was held under arrest until a committee from his church in Brentwood arrived in Hyattsville and posted bond for his release.

The Rev. Mr. Smith said he was previously served in another cafe in the town.

HE TOLD the audience, "We are now at a crucial hour and it is necessary for each of us to measure up to its demands."

His arrest, like that of others over segregated eating facilities, shows "the crucial hour," he said.

Other participants on the program were Mrs. Dorothy Pinkard, chairman, and the Rev. S. J. Beamon, president of the Ministers and Laymen Union, co-sponsor of the meeting.

AT CONCORD BAPTIST CHURCH, the Rev. Matthew R. Silver takes his NAACP membership from William Harris, church NAACP worker. Reading from left in picture are Miss Betina Moore, Mrs. Evelyn McCallum, Mr. Harris, the Rev. Mr. Silver, Mrs. Gabrella McNair and Mrs. Bessie Matthews. The Rev. Mr. Silver will be the NAACP's Thanksgiving mass meeting speaker, Sunday, 3 p.m., at Sharp Street Church, Dolphin and Etting Sts.

Fallon (4th D.) said he thought the study should be concentrated on Maryland's Second, Fifth and Sixth Districts.

AN EIGHTH District shaped out of these three larger State districts, population-wise, would equalize to some extent the districts, Mr. Fallon said.

James H. (Jack) Pollack, prominent leader in city and State political circles said: "Baltimore should play some part in the re-vamping and re-shaping of Maryland."

Mr. Pollack has powerful influences in the Fourth and Seventh Congressional Districts.

Gov. Tawes is on vacation and had not been reached for observations at AFRO press time.

A spokesman said the Governor would have the decision made during the coming winter session of the General Assembly.

The next election involving Congressmen is in 1962.

vision St., was permanently injured and is now in Montebello State Hospital paralyzed from the waist down."

PROSECUTOR John W. Sause, described the incidents leading to the tragedy, thusly:

It was about 8:50 p.m., Mrs. Neal was coming south on Pennsylvania Ave., Mr. Smith, east on Gold St.

The cars collided and Mrs. Neal lost control. Her car jumped the curb on the east side of the 2100 block Pennsylvania Ave., bumped into several sets of steps, hit two other pedestrians besides the Landrums, and finally halted 275 feet from the Gold St. curb.

Robert Dett, 800 block Harford Ct., who operates a shoe repair shop at Gold and Pennsylvania Ave., said he witnessed the entire accident.

"I saw Mr. Smith pull to the intersection and stop. The front of his car was about two feet over the pedestrian walk line.

"At the time he was hit, he was standing still. I saw the other car jumped the sidewalk.

"I thought at first it had run into the drug store. I didn't see it hit the children."

Similar testimony was offered by Fay Johnson, 2300 block Division St.

THE PROSECUTOR offered an affidavit signed by Mrs. Landrum, the injured mother, in which she stated that she knew nothing at all bout the accident.

Police testified that they found Mrs. Neal in her car when they arrived on the scene, and found no evidence that she had been drinking.

Further testimony was offered to show that Mrs. Neal was driving without a license.

However, Judge Prendergast ruled that this would have no bearing on the manslaughter case, but was a matter for traffic authorities to handle.

Mrs. Neal, an attractive woman, was dressed in a becoming black dress with black accessories.

She wore a green top coat with a fur collar.

Throughout the trial she sat with her head bowed, in near tears.

At every mention of the death of the children, a sad, forlorn expression appeared on her face.

Mr. Smith wore a dark suit, and sat quietly holding his hands throughout the trial.

THE DEFENSE offered no testimony, but submitted on the facts and argued that the prosecutor's evidence did not constitute gross negligence which is necessary to prove manslaughter.

Following the trial, Mrs. Neal with friends and relatives stood talking in the corridor of the courthouse.

Even then she did not smile. She wore the same dejected look she had when she was on trial.

Asked by an AFRO reporter how she felt now that the trial at least is over, she solemly replied.

"I'd rather not talk about it."

Traffic charges are still pending against both defendants, and a $300,000 suit has recently been instituttd against Mrs. Neal by trustees from the State for Mrs. Landrum.

ANNAPOLIS DOINGS

BY ELOISE RICHARDSON

A recreational activity which heretofore was nil among the people here, is now "the thing," and men, women and children are having fun...they are bowling at the Severn Bowling Alley, one of the most modern in this section.

Facilities are located at 213 West St., and are not only open to people of Annapolis, but also to people throughout Anne Arundel County.

Hours, Monday through Saturday, are from 12 noon until 12 midnight, and on Sundays from 2 p.m. to 12 midnight.

There are 14 alleys, which have been refinished at a cost of more than $5,000 for duckpins. Four of these alleys can be set up for ten-pins for people who like to bowl with the large balls and pins.

A SPECIAL activity, a contest for those who like to bowl in competition, is held Sundays from 2 to 6 p.m. A rundown of the seeing and prizes is as follows:

First single game high score for men; second single game high score for women; third, high three game set for men; fourth, high three game set for women. There are no special rules to enter the contest.

Bowling, one of the oldest sports, is wholesome and is a means of getting exercise and having loads of fun at the same time.

At the Severn Bowling Alley, the facilities are clean and comfortable (especially for women) when they are resting in between games, and there is a nice atmosphere.

The rest rooms are all renovated and clean at all times. Also the new snack bar offers all kinds of confections including ice cream.

People need not hesitate to bowl because they do not know the game, for there is an instructor at the alley who will give instructions to those who have never bowled, two afternoons a week. This instruction is also given to bowlers who desire to gain additional skill.

LEAGUES AND teams are now being formed and elsewhere in this newspaper on the sport page are weekly score sheets with league members and scores listed.

Housewives, or women who are not employed will find bowling a convenient form of recreation and working women will find it the answer to their prayers for keeping fit and keeping the waist slim."

The management is especially interested in working with church, school and club groups to form leagues and teams, and will offer membership cards to youth groups. Benefit games may be arranged for churches and other groups.

All employees at the bowling alley are local people and they serve those who visit there in the most courteous manner.

Daniel Palmer, an instructor, at Bates High School, is the floor manager, and Charles Simms Jr., is supervisor of the pin boys.

Among pin boys are Norman Johnson, George Whiteside, Rufus Steed, James Bell, Edgar Bean, Gary Walker and Charles Janus.
