Wife gets divorce, hubby given child

When Mrs. Lillian Lindsay of 2328 Arunah Avenue divorced Rovel Lindsay, last week, she gave their 11-year-old daughter to the father.

Mr. Lindsay won the child under an agreement, and she won the divorce on grounds of technical desertion.

Mrs. Lindsay testified that her husband put her out of the house.

"He put me out", said she. "When I came downstairs, dressed to go to work. He told me to find myself a place to stay, not to come back there," Mrs. Lindsay added.

They were married in 1949 and separated in 1958, according to the records. His address is given as 804 I St., Sparrows Point.

• • •

AND CHARGING that his wife put him out was George Braxton of 2753 W. North Avenue, who divorced Mrs. Shirley Braxton.

Mr. Braxton said that his wife had him move because she was interested in another person.

• • •

ROBERT JENKINS of 1515 W. Lafayette Ave., and Mrs. Lorraine Jenkins were divorced when he testified that they voluntarily separated in 1951. They were married in 1940, but "just couldn't make it" said the husband.

• • •

ULYSSES CURBEAN of 1622 N. Washington St. testified that Mrs. Anna Mae Curbean "just packed up and left". That was on January 10, 1958, according to the husband.

They were married on July 28, 1948.

• • •

DESERTION WAS also the grounds for a divorce granted to Mrs. Irene Stevens of 663 Fertkns Avenue from Oscar Stevens.

Married in 1942 and separated in 1944, the couple are parents of two sons.

Mrs. Stevens, who lived at 3006 Chelsea Terrace, said that her husband went out on the night of June 29th and that he came back only once. That was while she was at work and he returned for his possessions.

JOINING UP — Mr. and Mrs. William Watford, left, of 739 Grantley St., take out membership in NAACP from Mrs. Edith Allen. Looking on at right is Mrs. Juanita Mitchell, NAACP attorney who, acting on complaint by the Watfords, protested to Sumner Whittier in the Veterans Administration in Washington, D.C., resulting in an end to racially discriminatory practices in sale of VA repossessed homes in Baltimore. Watfords claimed they were unable to buy home at 737 Grantley when a real estate man said the VA repossessed home was not for sale to colored.

'Long John' charged in shooting

A 48-year-old Turner Station man who was the object of a city-wide search a week ago has been charged with shooting his wife.

Bail for John W. (Long John) Horsey of the 200 block Morton Ct., was set at $5,000 in Towson Police Court Wednesday night.

Mr. Horsey was charged with assault by shooting Mrs. Dorsie C. Horsey, 42.

• • •

MRS. HORSEY, a nurses aide, was shot in the left side and back last Monday after she had left a bus.

Mrs. Horsey told Dundalk Police she was walking home when a man jumped from an ambush and said: "I've got you this time" and fired two shots.

The man then fled from the scene carrying a .12 gauge shotgun, a 30-30 rifle and two cans of lye.

Mr. Horsey was arrested three days later while riding in an automobile with an attorney.

Senior advisers of the club are Arthur Wilson, who owns a business establishment in the neighborhood; and Charles Langley, Jr., a government employee.

Maryland's official votes for Kennedy due Monday

By MAX JOHNSON

At noon this coming Monday, nine special Maryland citizens will meet with Gov. J. Millard Tawes in the reception room of his State House office in Annapolis.

These nine special citizens will have gathered for a brief ceremonial duty.

They will be expected to cast Maryland's official electoral votes for Senators John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, for U.S. President and Vice President, respectively.

These special citizens are the State's Democratic electors.

• • •

THEY ARE:

Dr. Carl Murphy, president, AFRO - AMERICAN Newspapers, Baltimore, and W. Earle Cobey, of Cumberland, electors at-large.

And representing Maryland's seven Congressional Districts will be:

George R. Long, of Salisbury, First District; Robert S. Knatz Jr., Reisterstown, Second, State Senator George W. Della, Senate president, Baltimore, Third; R. Emmette Bradley, Baltimore Fourth.

Also, Mrs. Bess B. Lavine, of Prince Georges County, Fifth; Charles B. Huyett, of Washington County, Sixth, and James H. (Jack) Pollack, Baltimore's Seventh District.

• • •

FIRST FORMAL business it hand will be swearing the electors in as officials of the State.

This will be done by Lloyd Young, clerk of the Court of Appeals.

