MYSTERY SHOCKER ON ALBERT'S SCREEN

Allied Artists introduces a sensational mystery shocker in "The Maze," now at the New Albert Theatre.

The exciting story, packed with suspense and magnificently staged, co-stars Richard Carson and a newcomer from the British screen, Veronica Hurst, who is under contract to Associated British Pictures. She was flown to Hollywood especially for her debut with Allied Artists.

The picture is from a novel by Maurice Sandoz, and the settings are based somewhat on Salvador Dali's full page drawings which illustrated the publication, rated a classic in its field.

The action takes place on a fabulous Riviera estate, in a small hotel on the Mediterranean, on the Scottish moors, and in the vast halls, great rooms and dank garden of an ancient Scottish castle.

'MM' SENSATIONAL IN REGENT'S OFFERING

The women who have become legends in our history are few indeed, in fact those who have achieved this sometimes dubious distinction probably number less than a score.

Among the living legends of today, Greta Garbo and Marlene Dietrich stand out, but today there is only one woman who holds title to a legend among men.

She is the fabulous Marilyn Monroe, currently starring in Jerry Wald's "Lets Make Love," a Twentieth Century-Fox CinemaScope DeLuxe Color release, with Yves Montand, Tony Randall and Frankie Vaughan, now at the Regent Theatre.

MM has parlayed a pretty pout, two beautiful blue eyes and the body of a modern venus into more than stardom, more than a fortune, she piloted herself from lying naked on a calendar into a lovely legend.

Admittedly she is not a great actress but she has built for herself a Cinderella complex, which she has made real for herself and for the millions of followers throughout the moviegoing public.

TOP YOUNG ACTORS IN NEW ONE AT HARLEM

There's a new day dawning for the screen's young actors and actresses, in the opinion of Michael Anderson, who directed four of Hollywoods brightest young personalities—Natalie Wood, Robert Wagner, Susan Kohner and George Hamilton — in the new Metro Goldwyn-Mayer drama, "All the Fine Young Cannibals," now playing at the Harlem.

For years relegated to boy-meet-girl roles, the cinema's young performers are finally being liven characterization in which they can get their dramatic teeth, the director feels. Anderson gives much of the credit to today's screen writers.

"They are aware of the increasing early maturity of youth," he says, "and realize that young actors, today, are capable of expressing greater emotions than those ranging from A. to B."

Boyish-looking Anderson is frequently taken to be as young as the actors whose cause he advocates, but he is no novice to the business of motion picture making.

A native of London, he entered the film world as an actor at the age of sixteen and subsequently was trained in virtually every branch of the film industry.

DOUGLAS, NOVAK HELD OVER AT ROYAL

Kirk Douglas and Kim Novak, two of the screens most exciting stars, are brilliantly paired in an emotion-charged, astonishingly frank and always absorbing cinematic probing of marital infidelity in "Strangers When We Meet," now playing a second week at the Royal.

These incandescent players explore with unaccustomed boldness and honesty the tortuous ramifications of a romance that must be kept hidden. Under the guidance of producer - director Richard Quine, this new Columbia picture becomes a dramatic, entertaining depiction of Evan Hunter's outspoken best-seller.

Ernie Kovacs and Barbara Rush also are starred in "Strangers When We Meet."

PATRICIA OWENS, left, her red hair down before a popeyed Jeffrey Hunter and Michi Kobi at a wild party in "Hell to Eternity," story of Marine Pfc. Guy Gabaldon, hero of Saipan, starting Wed. at the New Albert Theatre.

SUSAN KOHNER has a few ugly facts to relate to her brother, George Hamilton, in this scene from "All the Fine Young Cannibals," now playing at the Harlem.

THREE UNITS JOIN HANDS IN FUND DRIVE

Goodwill Industries, Inc., Maryland Workshop for the Blind and the Salvation Army banded under the sponsorship of the Cosmopolitan Club of Baltimore, are working together to raise funds for charity.

The money received will be distributed to these three organizations, and the funds will result from the sale of a novel assortment of fresh Trick or Treat Candies.

These candies are packed 100 pieces to a bag, with each piece individually wrapped, and will be sold at $1.00 a bag.

'Work-in' must accompany 'sit-in'

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. — The "work - in" must take its place along with the "sit-in" to solve the problem of job discrimination. Dr. L. H. Foster, Tuskegee Institute president, made this statement on an All - Institute Conference last week.

Claudia McNeil won fame the hard way

The success of Claudia McNeil, who starts in "A Raisin In the Sun," the New York Drama Critics Prize Play opening at Ford's, for one week beginning Oct. 3, didn't just happen.

It came following years of preparation and experience.

Claudia was first limelighted as a singer, often being referred to as the Marian Anderson of night clubs because of her beautiful, rich, contalto voice.

Then came the time she decided to become an actress with a series of seasons in stock, playing a variety of character roles and winning stant plaudits. She studied with the world famous Russian actress Madame Ouspenskya.

• • •

MISS MCNEIL's debut as an actress was made in 1955 in the summer TV series "Personal Story." She has continued since then.

In March 1957, Claudia Mcognized: She enacted the role Neil's talents were really recof "Mamie" in Langston Hughes' "Simply Heavenly," first at the 83th Street Playhouse, then Broadway's Playhouse.

For her work in this play she was acclaimed by every critic in every nationally known newspaper and magazine.

Her marvellous sense of timing, so outstanding in her role of Lena Younger in "Raisin in the Sun," her great gift of understatement, and her big, bold and powerful delivery, is acclaimed everywhere she appears.

• • •

SINCE MISS MCNEIL's show - stopping performance in "Simply Heavenly", she was invited by Dumont to appear on John Wingate's interview program "Nightbeat" and on the Arlene Francis Show on NBC - TV, the Robert Lewis Show and the Woolworth Hour, and Wineburg, Ohio.

Her late film assignments were the "Last Angry Man" to appear continuously on TV with Paul Muni, a Columbia picture, and her present starring role of Lena Younger in the film "A Raisin in the Sun," to be released the latter part of 1961.
