Coach Sees Pete Help Bears Need

"With the kind of coaching help he can get at Morgan, Ruby Peterson could very well prove the medicine the Bears need to make it to the CIAA basketball tournament."

This was Bill (Sugar) Cain's lament as he bade farewell to his ace rebounder Wednesday, and began to prepare for the "long, hard" second half confronting his Dunbar High School quint.

The Bard mentor turned the AFRO interview into a 2-ply conversation. He dwelt briefly on the dark days ahead for his Dunbar cagers, clinging to his contention that "we'll need a lot of luck to win another game." Cain lost four of the five starters who gave him and the East Baltimore school a 6-0 record for the first half of the scholastic campaign.

ONE OF the departing stars is Peterson, who reported yesterday (Thursday) morning to Morgan as a freshman. That took his attention.

"I talked to Brute (Morgan coach Brutus Wilson) and told him this kid can help him tremendously. I told him what adjustments I thought would be necessary for Rudy to make to fit him into the college picture. I know he (Wilson) will find out for himself but I figured any suggestions would help.

"After all, I'm an old Morganite, you know.

"Rudy was our life - saver this half. He is a big, strong kid who has learned exceptionally well. With Brute's help, he can go a long way — and Morgan with him."

THE BEARS open a crucial stretch drive tomorrow (Saturday) night, entertaining Virginia State College in the Hurt gymnasium.

Wilson and his charges are ninth in the CIAA standings as the second half of the conference gets under way. They must improve on their 4-5 record if they are to make the annual tournament, scheduled this year at Winston - Salem, N.C., March 24.

AT HOME, this month Morgan meets three conference teams that are ahead of them in the CIAA ratings. They are: Virginia State 9-5, Delaware State College (4-2) Feb. 14; and Maryland State College (5 - 3) Feb. 25.

In a non - conference game, Morgan will play Fort Monmouth at home on Feb. 17.

Away games during February include: Howard University with a 3-8 record, Feb. 8; Lincoln University (1-6), Feb. 10, and Maryland State (5-3) Feb. 11.

Rayburn chalks up win in Rules fight

WASHINGTON (NNPA) — Speaker Sam Rayburn scored a narrow victory Tuesday when the House voted 217-212 to enlarge the Rules Committee, a move designed to keep the powerful body from pigeonholing legislation President Kennedy wants passed.

The bitter fight to expand the committee from 12 to 15 was spearheaded by Mr. Rayburn as sort of a compromise between liberal Democrats and a coalition led by southern opposition.

Liberal Democrats demanded the ouster of Rep. William C. Colmer of Mississippi and several other southern Democrats from important committee assignments for refusal to support the national ticket.

In a counter move, southern Democrats threatened to retaliate against any attempted purge by demanding that Rep. Adam C. Powell of Harlem also be removed from the important House Education and Labor Committee for going against the national ticket in 1956.

All four colored members of House — Reps. William L. Dawson of Illinois, Adam C. Powell of New York, Charles C. Diggs of Michigan and Robert N.C. Nix of Pennsylvania — voted for the change as expected.

Of the 174 Republicans, 22 broke away from their leader and voted for the resolution to add two Democrats and a Republican to the committee.

And of the 108 southern and border Democrats, 64 voted to keep the committee at 12 members, including seven of 21 Texans.

M.R. RAYBURN, a Texan, made his first move in the fight by having the House reelect the Democratic members of the House and Ways and Means Committee which serves as a committee on committee for House Democrats.

His next move was to call a press conference and announce he had decided to instead of the usual practice of the Democratic Committee to unanimously agree to oppose the change. He held a caucus of all Republican members and urged them to vote against the Rayburn proposal.

Mr. Smith agreed to call a meeting of the Rules Committee and report out the resolution authorizing the increase, but announced he would oppose the move.

ORIGINALLY, the resolution was due to be called up on Jan. 26, but was postponed until Tuesday apparently because Mr. Rayburn was short on the necessary votes for victory. He apparently received the necessary votes with the support of President Kennedy.

Also backing the Speaker were lobbyists for school groups and the AFL-CIO.

Mr. Rayburn is planning on naming Reps. Carl Elliott of Alabama regarded as a liberal on matters other than civil rights, and John E. Moss of California, to the committee. Mr. Halleck has not made known who he plans to appoint.

