Coaches pick 4 from Loyola, 2 each from Poly, Patterson

Players from Loyola High School dominated the 1960 all-high football team, selected by Division "A" coaches for the AFRO - AMERICAN this week.

Athletes under coach Tracy Mehr garnered two line posts and two backfield berths. In addition, two other Loyola youngsters were strong contenders for that many more positions on the mythical schoolboy eleven.

• • •

DICK CREMINS and Chip Longley were nominated to the all - high line, and Harry Hartzell and Henry Blaha were placed in the all - star backfield.

Poly placed two boys on the mythical team, as did Patterson Park. The other three berths went one each to Mt. St. Josephs, Clavert Hall and City College.

The Engineers chosen were Roland Savage and Bill Spangler. Patterson's two nominees were Dave Pivec and Clark Hutson.

Mike Roland of Mt. St. Joe, Bob Harner of Calvert Hall, and Al Richardson of City, complete the 11 - man roster.

• • •

THE YEAR'S top scholastic ends, according to the balloting, were Pivec, a near - unanimous choice, and Roland; the tackles picked were Richardson and Spangler, the latter one of a classy brother duo at Poly.

• • •

Named to the guard slots were Cremin and Hutson, with Longley corralling a heavy vote for the center assignment.

• • •

THE COACHES chose Hartzell on every ballot, all save one naming the Loyola quarterback as the top choice, and that one picking him no worse than No. 2.

Hargzell is given the signal-calling nod in a formidable backfield that is made up of hard and shifty runners — Savage, Harner and Hartzell's teammate, Blaha.

Several players were given noteworth support in the city-wide balloting, the heaviest going to Chuck Smith, a Loyola end, and Bob LaPoint, a Poly wingman.

Cavalier Athletic Club holds fete, honors players

WASHINGTON

The Cavalier Athletic Club, member of the D.C. Amateur Football Conference held its second annual Award Banquet Saturday night at the Abart's International Lounge, 1928 Ninth St., NW, to honor its football, baseball and softball teams.

Attending the annual event were guest speaker R. W. Gaddis, printing instructor at Langley Junior high school, and Olympic silver medalist, James (Jim) Bradford.

Mr. Gaddis praised all members of the organization and told them that they "have done a commendable job in their community (Southwest!."

"These men are dedicated to sports," the printing instructor told members and guests. "And sports are an integral part of any community," he told them.

• • •

THE TEACHER told players that even though all cannot win awards they make it possible for those who do get the medals and awards.

"All players cannot win awards," he said, "but you must remember that you are part of the team and you made the awards possible for other players."

The instructor pointed out that athletics have cut the delinquency rate greatly. He also stressed the fact that such an organization as the Cavalier Athletic Club has "given many young men something to do."

"This keeps them from getting into delinquent activities and helps to keep them physically fit," he said as he received a big hand.

He ended his speech by saying many are part of the team even though they are not seen on the playing field.

• • •

THE BANQUET highlighted the closing of the Cavaliers' softball, baseball and softball season. The softball team won the league championship while the football squad finished fourth.

All members of the championship softball team received certificates. The citations were presented by Mr. Bradford, the honored guest.

Receiving certificates were: Francis Henderson, Micky Primrose Kenneth Power, Randolph Stewart, Frank Walter, Raleigh Pointer, Tommy Thompson, William Jordan, Joseph Butler, Dave Robinson, manager; Sherman Henson, Erving Harris, Billy R. Hamlet, Francis Lewis, Clarence Moore, Earl Cox, coach; James Robinson, Jerry Islar and Stanley Ford.

The most valuable player award for the softball team went to William Jordan and the most outstanding player award for the team was given to Clarence Moore.

OTHER individual awards were football sportsmanship awarded to Richard Nichols; football most valuable player, received by Francis Lewis; outstanding lineman, won by Willie McGee; and outstanding back, awarded to Lawrence Boone.

The Athlete of the year went to Randolph Stewart, who was an outstanding player in all sports.

The softball sportsmanship award was won by Tommy Thompson.

The Cavalier football all-star players were William Jordan, Charlie Smith, Willie McGee, Francis Gantt, William Watts, Ernest LeCount, Kenny Power, Francis Lewis, Lawrence Boone and Sherman Henson.

• • •

Softball coach Earl Cox received the outstanding achievement award; Henry Loving, who was referred to as a vital man in the Cavalier organization, was given the meritorious service award.

Waymond Brown, another key figure of the club was presented a distinguished service award.