Then, with Gov. Tawes, top official of the State, presiding, the electors turn promptly to the purpose of their gathering — to vote for U.S. President and Vice President.

They will sign six separate ballots.

Also, they will sign their names in Maryland's electoral record book — where former electors have signed, since George Washington became the first President.

These official duties having been completed, the electors will then lunch with Gov. Tawes in the Governor's mansion.

• • •

THIS COMPLETES their one-day job as electors.

Of the six ballots they will have signed, one goes to the President of the U.S. Senate; two are kept by Thomas B. Finan, secretary of State, and a third will remain as a State record, open to the public.

Another will go to the Federal Court in Baltimore, and two others to the national archives in Washington.

When Congress convenes in January, the President of the U.S. Senate will open the electoral votes from all of the States.

He will then declare the candidate with the highest number of such votes the new U.S. President.

• • •

SHOULD THERE be a case where no candidate received a majority, the House of Representatives would make a decision.

Maryland's nine electors are an allotment of one for each of the State's seven Representatives and two Senators in Congress.

They are carefully chosen by the leaders of their party, prior to the Presidential election.

When citizens vote for their choice as President in the general election, in Maryland they actually vote for the electors of the candidate's party.

Electors may or may not vote for the Presidential candidate who received the highest popular vote in Maryland.

No law requires this.

Old Man Winter moved in early, is here to stay

No relief is in sight over the week-end for warmer temperatures. The mercury will remain below freezing, in the low 20's, through Monday.

This is the picture five days before Old Man Winter officially makes his bow on Wednesday December 2, at 3:27 p.m.

Last night's bitter snow, sleet and rain will end this morning (Friday) but the biting cold will remain.

Saturday will be windy, cold, slippery; Sunday, Monday — No change in temperature.

Mother pleads for missing teenager to return home

"Just come home. Whatever the problem, we can solve it.

"We love you. We miss you. We want you to come back to us.

This is the message Mrs. Maria Pinkney, 2532 Garrett Ave. asked the AFRO to send to her daughter, Brenda K. Pinkney.

The distraught mother said Brenda has been missing 11 days today (Friday).

The 14 - year - old girl, a 9th grader at Clifton Park Junior High School was last seen by her mother as she left for school on Monday, Dec. 5 at 8 a.m.

• • •

SHE SAID Brenda was wearing a black cashmere skirt, low heel tan slippers, a heavy blue car coat with a collar lined with white plush, zippered into a hood.

She was carrying a large black purse, note books and text books, Mrs. Pinkney disclosed.

Brenda never arrived at school. A check with an attendance teacher revealed that she was marked absent on Monday, Dec. 5.

Brenda has a Western accent. She is 5 feet, 1½ inches tall and weighs 120 pounds.

Brenda's father is James C. Pinkney, a Navy career man now at sea.

The other Pinkney children are two boys, ages 13 and 12, and a daughter, age 1 year.

Liberia Accuses U. S. In UN Flare-up

By CHARLES HOWARD SR.
United Nations Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — With a dead-lock threatened for the Security Council, Liberia accuses the United States of opposing its election to the Council.

The charge was made after the General Assembly cast seven ballots Friday in a vain effort to elect four new members necessary to bring the dead-lock threatened for the United Nations top peace-enforcing agency, Council membership to its full complement of 11.

Prior to the dead-lock, the Assembly voted three nations to Security Council membership.

Elected were for two-year terms were the United Arab Republic and Chile, to succeed Tunisia and Argentina.

• • •

TURKEY WAS elected to a one-year term, succeeding Poland.

The nominees for the fourth seat were Portugal, backed by the United States, and Liberia.

On the first ballot Portugal received 50 votes and Liberia 32.

For the six following ballots, Portugal's total continued to decrease and Liberia's to increase until the count on the final ballot was Liberia 55 and Portugal 38.

• • •

AFTER THE Assembly adjourned, a spokesman for Liberia issued this statement, asking to be quoted:

"The United States is opposing Liberia. If Liberia is not elected, it will be because of opposition of the United States.

A spokesman for the U. S. delegation refused to comment on the charge. He would only say "the following balloting is secret."

If the dead-lock is not broken before the Assembly adjourns, the Security Council will be forced to operate with only 10 members, a number which would make the agency subject to tie votes.

