FORCED OFF CAMPUS—Miss Charlayne Hunter, who broke the 175-year-old color line at the University of Georgia this week, leaves the campus in tears in the darkness of Wednesday night after violence broke out near her dormitory. She was escorted by State patrolmen and an unidentified University official.

Text of ruling in Ga. case

ATLANTA — Here is the text of the historic order by Chief Judge Elbert P. Tuttle of the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, a trustee of Atlanta University and a Republican, setting aside the stay granted University of Georgia officials by U.S. District Judge W. A. Bootle, also a Republican.

THIS APPLICATION by the original plaintiffs, Hamilton E. Holmes and Charlayne Hunter, the appellees in this Court, seeks an order of the undersigned as a Judge of the Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit vacating an order of stay pending the appeal entered by the District Court this (Monday) morning.

Authority for the grant of this court is conferred upon us by Rule 62 (g) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, which provides as follows:

"(g) Power of Appellate Court Not Limited. The provisions in this rule do not limit any power of an appellate court or of a judge or justice thereof to stay proceedings during the pendency of an appeal or to make any order appropriate to preserve the status quo or the effectiveness of the judgment subsequently to be entered."

THE INJUNCTION issued by the trial court on the 6th day of January, 1961, by the Honorable W. A. Bootle, United States District Judge for the Middle District of Georgia, permanently enjoined the defendant, Walter N. Danger, his agents, employees, successors, associates and all persons in active concert and participation with him from denying the plaintiffs the right to enroll and enter the University of Georgia as students therein effective this day. It the plaintiffs should so elect.

The said judgment of injunction was based upon extensive findings of fact.

These findings expressly hold that the plaintiffs had been and were being denied their constitutional rights under the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution solely on account of their race and color by the denial by the defendant of their right to enter the University of Georgia as students.

This conclusion of the trial court was amply supported by subsidiary findings of fact.

NOTWITHSTANDING the findings by the trial court that the plaintiffs were being denied such constitutional rights solely by reason of race or color, the trial court, upon motion of the defendant Registrar, granted a stay of the injunction pending an appeal by the University of Georgia to the Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. The grant of such a stay is contrary to law and is not based, among other things, upon the likelihood of a reversal of the judgment entered from it an appellate court.

There being no substantial question presented upon which the defendant can appeal, the appeal to this Court is, therefore, one largely on the findings of fact and are permitted to do so only if they find such findings "clearly erroneous."

No showing was made on this hearing to indicate that there is any substantial likelihood of a reversal of the decision of the District Court.

THE DENIAL of a constitutional right for whatever reason, cannot be said to be and/the same is hereby age merely because the damage cannot be measured by money. Irreparable injury results in the denial of a constitutional right, largely because it cannot be measured by any known scale of value.

I do not believe that the courts have ever relied upon sors, associates and all persons in active concert and participation with him from denying the plaintiffs the right to enroll and enter the University of Georgia as students therein effective this day. It the plaintiffs should so elect.

I AM of the opinion that the quickest disposition that can be made of this case, so far as granting these plaintiffs their right to an education in a State institution is the grant of the injunction found that they are entitled to, is the best solution not only for them, but for all others concerned.

Finding no basis for the grant of the stay by the trial court other than its recognition of the right of every litigant to appeal from an adverse decision, I have concluded that the stay was improvidently granted.

It is therefore, ORDERED, that the stay entered by the District Court for the Middle District of Georgia this day be and the same is hereby set aside, and it is FURTHER ORDERED that the permanent injunction entered by the District Court on January 6, 1961, be and the same is reinstated effective this date. See Lucy vs. Adams, 350 U.S. 1.

This 9th day of January, 1961.

afternoon—during prolonged argument in the Judge's Chambers from which lawyers from both sides emerged saying "no comment."

COURT OBSERVERS expressed belief that Judge Bootle had delayed action in returning the students to school to allow the governor and university officials to act on their own.

But Gov. Vandiver, when queried by reporters about this, snarled "I didn't put 'em in there in the first place."

