Dr. Jenkins Backs Aims of Sit-down Movement

"The sit - in or sit - down demonstrations have had beneficial results throughout the country and it is your clear right as citizens of this democracy of ours to participate in this movement."

This was one of the remarks made Wednesday by Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, president of Morgan State College, as he delivered the opening convocation address to members of the faculty and student body.

Morgan students, along with others, have been active in the Civic Interest Group, which has been spearheading the sit - in movement locally.

HOWEVER, Dr. Jenkins added, "this is not your principal task at this point in your careers.

"Rather, your principal task as college students is to prepare yourselves during your college years for full participation in American life."

Three important duties were stressed in Dr. Jenkins' address. They were:

1. Stand Up to Discharge Your Task in Community Relations.

2. Stand Up to Discharge Your Task in the World of Work.

3. Stand Up to Discharge Your Task in Personal Development.

Dr. Jenkins then asked, "Why do I consider this message so important?" He answered:

"There is very real danger that college students will be so emotionally involved in the excitement and glamour of the sit-in demonstrations that they will lose sight of their fundamental responsibility.

"There is very real danger that you as college students will feel that you have made your full contributions to responsible racial distinctions in American life when you have engaged in the sit-in or sit-down movement.

"Well, this were to occur it would indeed be tragic.

"I let me urge upon you the feeling that you are subversive and a traitor to the cause when you neglect your work here, when you go to your classes unprepared, when you fail to go beyond the school rolls in the development of your talents.

"I let me urge upon you the view that every well-done piece of work in your institutes contributes to the placard you are carrying in this great movement for human rights.

A SYNOPSIS of Dr. Jenkins' address follows:

Introduction: Addressing himself to a statement keyed to the work of the year, I am not going to talk today on a single topic, "Stand Up," and my remarks are addressed primarily to the entire student body.

Stand Up and Discharge Your Task in Community Relations.

For a long time I have regarded this student body as relatively uninterested and have repeatedly evoked statements cast within a racial framework.

What I am going to say today is as much on my heart that it seems you in fact, sufficient importance to justify a deviation from this policy.

We are witnessing in our country, and indeed throughout the world, an almost revolutionary movement against segregation and discrimination. This movement has many facets.

Certainly one of the most dramatic facets is the one which may turn out to be of most lasting - term significance, is the so-called "sit-in" demonstrations developed by college students, chiefly college students, who have brought before the people of this nation the fundamental dissatisfaction of young educated students with existing patterns of discrimination.

It has received the official endorsement of numerous outstanding civilian and government officials, presidential candidates and even the major political parties.

As I have stated to you before, colored students can stand tall because, at a time when American college students generally are engaged in swallowing gold fish, or seeing how many can crowd into a telephone booth, or raiding women's dormitories for panties, they have been concerned with a fundamental social problem.

It is important to observe, and this, incidentally, is the official position of this college, that in this sit - in or sit-down are citizens who happen to be college students as well.

This is an outside activity. It is not conducted by or with the blessings of the college.

The sit-down movement has been effective, but it is preliminary rather than constructive and final solution to the problem of racial discrimination.

One of one basic objectives of institutions of higher education, such as Morgan State College, is to prepare students to contribute to this constructive and final solution by enabling them to prepare themselves for full participation in American life.

This is not as glamorous or exciting as carrying a placard in front of a restaurant, or of getting your picture in the paper, or of going to jail. This is sometimes more prosaic, but this is your fundamental responsibility.

And if your feel that you have made an adequate contribution to the removal of racial restrictions in American life by sitting down, you are wrong.

You must STAND UP.

I THINK the majority of colored college students are concerned about the wonderful principles of our society, especially as they are applied to race relations.

You are bitter because of racial proscription and you are inclined to think that white people generally are your enemies.

There is not that passion for democracy and for democratic institutions which would characterize a disadvantaged minority group.

Do you know a personal creed of America? I believe in democracy.