• • •

THE FAILURE to elect a fourth member was due to the action of the African-Asian bloc, designed to upset the co-called London gentlemen's agreement of 1946 on geographic distribution of the Council's non-permanent seats (four).

The African and Asian delegates delegates are demanding more representation on the Council in view of their increased United Nations membership.

Also, the action is seen as a by-product of the Afro-Asian resentment of the United Nation's role in the Congo.

• • •

DEEP CONCERN is felt for future of United Nations. The Security Council has met in "urgent session" ofr fourth times in last five months. First session commenced July 13, second began July 20, third began August 8, and now fourth session.

These are some questions and statements heard most frequently in connection with Congo crisis:

What makes United Nations so "helpless" in Congo?

"Why must Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold take such a beating from both the Soviet Union and United Sates?

Kasavubu's soldiers, under command of Col. Mobutu, attacked and killed United Nations soldiers who were sent to help Congolese people.

Why did the United States spokesman in the United Nations pass over matter so lightly in support of Kasavubu?

It is being pointed out that

- Afro-Asian delegates to United Nations support Liberia for seat on Security Council. U.S. backs Portugal.
- Delegates determined to upset "Gentlemen's agrement" which limits African and Asian nations on Council.
- Embarrassing questions mount as U.S. countinues to support Belgium which seeks to continue its rule in Congo Republic.

If the Presidency of Congo as represented by Kasavubu and the Parliament are only two remaining political structures, why does United Sates support Kasavubu's closing down of the parliament beyond limitations of "fundamental law.

• • •

WHY DOES Kasavubu get away wi arresting the President of Senate and President of Chamber of Deputies?

Why does Kasavubu get away with arresting other members of legislature, besides the presidents of two bodies, and holding them without trial?

Why does Kasavubu refuse to permit conciliation commission, a body created by the United Nations, to visit the Congo, and why does the United Sates support him in this refusal?

Why does Col. Mobutu refuse to let representatives of United Nations and the Red Cross see Lumumba, though it is charged that he has been severely beaten and is in need of medical care?

Why does United States support Mobutu against United Nations?

• • •

WHY DOES Belgium refuse to channel "aid to the Congo" through United Nations, as is demanded of all other countries and why does United States support her in this refusal?

Who is paying salary of Congolese army and Colonel Mobutu?

Did Security Council mean it when it said, when it solemnly voted (twice) "to support independence and territorial integrity" of Republic of Congo?

Why did United States change its foreign policy from support of United Nations and demanding withdrawal of The Belgians from Congo to "full scale support of the Belgians against United Nations?

Statements are made here by informal sources that the sum of $50,000,000 is banked in Switzerland by Premier Tshombe of Katanga.

In this session of Security Council, thus far in the debate, all of the Asian and African countries, except Cameroun and Congo have been in full support of the demand that Lumumba and the parliamentarians be released and parliament restored so that elected representatives of Congo people may be heard on who they want to run their government.

Balking one strong man in Leopoldville can't deny right of another "strong man" elsewhere.

The West appears caught in its own game.

Who'd Be Best Sec'y Of State'? - Ralph Bunche

LOOKING OVER LETTERS they've received since school integration began in New Orleans are Mr. and Mrs. James Gabrielle and their 6-year-old daughter, Yolanda. Despite the boycott and demonstrations, Yolanda has gone to school everyday at the newly integrated William Frantz elementary school. Mr. Gabrielle said that he has been forced to quit his job as a meter reader with the city water department because of harassment by his fellow employees.

UN leader said best 'qualified'

NEW YORK — "Ralph J. Bunche is the American best qualified to be Secretary of State," declared Murray Kempton in his column Tuesday.

"Looking at the record," writes the New York Post columnist, "it seems ridiculous that President - elect Kennedy, once having disposed of Adlai Stevenson, should consider any other candidate."

Although Mr. Stevenson would present America's image more eloquently to the world, Kempton points out that Mr. Kennedy "wants a Secretary of State who is wise, decisive, creative and skilled in administration."

"On the record of his career," points out the columnist, "no other American interested in foreign policy has these qualities to Bunche's measure."

• • •

GIVING HIS reasons for urging the appointment of the present UN under-secretary, the columnist states:

"Bunche is the country's only Nobel Prize winner for peace. As Under-Secretary General of the United Nations, he is our most distinguished international civil servant.

"Except for Korea, he handled most of the truly sticky situations which have afflicted the UN. He has not solved most of these problems — most of them were insoluble — but he has invariably acquitted himself with distinction."