Judge Bootle after a two-hour hearing Thursday declared unconstitutional Georgia's law cutting off funds to integrated schools.

He also restrained Governor Ernest Vandiver and State Auditor B. B. Thrasher from closing the school.

MEANWHILE AT Athens, Police Chief E. E. Hardy disclosed that nine of the Atlanta men arrested during the Wednesday night mob outbreak were found to hold Klan membership cards.

The officer also said he found nine loaded guns and an ammunition belt in their car. Two of the men, he said, were found to be Fulton (Atlanta) County deputy sheriffs.

While most Georgians were professing shame and regret over the riot, Peter Zack Geer, executive secretary to Gov. Vandiver, praised members of the mob "for character and courage" in "resisting dictatorship and tyranny."

State highway patrolmen acted under the Governor's executive proclamation to "physically remove" Miss Hunter and Mr. Holmes from the school.

He contended his move was in the interests of "peace and safety" and "under use of his police powers" to protect the rights of the citizens of Georgia.

Then Mayor Ralph Snow bitterly protested the refusal of state highway patrolmen or members of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation to help city authorities quell the rioters.

THE OUTBREAK, obviously carefully planned, was staged following a Georgia Tech-University of Georgia basketball game.

Pouring out of the gymnasium, the high crowd composed largely of adults, swarmed towards Myers Hall where Charlayne Hunter was quartered.

Throwing rocks, firecrackers and armed with needle sharp pointed sticks, the students egged on by men who were identified as Atlanta Klansmen, broke 30 windows out of the dormitory, set nearby woods on fire and attempted to rush the building and seize Miss Hunter.

Athens' police chief E. E. Hardy told the AFRO he had made repeated calls to Col. William P. Trotter of the State Highway Patrol only to be told that no enforcements could be sent without an order from Governor Vandiver.

After Athens police, aided by firemen had brought the riot under control, state highway patrolmen appeared on the campus to remove the students from school.

The suspension order issued by Joseph A. Williams, Dean of Students, who asserted he acted for "the safety of all students colored and white."

The highway patrolmen said they were acting on orders of Gov. Vandiver who had issued a midnight executive order, in defiance of a Federal injunction, removing Miss Hunter and Holmes from the school.

Charlayne was in tears when police entered the dormitory and ordered her to accompany them back to Atlanta.

Segregationist leaders on the campus were boasting early Wednesday afternoon that they were going to overrule Judge Bootle Wednesday night. This was a reference to U. S. Judge Bootle, who had issued orders desegregating the school.

"We got some strong arm help and money coming from Atlanta," they were overheard boasting.

During the height of the melee, a man who identified himself as J. L. Brazelton, mayor of Braselton, shouted that he personally would go the bonds of all students arrested.

"This is the worst thing we've ever had here since I can remember," said Chief Hardy.

THE TWO PRINCIPALS in the Georgia integration drama attended classes without incident until Wednesday night. Charlayne, after spending a "restful" first night in a campus dormitory on campus is a student from Red China, who rose from his seat during a student Fully for moderation to announce in broken English:

"I no want to go to school with black people. Myself like the southern way of life."

The assembled white students, non-plused by this unexpected convert to Dixie, let him take his seat without making any rebuttal.

pockets each year.

For another, unlike Tuscaloosa, Ala., which erupted four years ago when Authurine Lucy made her appearance at the University of Alabama, Athens has no large manufacturing plants where red-neck hillbillies and workers can be whipped up to mob action.

But most important of all at the University of Georgia there is a tough - minded William Tate, the (I don't brook no foolishness) dean of men, and four student church organizations which had done an excellent job of preparing students and their leaders for what was termed "the inevitable."

IT DIDN'T take Dean Tate long to demonstrate what he meant when he told this reporter his belief that the best way to stop violence was not to let it get started.

More than a 1,000 students were standing outside the Henry W. Grady Journalism School where Charlayne Hunter was completing her registration. Classes were breaking and the crowd was getting larger and larger.