I believe that when people attempt to deprive people of their democratic rights as an American citizen, that this action is a restraint, center, of the Government of the United States, and that it is a violation of the principles of democracy against them in the best interests of our country.

I would hope that you can go along with me when I say that anything leading to social aggression with bitterness and frustration.

Thinking through the past you have made a great deal of progress in your personal definition of your own role in participating in the life of this country.

It is characteristic of youth, of course, that they have a strong sense of idealism and that they are conscientious in their delineation of what they believe to be the ideal and desirable.

Many college students have not yet begun to think about things.

What is my function as a citizen and as a person?

Just how do I plan to justify my existence?

What am I going to do about better government, better housing, better race relations, a better world?

Just how do I propose to meet my cultural needs through creation sense as sedulite appreciativeness and aesthetic appreciation.

Have you attempted to answer these questions in terms of your own life patterns?

I say the chances are that you have not.

So, you want a racially - integrated society. Stand Up! It is your task to develop for yourself and in the light of your abilities, qualifications, and interests a personal philosophy which will guide your behavior as an intelligently participating member of your society.

These are great and exciting days — vital and serious days. In this time you have a part to play in determining the kind of future you will have — that you children will have — that this nation will have.

This is no time for slackers! To fail now to do your best, to do your best every day, will earn for you, and deservedly so, the condemnation and contempt of your fellows.

Stand Up!

Dr. and Mrs. Parlette Moore (Thelma) (he's prexy of Coppin Teachers College), had as guests over the last weekend Mrs. Moore's niece, Mrs. Vernon L. Smith (Hazel) and her young son, Vernon L. II (Buzzy) of Flushing, L.I., New York.

Mrs. Smith is a supervisor with the New York City Department of Welfare in foster care and adoption.

A HERO WELCOMED — Looking trim and fit, Jesse Owens, one of the all time track and field greats, was welcomed on his arrival in Baltimore, Sunday, by a delegation from the NAACP. Greeting Mr. Owens (right) is Philip Savage, NAACP membership director. Mr. Owens spoke at a NAACP mass meeting in Sharp St. Memorial Methodist Church.

ANAPOLIS DINGS

By ELOISE RICHARDSON

"Unfortunately, what most people fail to see, is that juvenile delinquency is only a certain crop that springs full blown during the crucial teenage years, but rather, it is a evil which found its roots in the home, usually before the delinquent was six years old.

"During this period, it was nurtured and fertilized like a rank weed in a dump pile until it finally blossoms forth in full bloom.

"Unless we can root out the causes of this problem, it is impossible to eradicate its unwholesome influence.

"These statements were made by Herbert S. Hillard, principal of Bates High School, as he spoke at Mt. Moriah AME Church on Sunday.

Mr. Hillard was discussing juvenile delinquency. He pointed out, that the business of rearing welladjusted children which little chance of becoming delinquent, belongs to well-adjusted parents who love their children.

They should be willing to sacrifice the luxuries of life for the education that all children require for proper rearing, he said.

MR. HILLIARD spoke on the evening program of Education Day, an annual observance held at the Mt. Moriah AME Church on Sunday. Teachers and other workers in the Anne Arundel County Public School System were special guests at the morning worship service and the evening service.

Mr. Hillard, who received his B.A. degree from Virginia State University and his M.A. degree from Syracuse University, is active in the community, working with the Boy Scouts of America and serving as a member of the board of the Northwest Street YMCA.

He also serves as president of the Anne Arundel County Teachers Credit Union and is an usher of Bethel AME church, Ashbury Methodist Church. He was introduced by Frank B. Kauber, retired vice principal of Bates.

Miss Sarah Jones, Bates Junior High School teacher, was soloist. Greetings were given by Miss Betty Robinson, a member of the clerical staff of Bates and Keith Witheridge, principal of the Annapolis Elementary School.

GEORGE DIGGS, principal of Eastport School, read the scripture. Willie McManus, a member of the faculty of Bates, offered prayer.