Md. congressmen back change on Rules committee

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Representative Charles McC. Mathias Jr. of the Representative Charles McC. Mathias Jr. of the Maryland sixth congressional district, explained in a statement Wednesday that he had not followed the Republican leadership because he had made it campaign pledge to vote to enlarge the House Rules Committee.

He supported the increase in the size of the committee, Mr. Mathias said, because he had proposed last fall that the committee be broadened in its representation.

The Marylander does not see the 217-to-212 vote for the enlargement of the committee as a "test between conservative and radical principles in the 87th Congress."

All Maryland's Democratic Congressmen voted for enlarging the committee.

crease the size of the Rules Committee and not to purge anyone.

Was Reeves ditched to appease South?

By LOUIS LAUTIER

WASHINGTON (NNPA) — Was Frank D. Reeves, 44 - year - old lawyer given a turn - around in the selection of a replacement for Mark Sullivan Jr., on the District of Columbia Board of Commissioners?

FRANK D. REEVES

Since the Presidential election, Mr. Reeves had been tabbed for appointment as a Commissioner. Persons in position to know said he would get such an appointment.

Mr. Reeves himself expected even to a few hours before President Kennedy on Tuesday named Walter N. Tobriner, an attorney, and president of the District of Columbia Board of Education for the post.

Reports were definite Tuesday that President Kennedy had decided to appoint Mr. Reeves as a member of the three - member Board of Commissioners. Reporters at the White House sought confirmation of these reporters, but Pierre Salinger, Presidential press secretary, declined as late as 4 p.m., to confirm or deny the reports.

THE APPOINTMENT of Mr. Tobriner as a Commissioner and of Mr. Reeves as a special assistant to the President appeared to be sudden switch of plans.

A number of reasons have been offered unofficially for the change in plans but none of them could be verified.

One of the reasons suggested that the change was related to the bitter fight over increasing the size of the Rules Committee in order to insure that Mr. Kennedy's legislative program reaches the House floor for debate and vote.

The suggestion is that the switch was made to hold in line some Southerners, who were threatening to oppose enlarging the committee.

TWO DIXIECRAT members of the House District of Columbia Committee, which oversees the government of the District of Columbia, were reported to have been highly increased over reports that Mr. Kennedy had decided to appoint Mr. Reeves as a Commissioner.

They were Representatives John L. McMillan of South Carolina, chairman of the District of Columbia Committee, who is referred to as the Mayor of Washington, and Thomas G. Abernethy of Mississippi, the second ranking Democrat on that committee.

In addition to McMillan and Abernethy — Representative Howard W. Smith of Virginia, chairman of the House Rules Committee, who fought the change, and Representative James C. Davis of Georgia, an admitted former member of the Ku Klux Klan, are members of the District of Columbia Committee.

Other Southerners on the committee, all of whom are believed to have been bitterly opposed to a colored person being appointed a District Commission, include Representatives John Bell Williams of Mississippi, a spokesman for the White Citizens Councils.

ADDING FUEL to the opposition from this source was the fact that Mr. Reeves has been an NAACP attorney and participated in the trial of several important school segregation cases, particularly those arising in Alexandria and Arlington County, Va.

Also there was speculation that Mr. Reeves was a rid tracked because he would have become chairman of the Board if he had been appointed at this time. Some persons think he will get the next vacancy which occurs when the term of Robert E. McLaughlin, now president of the board, expires.

MR. SALINGER refused any comment on this possibility.

Before the announcement Tuesday evening, Mr. Tobriner had been considered a likely candidate to succeed Mr. McLaughlin. By being named now, Mr. Tobriner is expected to become president of the Board of Commissioners. Mr. McLaughlin, a Republican, who is the president, is expected to step aside.

Mr. Salinger said Mr. Reeves will "handle a variety of duties," including work in the civil rights field.

Mr. Reeves was elected District of Columbia Democratic National Committeeman last May. He ran on a slate pledged to support Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

When it became apparent that Senator Humphrey was getting nowhere fast, Mr. Reeves switched his support to Senator Kennedy. After Mr. Kennedy was nominated, he traveled with him as one of his advisers.

Board rejects plea for back fire escape

"We don't want to do anything to hurt the neighborhood, and we don't want to do anything to let any small children burn up."

Philip H. Goodman, president, Board of Estimates, was speaking Wednesday, as the Board rejected a plea to allow a fire escape to be placed on the rear of 1800 Druid Hill Ave., rather than on the side.