Suddenly a red haired freckle - faced youth shouted "Let's go to the dorm!" Then more began chanting, "two four-six-eight, we don't want to integrate" the traditional cry.

Dean Tate, who was watching through a window from the building, rushed for the door. Pushing through the throng of students, he grabbed the two ringleaders by the yelling, "It's all over, break it up."

From the two ringleaders he snatched their membership cards, to a student at Georgia a fate almost worst than death. Without his ID card, a student can't attend class, can't use the dining hall, or even enter his dormitory. Actually, he can't remain in school.

Dean Tate's act quickly took all of the starch out of the demonstration.

ACTUALLY STUDENTS of the mentality to violently protest of two colored students in the realm of 7,600 white ones are few in number at the University of Georgia.

Two petitions circulated on campus Saturday and Sunday dramatically told the story.

Segregationists, after trudging up and down campus buildings and frat house dormitories and dining halls, were able to get only 110 signatures to a petition advocating that the University of Georgia be kept segregated.

In marked contrast, another group of students, who said they were ready to face realities, picked up some 4,000 signatures on companion petitions which they delivered in person to Gov. Ernest Vandiver and Senate Floor Leader Frank Twitty.

The second petition demanded that the university be kept open "at all costs."

BEHIND THE open school petition was hard and intense work of four student church organizations, the Wesmin Methodist Student Fellowship, Newman Catholic Club, the Canterbury Episcopal Foundation and the Methodist Wesley Foundation.

These Christian agencies working through student leaders on the campus, were able to get across the message that under no circumstances must there be violence when integration came.

And they did a most effective job.

The campus newspaper, Red and Black, whose editor Harry Hazelwood of Atlanta had earlier signed the segregationist petition, came out Monday with a front page editorial urging students to take a "non - violent action."

He warned them to "beware of demonstrations from the Wesley Student Government Association. The former occupants were moved to other quarters.

day to provide escorts for the two young colored students.

"We wanted to be of help in showing them around the campus" they said. They added that they also intended to invite Charlayne, who is to be a journalism student, to join the campus newspaper staff.

WHILE THERE are many Emorys, Tommys and Marchias, there are also a number of students like Susan Harris, niece of the avowed segregationist leader, Roy V. Harris of Augusta. Miss Harris, of Wrens, Ga., also registered Monday and left no doubt that she shared the racial feeling of her uncle.

"I hope they can keep them out," she said, "I certainly don't want to sit in any class with a n-r-."

And there is Tom Linder II, son of the former agriculture commissioner under the late Gov. Gene Talmadge. Linder is an unabashed segregationist and doesn't mind letting anyone know it.

He is proud of his father's record in the legislature and in their ability to maintain for us both "I have deep faith in the segregation and open doors," he said.

$100 bonds set for Atlanta sitdowners

By CLIFF MACKAY

ATLANTA — Agreeing with Attorney A. T. Walden that the "law of the land is clear on the subject" Police Judge R. E. Jones Tuesday nevertheless held four young people for the grand jury for a Dec. 9 sitdown demonstration at the Atlanta Terminal Station.

Mr. Walden, veteran NAACP lawyer, citing the Boynton case just decided by the Supreme Court on Dec. 5, reminded the jurist that an operator of a restaurant terminal, has no more right in a train, bus or airport to deny service to interstate passengers.

The four youngsters arrested in Atlanta, Misses Ruby and Mary Ann Smith and John L. Gibson and Robert Felder, who just returned from Birmingham when they took seats in the Terminal Station restaurant leased by the Union News Co.

POLICE CAPTAIN C. C. HAMBY, who made the arrests, said he acted under a 1960 Georgia trespass law, enacted to curtail sitdown demonstrations.

Walden, in asking dismissal of the charges argued that the arrests violated the four students' constitutional rights and that to bind the cases over to the grand jury would be merely "useless consumption of time and expense for both sides."

Judge Jones, recently installed in police court, conceded that the arrests could not be legally justified, but said he felt a higher court should pass on the matter.