Mrs. Joseph Hardesty, president and Mrs. Bernard McMurray was in charge of the music for the day.

The Rev. A. R. Powell, pastor, was the morning speaker and used as his subject "The True Road to Dominion." Mr. William Edley was soloist and the Senior and Junior Choirs sang.

Philip Brown, vice-principal, presided. Mrs. Helen S. Jones, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Gertrude Greene and Mrs. Joseph Hardesty, served as the committee on arrangements.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, there is a seventy-five year old man midst who has lived to be 106 years old.

Charles Creek does not know the exact date he was born, but remembers the year—1854, and his place of birth, West River, Md. Mr. Creek has a firm, strong voice and laughs often with a hearty laugh. He still frequently takes walks during the day.

Significant is the fact that he is the lone Maryland survivor of the Indian Wars in which he soldiered. He is also No. 1 veteran of all wars, and one of 54 surviving veterans of Indian Wars in the United States, according to records of the Veterans Administration.

"I never fought with the Indians, but I saw many an Indian," said Mr. Creek. He recalled that for months at a time the soldiers were on the trail, keeping peace with the Indians.

"I never was promoted," Mr. Creek said and laughed at the same time. "The captain wanted me to be higher, but I had no education. I was right smart otherwise, but dumb on education."

Mr. Creek remembers so well the long walk he took from his home into Annapolis (on May 16, 1858 according to records) and down Market Street to enlist in the Army.

When asked why he as a young man wanted to enlist in the Army to fight Indians, he stated that he wanted to know something and "When I came back to Maryland, I was right smart — more than I knowed before."

MR. CREEK served for three years as a private, stationed at Jefferson Barracks and at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

He returned to the Annapolis area in 1891 and married—first Miss Charity Johnson of South River, and later was married a second time, to Miss Lizzie Johnson of Baltimore. No children were born to either union.

Mr. Creek, who lives with his niece, Mrs. Nannie Wilson, 63 Spa Road, claims he has never been in a hospital, and has practically all of his teeth, although he says he has been chewing tobacco since he was 13. He says he will take a drink and a smoke occasionally.

He was given what he wanted more than anything else in the world the past spring — a bed.

After the "distinguished" veteran was discovered this week there was considerable talk of plans for a number of events in his honor, but when he was approached by such an idea, he turned it down. He likes his quiet way of living.

Mr. Creek was presented this bed through Cook-Pinkney Post of the American Legion by Eddie Mitchell, then commander, who formerly had been presented the bed for the old soldier by the Maryland Department of the Legion.

Asked what his recipe is for long life, Mr. Creek said, "Trust in God and go to church when you can. I do."

THERE IS talk of the appointment of a colored Home Demonstration staff member to work in Anne Arundel County.

According to Mrs. Gregory J. Mann, president of the Citizens Planning and Housing Association of Annapolis and Anne Arundel County, a letter was received from Paul E. Nystrom, director of the University of Maryland Extension Service in which he stated that a request for a colored Home Demonstration staff member would be included in the next budget of his office.

The request had been made earlier by the association, Mrs. Mann said. It was felt by the county to show interest in this move. Every effort should be done at the local group is a step forward in our economic security as a group.

REGISTRATION FOR evening classes at Beates High School will be conducted at the school on Monday and Tuesday evenings, October 3 and 4 from 6 to 7 p.m. Tuition will be $5 for 24 weeks.

Classes will be planned in cosmetology, building trades, clothing construction, typing and general educational development. These classes will be formed only when there is a minimum of 10 people or more and will be held one night a week, either on Monday or Wednesday evening.

The general educational course is especially designed to prepare those adults who have not graduated from high school to take the state tests for the Maryland Equivalency certificate.

Further information may be received by contacting Mrs. John Weatherford, registrar, at Colonial 3 - 2932.

Send cheer cards to Mr. Henry Wright, who is confined at Ft. Howard Veterans Hospital in Baltimore.

