How Baltimoreans worship...

GREETING WORSHIPPERS as Kay arrived at the Leadenhall Baptist Church on Sunday were the Rev. Rosamond Kay, pastor of Second Baptist Church of New Castle, Pa., who delivered the morning message, and the Rev. Thomas B. Davis, Leadenhall minister. Women on forward line are, from left: Mrs. Ida Mae Ash, 1302 Park Ave.; Mrs. Mary Pitts, 912 McKean Ave., and Mrs. Arnetta Johnson, 156 West St.

Leadenhall Baptist Church is S. Baltimore landmark

After the Civil War and the 13th Emancipation of Negroes proclaimed freedom, many Negroes left Virginia and other Southern states and settled in South Baltimore.

There were many Baptists among these emigrants.

In 1872, the Maryland Baptist Union Association, after a five year study of the situation being colored Baptists found them worshipping in one small S. Baltimore church which was located in a blacksmith shop.

SEEING THE need for a church building, the union held a meeting on Sunday, March 31, 1872 and $8,000 was subscribed for this purpose.

A large lot was subsequently leased on Leadenhall near Ave. Cross St.

Construction of the church began at 9:00 a.m. and church was built in one day. This was the beginnings of the present Leadenhall Baptist Church.

FROM A beginning membership of eight, the church has grown through the years to an active membership of 1,500 with an average Sunday attendance of 500.

In addition to being a traditional house of worship in the area, it is also the center of many civic and community activities.

The schools of the area use the church halls for study of their programs and it is also the meeting place for many civic and educational meetings such as NAACP, parent teachers, etc.

The church holds a life membership in the NAACP and also serves as the South Baltimore headquarter for the organization.

THE FIRST sermon of the present pastor, Dr. Thomas B. Davis was delivered on Nov. 21, 1948, and was based on the 14th chapter of Joshua and the 10th verse. "Now, Therefore give me the mountain."

In a 10th anniversary program dedication to their pastor in 1958, representatives of the congregation stated:

"Today as we look back to that day, ten years ago and survey the work of our pastor, we feel that his request 'to give me this mountain' is to a large extent being granted."

NEXT MONTH, in keeping with the pastor's belief in "keeping up and beautifying the church," a beautiful educational building will be completed and will be used for the Sunday School.

Since Dr. Davis came to Leadenhall Baptist Church from the Calvary Baptist Church Kilmarnock, Va. a total of $11,000 has been raised and spent on improvements for the church.

Among the improvements are: exterior restoration, Roman Stone to the front of the church and stucco on the sides and back.

Repairing, painting and decorating the interior, enlarging the choir loft, new pews, pulpit and communion furniture, and carpets in the main auditorium and new chairs and furniture for the choir loft, and linoleum.

DR. DAVIS is the seventh leader of the church. The other pastors were:

The Rev. Thomas Henson 1872-?

The Rev. J. C. Allen, 1875-74.

The Rev. Amanda Brown.

The Rev. Robert W. Jefferson.

GEORGE V. LOUTTIER, 78, Dr. Davis has this to say: "They are loyal members. Both the men and women have been here, they have been very enthusiastic and really faithful to the church and its pastors."

Born in Birmingham, Ala., the Rev. Mr. Davis received his A.B., B.D. and D.D. from Virginia Union University, Richmond.

He is married to the former Miss Lucy Virginia Johnson of Richmond. They have no children.

THE MANY activities of MRS. DAVIS attended the public schools of Richmond, is a graduate of Virginia Union and has done some graduate work at Columbia University.

Both Rev. and Mrs. Davis are active in this community. In addition to many civic organizations, the Rev. Mr. Davis is a member of the trustee board of Provident Hospital and member of the Executive Board of the NAACP.

MRS. DAVIS as a past matron of the Order of Eastern Star and a member of the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority.

As the head of the church, she has had this to say: "There are loyal members, both the men and women have been here, they have been very enthusiastic and really faithful to the church and its pastors."

She is also president of the auxiliary committee and the pastor's aide.

Mrs. Davis, who joined the church when he was 13 years old, is the oldest member from the point of view, is Mrs. Lucy Virginia Union University, Richmond. Druid Hill Avenue.

How Baltimoreans live....

City life is fun for this couple

The row house has not lost its charm even though the recent trend has been toward the suburban mear-mansion one can "walk all the way around."

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Ayers (Dorothy) have lived in a charming little row house at 323 N. Allendale St. for a year now and they are still in love with it.