The four were released on $100 bonds. The two girls are students at Spelman College, while Gibson and Felder are reporters for Atlanta's newest newspaper, the Atlanta Inquirer.

Contempt hearing for 3 La. officials

NEW ORLEANS — Three top Louisiana officials are slated to appear before federal District Judge J. Skelly Wright (Friday) to show cause why they should not be cited for contempt of court.

They are Lt. Gov. C. C. (Taddy) Aycock, House Speaker Tom Stagg and Sen. Shelby Jackson.

The court was asked by a U.S. attorney to hold the officials in contempt for refusing to pay teachers at two New Orleans schools which were desegregated in No-vember under a Federal court order.

United States District Attorney M. Hepburn Many filed motions in U.S. District Court asking that the court declare the three officials in contempt.

The motions said that the trio refused to "draw, sign and issue salary checks" to employees at William Frantz and McDonogh 19 Elementary Schools, and to certain other employees, for the purpose and effect of interfering with operation of the schools by the Orleans Parish School Board, pursuant to prior orders of this court."

answer on Jan. 3.

It states:

"On Dec. 13, 1960, at 11:15 p.m., respondent and female companion entered a house on Washington Drive Oyster Harbor, Annapolis.

"At approximately 12:45 a.m., Dec. 14, one hour after arrival, respondent, wearing no clothes, was sitting on sofa in said house. He was conversing with female companion, who wore only scanty undergarments.

"Respondent left house for short time, but returned and remained with female companion for balance of night, arising in morning in his own room 9:45 a.m., Dec. 14."

Complainant's answer lists 16 private detectives as witnesses.

In interrogatories, filed Jan. 7 with her answer to respondent's interrogatories, Mrs. Johnson asks that her husband produce records of his earnings for the past three years.

Mrs. Johnson is asking the physician to show his Federal income tax returns for the years, 1958, '59, and a declaration of estimated income tax for 1960.

Dr. Johnson has also been asked to produce records showing the amounts he has contributed to the support of his family for the past two years, Judge O. Bowie Duckett on Jan. 10 scheduled a hearing for Feb. 14 in Annapolis Circuit Court.

Georgia U. by no means 'all-white'

By Staff Correspondent

ATHENS, Ga. — Newspaper wire service reports who persist in calling the 175-year-old University of Georgia an "all - white" school were not exactly telling the truth, the AFRO learned Tuesday.

A check at the registrars office disclosed that of the 7,400 - plus student enrolled at the school, 74 of them by no stretch of the imagination could be classified as white.

The largest group of colored students at Georgia are Japanese, numbering 36.

There are 14 Chinese, including two from Red China; eight from India; three from Pakistan; 10 from Korea and three from the Philippine Republic.

Hostility—then 'Welcome to the University of Georgia'

(By STAFF CORRESPONDENT)

ATHENS, Ga. — When 18-year old Charlayne Hunter and 19-year old Hamilton Holmes approached the entrance to the University of Georgia campus Monday, one white man stepped from the curious crowd.

"Welcome to the University of Georgia," he said. "I want you to know that I will extend to you every courtesy."

Daily newspapers described him as "unidentified."

But he was the Rev. Russell Edwards, director of the Wesley Foundation, the Methodist student organization.

"I looked around at all of those stony expressions on the faces of that crowd and I just felt that as an individual and as a Christian minister, it was my duty to take a stand for basic human dignity and give a voice of welcome to those courageous young people."

Tan coed given short lavish quarters in U. of Ga. dorm

ATHENS, Ga. — The University of Georgia officials have "discriminated against the 200 other coeds living in Myers Hall by assignment of Miss Charlayne Hunter, the institution's first colored coed.

Her quarters, decorated in old rose, are the most lavish on the campus. Assigned a private suite, normally used by dormitory officers, she has her own telephone, a kitchenette where she can prepare her own breakfast and a private bath.

To make way, she moved the two top officers of the Women's Student Government Association. The former occupants were moved to other quarters.