STUDIOUS STUDENTS — Two Catholic University students, Udo Idung Okon, of Nigeria and Abdulrahman Al Qand, of Kuwait, Arabia, strike immediate friendship on the campus. Mr. Okon is a junior engineering student and the son of a Parliament chief. He registered at the university last week.

Ghana reception honors Minister of Finance

By ROSEMARIE TYLER

The host country for the cocktail soiree was Ghana. The guest of honor was the Honorable R. A. Ghedemah, Ghana's delegate to the International Monetary Fund conference.

Mr. Ghedemah is Ghana's Minister of Finance. Recently he has acquired the additional responsibility of Minister of State for Presidential matters.

This cocktail reception not only honored Mr. Ghedemah, but gave the guests an opportunity to see His Excellency, the Honorable M. O. W. Halm, the Ambassador of Ghana. Ambassador Halm has been commuting twixt the United Nations in New York and Washington since the arrival of President Nkrumah of Ghana.

ASSISTING THE Ambassador were the members of the Halm family: his charming wife, Jocelyn; his daughter Lorna; his son, Albert. The tall, attractive Albert is visiting America for the first time. He is en route to Ghana.

The atmosphere was a potpourri of beautiful women, well - groomed men, bubbly champagne, but mostly politics. With President Nkrumah in this country, Ghana's role in the Afro-Asian bloc was of concern to many.

The long table filled with culinary delights was striking not only for its contents but for the green, yellow and red floral image of the flag of Ghana.

Contributing to the gay atmosphere of the Ghana cocktail party for Mr. Ghedemah were Art Carter, editor of the AFRO-AMERICAN and Mrs. Carter; Albert Smart - Abby Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Carlyle; Miss Mervel Wanzor; Mrs. Simon Booker with her sister-in-law who is en route to Miami to live; Mrs. Jacqueline Shriver, secretary to the Ambassador, Mr. and Mrs. Ossie Swaby, Odis Von Blasingame, Mrs. Marie Wells, Mrs. Kitty Byars, Mrs. Ethel Sanders and husband; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Luck, Dr. and Mrs. John Carr; Miss Mabe Kemp, Mrs. Louise Mosby, Dr. Eva Townes, Dr. James N. Nabrit; president of Howard University and Mrs. Nabrit; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Akewei of the Ghana Embassy; George Hammond, Robert Mensah, press attache, and Mrs. Mensah; John Aggrey and many other Ghanaians.

By HERBERT MANGRUM

Week as I have been critical of the modern day teenager.

I don't care for their dress, their music, their speech or their manners.

Week as I promised myself that I would be critical no longer.

I figured I had no right to be critical because my record as a teen was anything but spotless.

You may call me an indecisive character but at 40 I'm not back where I started, knocking the youngsters.

IT IS the truth.

AT THE Western Police Station Tuesday, an officer brought in a young man who begged to be set free.

The youngster said he wanted to go home to get some sleep before school.

"I have been high (off vodka) since last night."

The desk sergeant ordered the youth to walk a straight line.

The prisoner, who said he was 25 failed the test.

THE STAFF on duty at Western last Friday was confused but amused by the action of a 34-year-old woman.

Her crime: She beat up her 90-year-old husband in front of the station house.

The elderly woman was angry because hubby was found not guilty of disorderly conduct.

SAMUEL HOLDER is about the coolest man I have seen in the custody of police.

During his preliminary hearing at Central Booking, he drummed on a bench with his fingers, scratched his side, smoked his lips and lounged about as if he were in the lobby of the Habana Theresa.

He is charged with arson and the murder of four persons.

Religious Week set, Oct. 30-Nov. 3

Five special Sunday worship services have been scheduled at the Morgan State College Christian Center.

The special services will be climaxed Oct. 30 - Nov. 3 by Religion is Life Week. Theme for the week is "What Can I Know?"

Director of the Christian Center, the Rev. Howard L. Corbin, will be main speaker Oct. 2, which is World-Wide Communion Sunday.