A small house — approximately 14 feet wide and 30 feet deep — gives the impression of the city dweller who just wants to get away from the traffic in comparison to the city dweller who seeks to get away from neighbors.

NOT QUITE on the outskirts of the city, the Ayers home is situated on the south side of Edmondson Ave., three blocks above Hilton St.

It is neatly and quietly nestled in among a row of other houses each like the other, in natural brick, with a white, half-way porch about two feet from the ground.

At the front of the home is just enough grass not to tire the Ayers' out with trimming it. The front lawn is about 30 feet long. The back yard is longer.

The front doorof the home opens directly into the living room which takes up the entire width of the house. In front of the door is the stairway.

White ceilings give a spacious effect to the first two rooms which also have quiet green walls.

Mrs. Ayers, who is petite and cheerful, has taken pains to furnish her home so it reflects her own personality.

Windows in the living room are draped in sparkling white persella curtains. The front window is further dramatized by an aqua and white ceramic lamp on a fruitwood provincial step-table.

On the wall opposite the stairway are two sections of a three-piece sofa in glittering brown tweed.

Above the sofa is a mirrored shadow box holding sketches and knacks. On one side of the sofa is a step-table and lamp matching the one near the window, and on the opposite side, Mrs. Ayers has a fruitwood corner stand holding ceramic figures.

BETWEEN HER front door and the pretetly dramatized window, is a burnished-orange back chair in contrast to the brown tweed sofa. The corner section of the sofa, Mrs. Ayers has placed under the stairway with a tiny mahogany two leg table.

Carpets in the living room and dining room are matching wool mixture of green, brown and white.

Before entering the dining room, a visitor would pass a door on each side of the first room. The one to the left opens to the cellar stairway and this to the right is a convenient guest closet.

The feature of the dining room — furnished in Danish modern — is a huge archway to the left of the room that opens into a tiny, bright kitchen decorated in yellow and white.

"It's small, but there are just two of us," Mrs. Ayers says, adding, "so its just enough room."

The former Miss Dorothy Valentine, Mrs. Ayers has been married to Mr. Ayers for ten years. Each have children by previous marriages.

He is employed as a warehouseman, and acting as Customs inspector at the Customs House. Mrs. Ayers is employed as a tailor shop in the 2590 block Edmondson Ave.

They formerly lived at 1528 Appleton St., and before that in Hatherope.

THE AYERS master bedroom is decorated in dusty rose and blond modern furniture.

An avid sewer, Mrs. Ayers highlighted her bedroom with matching draperies and bedspread. "I made the bedspread myself, she says, pointing to her windowsill length drapery. "They were too long," she added and the bedspread was made from surplus material after she shortened the drapery.

The other bedroom is wedge-wood blue and the housewife says she plans to convert, this room, at the front of the house, to the master bedroom later on.

Between the two rooms is the bathroom in black and white tile.

Proof that the Ayers' are city dwellers from the heart, the "feature" of their home is in the basement.

According to Mrs. Ayers, this "feature" inspires mixed emotions in her, but the rest of her family seems to like it.

On the long wall of their basement is a beatnik scene painted by Robert Owings, a friend of her step-son's Gordon Ayers, the beatnik scene is a "gasser."

IT SHOWS a "cool cat" at work on his keyless saxophone, another on his trumpet, a bare light bulb — true to beatnik fashion, a poetry reading participant standing on a bottle laden table and a (pardon us) tastefully nude female reveler who doesn't seem to care what the others are doing, and is completely ignored by the others.

This scene is flanked by the Ayers' high fidelity phonograph on one corner and speaker in the other.

Who could ask for anything more?

There is city style in city dwelling and the Ayers' have found their place in the city.

CONTENTMENT AT HOME is realized by the James R. Ayers in charming rowhouse at 327 N. Allendale St. Mrs. Dorothy Ayers, who can often be found sewing at home, did the attractive matching draperies and bedspread in their bedroom.

THIS IS HOME for Mr. and Mrs. James R. Ayers and the city residence at 327 N. Allendale St. is just as satisfying to them as would be a home out in the suburbs.

Mrs. Bright is a laboratory technician

The government employs many persons who work in the science laboratories to unfold the mysteries of the universe and outer space.

There are also those who do research to unfold the mysteries of life, hoping to prolong man's days on earth.

Among those employed in the biology department of Fort George G. Meade recently, is a woman, Mrs. Eloise W. Bright, 1104 S. Stricker St., who is a laboratory technician in the biochemistry division of the Medical Laboratory at Fort George G. Meade, Md.