According to head football and basketball coach, Leon (Rub) Fields the Cavaliers were organized in 1952 and entered the D.C. Amateur Football Conference in 1956.

Mr. Fields said the team was originally a member of the D.C. Junior Football Conference and as the players got older they entered the present conference.

As organizer and coach of the team for all these years Fields said the club was organized to help young men who had finished high school and could not afford to go to college. He said he was interested in not having the young men waste their talents.

• • •

CLUB PRESIDENT, Vincent Hawkins, said the group has come a long way.

The same was said by the D.C. Amateur Football Conference Commissioner, Richard Stone. Mr. Stone also said the league has done much to curb delinquency.

The youth receiving the No. 2 Police Boys Club award for the most outstanding football player was 14 - year - old Samuel Bookings. The youth was among the 120 pounders.

• • •

OTHER GUESTS included the Rev. Jesse Brown of the Second Baptist Church, First and M Sts., SW, Willie Watts Steve Wiggins, Bruce Wahl, George Minor, Walter Butler, Arthur Wilmer, James R. Trotters vs. Generals at Uline Saturday

WASHINGTON

Player - Coach Louis (Red) Klotz's Washington Generals will be strongly fortified in all positions when they test the Original Harlem Globetrotters in the basketball nightcap of a triple - header variety show at Uline Arena Saturday night.

John (Ole) Oslen, still an outstanding showman at 72, will headline the condensed version of "Hellzapoppin'," the long time Broadway comedy stage hit, that will open the program at 8:30 p.m.

Rene Rochoott, Bernie Bukiet, Norikazu Fujii and Richard Bergmann, four of the world's greatest table tennis players, will meet in singles and doubles matches at intermission of the basketball game.

Klotz, one of basketball's smallest campaigners at five feet, seven inches and 160 pounds, is a former Villanova captain who also played hitches with the Baltimore Bullets and the Philadelphia Warriors of the National Basketball Association.

• • •

THE GLOBETROTTERS will feature Joe Buckhalter, 6 feet, 8 inches and 205 pounds, as their big man and will otherwise field a combination of all 6-footers except for Capt. Clarence Wilson.

Wilson, a five foot, 11-inch forward and one of barnstorming basketball's greatest shots, is launched upon his 12th season with the Harlemites.

Meadowlark Lemon, Murphy Summons, Jack Fitzpatrick, Charlie (Tex) Harrison, Ernest Wagner, Frank Burks and Govoner Vaughn will round out the Trotters.

Tickets for this triple header holiday attraction are on sale at Uline Arena and at Irving's Sporting Goods Co., 10th and E Sts., NW.

DeMatha beats Clerks in pre-NBA game, 57-53

WASHINGTON

At a prelude to the National Basketball Association (NBA) game between the Philadelphia Warriors and the Detroit Pistons Tuesday night at the University of Maryland Cole field house the DeMatha Stags handed the Cardozo Clerks their initial setback of the season, 57-53.

Both teams are among the tops in the area and this game demonstrated that fact.

The DeMatha five, headed by John Austin, who hit 22 points, accumulated a six-point lead as the first period ended but from then on the Stags could barely stay ahead.

The Clerks fought hard and at the half they grabbed the lead from DeMatha 27-24.

AS THE third quarter began the two teams matched one another point for point, except for free throws, with the Stags staying in the lead by one, two and three points all along.

The tight contest progressed and as Cardozo was the team at the free - throw line more frequently, it looked as though the Clerks were playing better basketball. The Cardozo team was awarded 26 free - throws to the Stags' 18. The winning Stags hit nine of their 18 while Cardozo made 15 out of 26.

DeMatha iced the game when in the last five minutes Austin and Jose Jones combined their efforts and scored ten points.

The Clerks did not think so, for Clarence Eggleston, high scorer with 16 and Henry Holloway accounted for seven points to keep their team in reaching distance.

At this point it was young Austin who started to bide time dribbling. The Clerks decided that they must have the ball in order to score and set out to get it.

Each time the Clerks attempted to take the ball a foul was committed, with Austin being the recipient of the shot. He made two free-throws as the clock showed about a minute and a half to go.

'I'll fight all comers, if I get to be champ,' Liston declares

By CAL ADAMS

Sonny Liston, No. 1 heavyweight division contender, firmly believes he's the best man in the ring today. He revealed this during an AFRO interview Tuesday after appearing before the Antitrust and Monopoly Subcommittee which is investigating racketeers in boxing.