". . .Bunche is intimate with Africa. His travels are peculiarly different from those of most Americans under consideration for Secretary of State. They are different because they were not ceremonial; he has gone to no corner of the world where he did not have a job to do."

• • •

". . .THERE IS another reason for his consideration, which is no less appealing because it is secondary.

"Kennedy spent most of his campaign talking about a new, dynamic and young America. His appointments so far are old, familiar, and unexciting. Whatever they represent, it is hardly a different America.

". . .But Bunche's appointment would represent something more than that. He is a breeminent example of that America which is fed below, the son of a barber, who worked his way through college as a janitor, who was thrown out of Southern towns in the 20's, who taught at a segregated college, and who was barred from Washington hotels not 16 years ago.

"He is thus an entirely new man: his special field of competence even happens to be those new nations which trouble our vision most today. His appointment, in addition to all better arguments for it, would be a certification of how the world has changed in just 20 years and how America is changing with it."

7 out of 10 colored voters cast ballots for Kennedy

PRINCETON, N.J. — Colored voters overwhelmingly supported Sen. John F. Kennedy in the 1960 election, Dr. George Gallup, director of the American Institute of Public Opinion, declared last week.

Dr. Gallop said that Kennedy drew a substantially higher vote from colored persons this year than Adlai E. Stevenson did in 1956.

Among white voters of the nation, however, Vice - President Nixon had a razor-thin majority.

The Gallup Poll's post-election analysis showed that across the nation, seven out of ten colored persons voted the Democratic ticket.

It also showed that Sen. Kennedy's support from colored citizens came not only from the Northern big cities, but also from colored persons in the South and in smaller cities and towns.

Ironically enough, it was undoubtedly the colored vote in some Southern states which kept those states in their traditionally Democratic column.

U.S.-type sitdowns used in So. Africa

CAPETOWN, South Africa — The sitdown tactics employed so successfully by colored Americans to fight discrimination are now being tried in segregated South Africa.

Colored South Africans are invading restaurants of stores, accompanied by sympathetic whites, and demanding service.

Twice in five days a big department store on Adderley St., Capetown's main shopping thoroughfare, was the scene of a sitdown.

There has been no violence, but one group of demonstrators was taken to a police station.

Under South Africa's Group Areas Act it is an offense for different races to sit and take meals together in restaurants or tea rooms. It is not an offense for non-whites in a white area to take a cold drink in a cafe and drink it while standing. Members of different racial groups must sit together before there is a violation.

The maximum penalty for such infringement is a $500 fine and two years in jail.

Following techniques of segregated store managers in America, the South African store owners refused service and closed their lunch counters during the demonstrations.

In other South African developments:

The World Council of Churches convened in Johannesburg to hammer out an interracial approach to South Africa's policy of race segregation. White and non-white churchmen met together in defiance of racial segregation laws for the first time since various Council parleys started here in 1953.

The South African government announced sweeping measures to protect its industries and expand exports in the face of a 10 per cent drop in the country's gold and foreign exchange reserves.

Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd pushed his racial segregation policy one stage further by announcing that South Africa's one and a half million persons of mixed race from now on will evolve on lines strictly separate from other races.

DR. LAWRENCE D. REDDICK

Dr. Reddick tells of trip to Nigeria

Negeria will never rest until all Africa is free of colonialism, Dr. Lawrence D. Reddick of the Copain Teachers College history department, told an assembly on the campus Friday.

Speaking on his experiences while attending the recent Nigerian independence celebration, Dr. Reddick said that the new Governor General, Nnamdi Azikiwe, "is the constitutional head of Nigeria, not a knight of the Queen. He is not a figure-head."

The Baltimore historian was guest of the Nigerian government during his ten day stay in that country.

DR. REDDICK said that economic independence is the next step for the new nation.

"The Nigerians want their American colored brothers to know they are concerned about U.S. race relations," Dr. Reddick declared.

"When their brothers are suffering in the South, they are concerned. When there is progress among their brothers in the United States, they are concerned."

Summarizing Nigeria's characteristics, Dr. Reddick said:

"The country is rich in resources, palm oil, oil, coca, timber and minerals. Universities are rising. The people are wide-awake. There is no more of the jungle idea. They are taking part in the world, an important part.

"Truly, Nigeria is one of the great nations on earth. And the possibilities are vast. The future is astounding."