The Board ruled that because entrance to the second and third floor apartments was in the rear, a fire escape could not also be placed in the rear of the building.

Mrs. Florence Snowden, president, Northwest Residential Association, appeared before the Board to ask that the required fire escape not be placed on the side of the building.

bad."

ABOUT THE job he wishes he could get, Spriggs said: "I can do some very good cooking if necessary.

"But, I don't go too much for that. I'm not afraid of hard work and I can do it if I get a chance.

"I'm good on construction work. I've done that before. That's what I'd like.—

Almost wistfully he added:

"But, if I could get a half-way push, my nephew and I could go into a little business, papering and painting.

"We could make it, since spring is coming on."

SO THAT'S the story of Horace Spriggs, four months after society apologized for taking three years of his life.

Jobless, almost hopeless, he sits and wonders what tomorrow will bring.

He hopes that perhaps someone will remember, someone will care, and help get a chance to make all his dreams come true.

Dreams of a man dreams many dreams while he's in prison for three years, for a crime he never committed.

Mrs. Verda F. Welcome

Father of eight gets five years

A 41-year-old father of eight children was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary when he pleaded guilty to second degree murder, Wednesday.

Criminal Court Judge Dulaney Foster sentenced Solomon Robert E. Gwynn, 30, 500 block N. Calhoun St., last April.

In a signed statement to police, Ballard admitted stabbing Gwynn when they became involved in an altercation in the 600 block W. Fairmount Ave.

BALLARD told police that Gwynn, for no known reason, tried to start a fight with him.

After several attempts to avoid Gwynn failed, Judge Foster was told, the fatal stabbing followed.

"The defendant showed good judgment in trying to avoid trouble and yet he felt he was justified under the code by which he lives.

"I would like to return him to his family, but I can't."

Judge Foster first sent Ballard to the House of Correction, but changed it to the penitentiary at the request of Michael Freedman, defense attorney.

"For the convenience of his family, we agree to the request."

N.Y. Yankees won't field race bias

Apparently deciding that good ball playing and segregation don't jibe, the New York Yankees this week filed protest against the separate housing of their ballplayers at their St. Petersburg, Fla., training camp.

In a formal statement, Dan Topping, president of the ball club said "We would like very much to have the whole team under one roof.

"Howard, Lopez and Gender mean as much to our ball club as any other ballplayers," he said, referring to catcher Elston Howard, outfielder Hector Lopez, and rookie ratcher Jesse Gender.

The ball club's stand was made know at the request of Dr. Ralph Wimbush, president of the St. Petersburg chapter of the NAACP.

Dr. Wimbush urged the Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals to help end segregation in hotels and restaurants in Florida city.

"It is time the management of the clubs takes a hand in bringing an end to discrimination against colored players," he asserted.

Bob Fishel the Yanjees' publicity director, said efforts were underway to see that all Yankee players so desiring be permitted to stay at the team's hotel.

The Cardinals' general manager, Bing Devine, said they were aware of the problem but forsaw no solution.

"We have a problem there. We recognize that it is highly desirable for all players to stay together, but we don't make the rules and regulations for the various localities," Divine said.

The management of the Soreno Hotel, which houses the Yankees during their St. Petersburg stint, issued a statement to the effect that they wished to continue the arrangements "on the same basis.

"...I mean on the same basis as we've always had them by making arrangements for some of the players outside," said Norville H. Smith, assistant manager.

Fishel revealed that most of the team's family men "normally stay in cottages or rooms outside the hotel.

"But if he (Howard) would like to be quartered in the team's hotel, that's where we want him," he said.

Howard was quoted by a columnist of the New York Amsterdam News as saying:

"I want to bring my family to training, just as the other Yankees, but I can't make plans until I get down there and see what kind of house I can rent. The other players can rent them from an agent in advance, but I can't. It's not pleasant."

DOWN BUT NOT OUT is the attitude of Maryland State's James Phipps as he lies on the floor after passing the baton to teammate Bill Finger in the Capitol one-mile relay feature event of the Evening Star Games held last Saturday night. Phipps, running in the No. 2 spot, led his section and was barely able to make the pass before collapsing. The Maryland State team won the event. Meet officials are eyeing Phipps closely to see that he didn't commit a foul in making the hand-off. (AFRO photo by Maurice Sorrell).