Liston, who berated Heavyweight Champion Floyd Patterson for picking his opponents, said "If I get to be champion, I'll fight anybody they match against me. Never will I stick to getting unknown and amateur fighters as leading contenders. I'd be just like Joe Louis, take on all comers."

The Philadelphia fighter, who stopped Eddie Machen by a decision in his last outing, said he is staying in shape by doing some roadwork and working out in a gym two or three times a week. "I want to stay trim because I plan to win the title the first time I get a shot at it," he declared.

Attired in a conservative dark grey suit, Liston said he's tipping the scales at 212 which is just about his fighting weight. He stands 6 feet, 1½ inches and wears a size 14 glove. He reputedly has the one of the largest fists among boxers.

Liston told the AFRO that one boxer everybody is shying away from is Miami's Cleveland Williams. "He is fast, ringwise and hits harder than any fighter I've met. Williams, I believe, can take either Patterson or Ingemar Johansson. I know Brian London and Pete Rademacher couldn't even stay two rounds with him (Williams)," the fighter declared.

THE BOXER, who fights out of Philly, said Patterson is doing boxing a lot of harm by fighting relatively unknowns for the title. "People don't want to go to see some guy they know nothing about. A fight between Patterson and me would draw the biggest gate in history I bet," he declared.

Asked about Johansson, Liston said he could take him with ease. He said Ingemar showed he knew little about boxing when he failed to capitalize on his second round advantage over Floyd in their last fight.

"After Johansson hit Patterson with his right in the second round, Floyd could do nothing for about a minute. That was the time to move in and send him away. Not knowing how to follow up probably cost Ingo the fight since Patterson stayed away from the right after that," he said in his analysis of the bout.

• • •

LISTON SAID he would have moved in on Floyd and hit him with "everything but the ring posts." He stated that Patterson can't take a good punch because everybody he's fought has had him down. "If I get him down he (Floyd) might get back up but he wouldn't stay up long," he declared.

To the reporter's comment that Patterson has fast hands and hits with either, the No. 1 contender replied:

"I know that. But I'd stay on top of him and punish him brutally from the inside. I'd be watching his hands and his feet too. I don't think Patterson can stand the kind of punches I land on the inside. I know he can't slug with me," Liston stated confidently.

• • •

THE NATTILY-DRESS'D fighter said he would fight anybody and everybody to get a shot at the title. "That proves I'm better than Patterson because he hasn't done that. I've fought and beat a lotta guys, Floyd bypassed and will fight any others that come along if it means a shot at the heavyweight title," he stated.

He said boxing is in a sad state of affairs because of non - fighting champs like Patterson. Liston contends that this has discouraged many good fighters from going for big stakes.

"Today, there's only about six good heavyweights and two light heavies. Next to me, Cleve Williams should be the man for a title shot. Those othee guys, Johansson and Brian, should have to meet us (Liston and Williams) before getting rated as possible contenders," he declared.

• • •

LISTON SAID he's scheduled to do some fighting in England early next year. However, he's doubtful because his manager, Joseph (Pep) Barone, is presently ill. He said Barone and England's top promoter, Jack Solomon, made the preliminary arrangements and he has to wait further notice.

"Well, I guess I'd better get back upstairs. I have to go on the stand at 2 p.m. But remember what I told you. I'll beat Patterson the first time I meet him. And after that, I'll be like Joe Louis, fight all comers," Liston said and hustled away to the committee hearings.

Golf Club to make 66 awards on Sunday

Clowns report sale of 2 to big league clubs

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. —Clarence Coleman, regular catcher of the Indianapolis Clowns baseball team in 1957, was the first choice and selection in the major league draft at the 59th annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues held in Louisville, Ky.

• • •

COLEMAN, of Orlando, Fla., was drafted by the Philadelphia Phillies for the sum of $25,000.

The 24 - year - old receiver spent last season in the Los Angeles Dodger chain where he caught for the Montreal Royals (International League Class AAA).

The Clowns simultaneously announced from their winter base here that the Houston (Texas) Baseball Club, new member of the National League whose franchise begins in 1962, purchased Alexander Harriday of Rockville, Md., for an undisclosed price.

• • •

HARRIDAY, an outfielder, will go to spring training with Houston next year.

He played leftfield for the Clowns during the 1959 season and 1960 seasons winding up the latter campaign with a sizzling .385 bat mark. He has a good arm and is very fast.

Twenty - year - old, Harriday stands six feet tall and weighs 195 pounds.