MRS. BRIGHT makes a variety of chemical analyses of samples of marihuana, she makes urine assayed tests along with other medical specials working on projects there.

For the job Mrs. Bright, daughter of Benjamin Franklin Greenberg, N.C. Tabere, she earned a bachelor of science degree.

She is a graduate of Douglass High School.

She began work at the Second Medical laboratory in 1955, five years ago, after she had been employed at City Hospitals on research projects for the National Institute of Health in the Old Age Division.

Mrs. Bright is the mother of a daughter, Jamarri, age 7 and the wife of John W. Bright, a Bureau of Census employee.

The Brights are members of the John Wesley Methodist Church.

WORLD'S ONLY LABORATORY TECHNICIAN as far as her seven-year-old daughter is concerned is Mrs. Eloise W. Bright, 36, who is shown above demonstrating lab technique on the occasion of the 12th anniversary open house at Fort George G. Meade recently. Daughter is Miss Jamarri Bright who watched attentively along with other visitors who came to the biochemistry division of the Second Army Medical Laboratory where her mother is employed.

Anti-prejudice stickers now available to all

Banks, utilities, department stores, and other types of business are being bombarded with mail containing a small yellow sticker which says, "As your customer, I welcome being served by any qualified person regardless of race, creed or color."

Hundreds of people in the Baltimore area are using this method of demonstrating to the companies that serve them that they do not have prejudice about those who wait on them or serve them in public places.

The idea of the stickers was initiated by the Department of Education—Special Relations of the Council of Churches of Maryland. Labels are available, free of cost, to all who request them from the Council at 14 W. Madison St., Baltimore 1.

The Maryland Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations and the Baltimore Equal Employment Opportunity Commission adopted the plan and have had 400,000 stickers printed and distributed to people who believe in the spirit of Christianity and will use this method to help eliminate prejudice.

The plan is a non-sectarian effort and all who wish to join in such expressions of understanding and respect for their fellowmen are invited to affix labels to be affixed to mail to all major businesses.

As this method is part of the program of the Council of Churches and Christian Education of Md. supported through gifts made to the United Protestant Appeal. The campaign is being conducted through February with C. Newton Kohl chairman of the statewide drive.

It's not your race that counts in health picture, but where you live

Living conditions, rather than white people, concludes the Tuberculosis patients, all living racial characteristics, are two vision of Tuberculosis Control in the same environment, were responsible for the higher tuberculosis death and case rates ment of Health after a study studied to determine the effect of environment upon TB incidence.

A group of white and colored

In terms of their reaction to TB, the races showed no significant differences. Within a similar environment, both race developed the disease at the same rate. The proportion of those suffering from TB was also similar for both races. Antituberculosis drugs benefitted both races equally.

BECAUSE OF these findings it is concluded that under similar environmental conditions colored and white react alike to TB and that racial factors probably do not contribute to causing higher TB cases and death rates among colored people.

With funds made available by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association Christmas Seal Sale, the Baltimore City Health Department has been able to determine the racial status of the TB problem in the city.

A health department report indicates that on July 1, 1959, a total of 2,451 persons were known to be ill with tuberculosis, of these, 1,573 were white and 1,878 were colored.

Sixty-eight percent of the city's population is colored, the colored case rate was 600 cases per 100,000 persons, the white case rate was 359 per 100,000. Of the new TB cases found in 1959, the colored rate was 148 new cases per 100,000 persons and the new white case rate was 55 per 100,000 persons.

THE REPORT says that tuberculosis and mental health are the most important problems in public health in Baltimore.

Frank A. Fischer, president of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, reports that the chest X-ray facilities for everyone over the age of 18 are available at the Chest X-ray Screening Center at 825 North Charles St.

This is another service made possible by Christmas Seals.

BRISCOE — In loving memory of my dear husband, ARTHUR BRISCOE, who passed away January 30, 1947.
Just I not thought that death is sweet
Had not dried my eyes
But I pray we are and have kept
Across and shall meet you when I greet angels.
Sadly missed and mourned by LOANING WIFE.

DEDICATED to PAUL BROWN, nephew of the writer, By Lillie O. Jones
Your sweet soul so early passed away
Your spirit are to my captured
Would God we could see your face
Would God we could hear your voice
Would God we could see your smile
Would God we could hear your laugh
As in the days that used to be.
Dear Paul, we miss you
We'll meet again
We'll meet the family
And yours each other's friends
In Heaven, that home of bliss
Sadly missed