GUEST SPEAKERS on succeeding Sundays will be as follows:

Oct. 9, the Rev. Vernon Dobson, assistant pastor of Union Baptist Church.

Oct. 16, Dr. G. James Fleming, director of the Institute for Political Education.

Oct. 23, Dr. Daniel G. Hill, School of Religion, Howard University.

Baltimore area music lovers will assemble in the auditorium of William Lemmel Junior High School (tonight). Friday at 8:30 p.m. to enjoy the great voice of Baltimore's own son, Daniel Comegys.

Danny has acquired quite a bit of experience in his 22 years.

A protegee of the great Roland Hayes, famous tenor and the world's greatest Lieder singer (special type cultural song which depicts people, in various situations), Danny has been singing publicly 11 years.

Among Danny's tutors have been Frank Whitmore, bass-baritone, Mlle. Nadia Boulanger, and the great music critic and arranger at the Fontainene Bleau School of Music in France, M. Pierre Bernac.

Danny, who sings in French, German and English, has a rare gift, the ability to communicate with his audience and convey the spirit of different songs.

Mr. Comegy's accompanist for the recital will be Igor Chichagov, music director of the Baltimore Civic Opera Company an affiliate of the Metropolitan Opera Co.

Mr. Comegys is married to the former Miss Elaine Ellis, daughter of Dr. Effie Ellis, coordinator of medical-education at Provident Hospital.

The recital is a benefit performance presented by the Volunteer Parents and Friends Group of St. Edward's School. Won't you attend?

THE DISTRICT No. 7 Order of Eastern Star, Maryland Jurisdiction, PHA met recently at the Edgewood Methodist Church in Towson.

Presiding was Mrs. Margret Sinkfield of Adah Chapter No. 8, Towson. The welcome address was given by Mrs. Valerie Britton. Mrs. Odessa Phillips presented the Grand District Deputy.

Minutes of the previous District meeting were read by Mrs. Marie Cahl, district secretary.

Reports of retiring matrons were given. The retiring matrons were Mesdames Margret Sinkfield, Adah Chapter, Towson; Marie Cahl, Evening Star No. 25, Hayne de Grace; Eva Brooks, Martha Chapter No. 55, Catonsville, and Sarah Williams, Maggie B. Williams No. 55, Turner Station.

IT'S BACK to the campus for Courtney Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry L. Harris, 803 I St., Sparrows Point. Courtney is a sophomore.

She is a member of Fisk's Woman's Senate, member of the Oval Staff (Yearbook) and member of the Ivy Club (AKA pledgee).

Also active in her community, courtney is a member of Christ The King Church. Father Hennsberry, her mother states, has been a wonderful friend to Courtney and the family. He was one of those at Friendship Airport to see her off.

The Ice Cream Cone Set has been quite social lately. Cutest party in the neighborhood was that of little Miss Cynthia Jones, a daughter of James Jones, formerly of Catonsville, but now residing at 102 N. Kossuth.

Enjoying the abundant goodies were Juanita Morrow, James Jones Jr., Geneva Baker, Diane Brown, Nadine Connor, Stewart Jones, Julie Fonseca, Stacey Jones, Kathy Jones, Lenette Rodd, Barbara Wilson, Stephen Jones, Lynn Anderson and Patricia Jones.

Remaining after the party as Cynthia's weekend guests were Lynn Anderson and Patricia Jones.

IT'S ALWAYS good to receive news of old friends. Tasteling up New York way (Millbrook, Vassar, Paughkeepsie, Upper Hudson and West Point) was that personable Catonsville lad Arnold Webb. Mr. Webb is a member of Grace AME and vocalist of local renown.

Sometimes 'sanfus' do happen my columns for the past three weeks. I did get your news items and I did write them up.

Many of you don't get Tuesday's AFRO and it was in that issue that Baltimore County Column and Towson Elks Organization Day story appeared.