Refused apartment, students file suit

SAN FRANCISCO (ANP)—An amended complaint was filed last week with Berkeley - Albany municipal court by a University of California law student and his wife, alleging the couple was refused an apartment because of their race.

Eugene McSwann, 26, and his wife, Cherie, will contend, with their attorney, UC Law Prof. Geoffrey Hazard, that Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Burkett and their son Robert, all of Orinda, refused to rent an apartment to the couple and shortly afterward, offered to rent it to a white couple.

Sitdowner appeals Ark. fine; Yule 'buying strike' urged

In Little Rock, Ark., seven colored students were arrested for staging a sit-down at Woolworth's. All are students at Philander Smith College.

Charles Parker, St. Louis, fined $509 and sentenced to six months in jail, was freed on $2,000 bond pending appeal. Parker was convicted once before this year in a sitdown case.

The six others, to be tried early next year, are: Ted Hines, 18, North Little Rock; Lonnie McIntosh, 20, Little Rock; Billy Bowles, 18, Little Rock; Edward Green, 18, Malvern; Henry Daniels, 18, Lewisville and Miss Myrabel Callaway, 18, Union Springs, Ala.

• • •

MEETING IN Atlanta, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee voted to push a nationwide "Christmas Shopping Withholding Campaign." The committee also urged students to use facilities that have been desegregated.

The committee urged that college students en route home for Christmas to break up jim crow in waiting rooms, buses and dining facilities.

Charles McDew, South Carolina State College junior, was voten chairman of the committee for the next two months.

Five colored persons who sought service in the downtown YMCA lunchroom were denied service. The preceding week, colored patrons were served in the downtown YWCA.

• • •

SITDOWNERS continued picketing on Peachtree St., the heart of the Atlanta shopping district, protesting the jimcrow service in department and variety stores.

The colored college students were joined on the picket line by white college men and women.

The Walgreen Store reclosed its lunch counter when sitdowners sought service.

Some 75 demonstrators picketed Macy's in New York in sympathy with the Atlanta movement. Macy's owns the Davison - Paxon store in Atlanta which has segregated luncheon facilities.

• • •

IN MEMPHIS, TENN., the Municipal Zoo and Art Gallery were desegregated. Signs specifying certain days for colored persons were taken down.

Suits to desegregate city facilities are already pending in federal courts.

Local colored adults plan a boycott against downtown stores with jimcrow eating policies. Eight were turned away on one day in a sitdown which, they said, followed a "breakdown" in negotiations between store managers and sitdowners.

Two days later, police arrested eight men and colored women at a downtown eating place. On this day, more than 30 sitdowners, youths and adults, demonstrated in downtown stores and restaurants.

LITTLE ROCK — The citizens of this city must "face up to the moral imperatives of religious faith," declared the Rev. Colbert S. Cartwright. The pastor of Pulaski Heights Christian Church, he has attacked the city school board for its slow policy on desegregation.

"The only stricture is that the white pupils must not commit violence to the extent that the school's accreditation might be jeopardized."

In allowing this situation to exist, he said the school board members "have not acted in good faith either with the patrons against whom they plot or with God."

NAACP BATTLEFRONT

Yule buying halt is 70% effective

JACKSON, Tenn. — The NAACP - sponsored "No Christmas Gifts Buying" campaign is 70 per cent effective, according to a spokesman here last week.

Dr. W.R. Bell said colored residents of the city and surrounding Madison County are protesting against discriminatory and discourteous treatment by local merchants.

The NAACP Lane College chapter is continuing to picket variety stores seeking the end of lunch counter bias and the right to use rest rooms.

Two students were arrested here last week. Dr. Bell said. He is chairman of the financial committee of the adult 'Community Coordinating Committee which was set up to back the sitdowners.

Assault on Dixie industry barriers

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — An attack will be launched against discrimination in souther industry. The decision was made at a six-state southeastern regional conference of sitdown leaders here.

Herbert Hill, NAACP labor secretary, said colored workers have made few significant employment gains in new southern industry.

He said: "According to state government statistics, the number of textile workers employed in South Carolina in 1918 was 48,000 and 125,000 in 1960; while the percentage of colored workers in the textile labor force fell from 9 per cent to 4.8 per cent during the same period."

He urged President-elect Kennedy to take immediate action to get a federal fair employment practices act passed.