LT. SAMUEL L. BROWN and Miss Margaret N. Bevins were married in Morgan College Christian Center Saturday.

Mrs. Mary Gross Bennett feted on 80th birthday

By CHARLOTTE DOWNIE

Mrs. Mary Gross Bennett was honored at an elegant birthday dinner by her three children, at her Druid Hill Avenue Home, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Bennett, a resident of Baltimore all her life, is the last surviving member of the Gross Family of Old South Baltimore. She is the widower of the late Charles Henry Bennett and the daughter of the late Isaac and Annie Gross. He was the first colored stove mechanic in Baltimore.

THE HONOREE received her education in the public schools of Baltimore and also attended the then Biblical Institute, located at Edmondson Avenue and Fulton, from which Morgan State College evolved.

Mrs. Bennett is a life long member of Sharp St. Methodist Church and was baptized in 1883 by the late Rev. John A. Holmes. She is not active at present but believes in several Fraternal and Civic organizations in the city. She is an ardent supporter of the NAACP.

THE GALA AFFAIR was planned and directed by her daughter, Mrs. Susie Bennett Reid, assisted by her other two children, Miss Anna G. Bennett and Charles Bennett. For the occasion she was radiant in a silk teal and daisy print two-piece suit.

Greetings to the honoree were given by Dr. Lillie M. Jackson, Richard Ryan, Mrs. Emily Brittian Childs, the Rev. Edward G. Carroll, and Mrs. Dolly Bennett. Augustus J. Holsey, soloist, and Mrs. Annie Laurie Williams, pianist, provided the music.

Assisting hostesses included Mrs. Inez B. Smith and Miss Margaret Johnson, Miss Lota Howard, Mrs. Timally S. Childs, Misses Mary Giles and Mary Johnson, and Martina Johnson.

Guests were:

Messrs and Mesdames Alfred Dixon, Howard Washington, Henry Sampson and William M. Rawlings, Rev. and Mrs. Edward G. Carroll and Rev. and Mrs. William A. Williams:

He is a graduate of Morgan State College and the Howard University School of Medicine.

Dr. Stansbury is a member of the staff of the Harford Memorial Hospital in Havre de Grace. He presently holds the positions of County Health Officer and treasurer of the Harford County Medical Society.

He is also a member of the Kappa Pi Honor Society.

Following a Caribbean honeymoon the newlyweds are at home 400 S. Stokes St., Havre de Grace, Md.

Private rites unite Pinkney and Bennett

In a private wedding ceremony, attended only by relatives, the former Mrs Beatrice Pinkney became the bride of Julian Bennett, Wednesday evening.

The simple rites were held in the parish house of Union Baptist Church, and the Rev. Baxter L. Matthews, pastor, officiated.

Mrs. Pinkney, wearing a simple blue chiffon dress with matching shoes and four-leaf clover, "for luck," was given in marriage by her twin brother, Jesse Usher.

Best man was the bride-groom's brother, Charles R. Bennett Jr., and Miss Geraldine Harris was maid of honor.

The new Mrs. Bennett is a well known barmaid, employed at a Monroe St. night club, Blue Sunset.

THE BRIDGROOM, a country club employee, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Reginald Bennett, 3416 Woodbrook Ave., caterers.

Following the ceremony, parents of the bridegroom held a reception in honor of the newlyweds.

Decorated in colors matching the bride's wedding dress, the reception rooms were replete with foods and refreshments, including whirling champagne fountains, and an electric ferris wheel carrying a variety of goodies.

This is the second marriage for each of the newlyweds. They have two children each.

From former marriages.

Mrs. Bennett, whose wedding ensemble was designed by Miss Lorraine Gordon Chaney, said she is "tickled" to have a ready - made family.

Her children are, Timothy and Kevin, 8 and 7 and Mr. Bennett's youngsters are Julian J., 14, and Gerald Anthony, 13.

Temporarily, the couple is living with the parents of the bridegroom.
