200 alumni at Hampton Regional Conference dinner

A dinner meeting, which closed the all-day session of the Mid-Atlantic regional conference of the National Hampton Alumni Association, was attended by 200 alumni here, Sunday.

The conference was held in the Sheraton-Baltimore Inn.

The theme of the conference, "Alumni Support in the Sixties," brought interesting remarks from a battery of prominent persons and speakers.

• • •

DR. JEROME H. HOLLAND, president of Hampton Institute, affectionately known as "Brud" from his All-America football days, extended greetings to the many Alumni. Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, president of Morgan State College, spoke of Hampton's highly organized Alumni association, saying that it is the envy of many colleges.

Dr. G. James Flemming, Hampton Alumnus, class of 1926, and Professor of Political Science at Morgan State College was the principal speaker. Dr. Flemming remarked that private institutions like Hampton, have formed a balance in American Collegiate education and have tended to off-set the power of State controlled institutions.

• • •

DR. FLEMMING spoke of the modern concept of the duty of college alumni groups. Hampton Alumni, he said, must give of their time, energy, funds, and knowledge to be worthy of the name. Dr. Flemming expressed the ways of supporting Hampton and the need to enrich the United Negro College Fund.

Sidney Hollander, Baltimore industrialist and civic leader, spoke of the admiral part that young colored college students are playing in the fight for civil rights. He expressed a profound interest in the work that Hampton has done in practical education over the years.

• • •

HENRY C. JOHNSON, president of the Baltimore Chapter, brought greetings to the group and expressed the delight of the local chapter in hosting the conference.

Mr. Johnson remarked that all Hamptonians have a common denominator in their love for the institute. This stems from the fact, Mr. Johnson said, that Hamptonians received more than an education at the famous school and leave with an ingrained feeling of gratitude. This gratitude, to be kept alive, must result in service.

• • •

DR. SAUL M. PERDUE, Hampton Trustee, was master of ceremonies and introduced a distinguished speaker's table composed of Dr. D. O. W. Holmes, president emeritus, Morgan State College, Mayor Walter R. Brown, Hampton Institute, Dr. William H. Watson, president of the National Hampton Alumni Association.

Also Oliver G. Taylor, director of Alumni Affairs, Hampton Institute, David R. Bryd, president of the Washington Chapter; J. Alexander Williams, Newport News Virginia, regional president; Doswell E. Brooks, Hampton Trustee and, of course, wives of these men.

• • •

THE DINNER was preceded by a cocktail hour and the many Alumni had an opportunity to renew old acquaintances in the atmosphere of the ballroom of the lovely new Sheraton Hotel in East Baltimore.

The morning business sessions of the regional conference brought some sixty delegates from alumni associations in the Mid-Atlantic area.

The local planning committee, which arranged the conference was composed of:

Henry C. Johnson, president; Jake Cox, Mrs. Erma Meacham, Mrs. Catherine Adams, Mrs. Gwendolyn Lewis, Miss Marfan Gregory, Mrs. Osceola Allor;

Saul M. Perdue, Theodore Gross, Mrs. Lousonia Jefferson, Mrs. Artie B. Williams, Mrs. Phyllis Thompson, Mrs. Vera Taylor, Ossarew Gee, Mrs. Estellena Showes, Mrs. Melissa Perdue, Raleigh Singletary, Ward Hollis and William Henderson.

• • •

ANOTHER FEATURE of the program was an alumni choir composed of former members of the Hampton Choir, now living in Baltimore. The choir was directed by Mr. Gerald Burks Wilson, a Hampton Conservatory Graduate, and former professor of music at the college.

The choir sang several selections composed by the late Dr. R. Nathaniel Dett of Hampton Institute.
