her glitter hat in red sequins was a fetching note.

She, by the way, is chief psychiatric social worker at Central State Hospital in Petersburg, Va., and second national anti - basileus of the sorority.

Chairman Elizabeth Denby wore a jewel - sprinkled frock and a tiny contour hat, and Carrie D. Scott was in an all blue ensemble, the frock chiffon, the hat flowers.

A sonor (May W. Fortune) and a guest (Catherine Adams) lent spring to the punch with elegant straw chapeaux. Mrs. Fortune's number was natural, with a red rose at the front, and Mrs. Adams, orchid, and PARTICIPANTS in the 40th anniversary celebration that marked Founder's Day of Alpha Zeta chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority in Baltimore, Saturday evening, were, left to right, Mrs. Arizona Cleaver Stemons, of Philadelphia, a founder; Mrs. Josephine C. Smith of Washington, speaker, and Mrs. Olivia Bates, Baltimore, who presided.

Zeta Phi Betas urged to lift burden of present day youth

The great responsibility of proving that the stereotype of the colored American is false lays a heavy burden on present day youth, Mrs. Josephine C. Smith of Washington told Zeta Phi Beta sorors, here Saturday evening.

Mrs. Smith, a member of Beta Zeta Chapter in the capital, is director of elementary education in charge of administration in Washington.

DEPLORING the trend towards dishonesty, where virtue has gone out of fashion and everyone seems somehow for nothing, the speaker urged a return to the tried and tested virtues.

"We must teach children to accept responsibility. We must set the right example for our youth," Mrs. Smith said.

TO PAVE the way towards a better atmosphere for young people, Mrs. Smith gave five points of advice.

First, said she, every woman must be a voter herself and see that her neighbors were on the voter books.

Second, said she, women must continue to work for equal laws throughout the country.

Third, said she, there is a necessity to work with real estate dealers and stop perpetuating ghettos. Three colored families in an average block are enough.

Fourth bit of advice given the group was for an all - out fight on obscene literature. "We must make it impossible for someone who is concerned only with making money to let our children's clean minds with filth," said she.

And fifth, we must stay in God's hand, for it is only there that we find faith and asks for strength, Mrs. Smith told the group. Mrs. Smith was introduced by Soror Carrie D. Scott.

THE OCCASION was the Founder's Day observance and celebration of the 40th anniversary of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority.

The celebration was in form of a banquet in the Madison Avenue branch of the YWCA, and was presided over by Soror Olivia Bates.

Music was presented by the Zeta Ensemble under direction of Soror Thelma C. Ashe. Soror Goldia Ford was at the piano.

The invocation was by Soror Ruth W. Cleaver, the basileus of Alpha Zeta chapter. "Sounds of the day" was given by Soror Ethel Thompson.

A "living picture of the Eve Pearlie Mae Jones, Soors Reva G. Lewis, Julian A. Quinn, Ruth L. Boswell, Mary B. Hurt and Althea S. Cornish. Readers were Sorors Beatrice Pitts and Ethel D. Hodges.

SPECIAL HONOREES were the mothers of the sorors, and past basileus of the chapter.

The latter, including Sorors Thelma C. Ashe, MAY W. Fortune, Alice Hall, Beatrice H. Hall, Beatrice V. Mayo, Janet Moore, Ethel M. Payne and Ethel Thompson.

All received gifts from the chapter. The presentations were made by Soror Mary C. Pratter.

The final remarks and presentations of guests was by Soror Clarissa

SORORS Elizabeth Denby, Ethel Hall, Janet Moore, Chairmen of Day Committee, Other members were Sorors Reiner Dorsey, Emma D. Dudley, Mary A. Frazier, Ethel Hall, Soors Annie W. Johnson, Katharine O. Johnson, Ethel Lee, Clarissa M. Powell, Ruth Russell and Carrie D. Scott.
