AS PART of its 28th anniversary celebration the Senior Choir of Christ Methodist Church presented Myrtle Mack in concert.

This very pretty young lady was charming in a becoming pink gown and very wisely made no attempt at the grand manner, but was modest and winning.

Here is a voice of dramatic length with promise of considerable brilliance in the upper range and rich texture in the middle register.

Under the excellent tutelage of her voice teacher, Mrs. Elsa Bakler and with the musicianship she is acquiring as a full-time student at the Peabody, she should develop into a singer of note.

She is capable of sympathetic and warm interpretations, as was evident in the spirituals and "O Holy Redeemer."

Miss Mack was well supported by Audrey Cyrus at the piano. After the recital, a reception was hosted by Mrs. Thelma Ennals, Senior Choir president, Mrs. Virgie Aaron, Mrs. Gloria Jones, Theodore G. White and the Rev. Edgar D. Hall, pastor.

Tommy Tucker store expands

More than 1,500 feet of display space and more than 3,000 feet of added storage room have been added to the Tommy Tucker Store, now covering 1705 - 1707 and 1709 Pennsylvania Ave.

Fixtures of the latest type have been erected in the new display area and merchandise will be displayed in wide variety than ever before, according to Stanley Samuelson, general manager.

The entire front of the buildings are also being remodeled and new modern see through windows are being installed. In addition, a huge new electric sign will cover the entire fifty foot front.

'Dead Horse' in capital, Pressman

"The legislature in Annapolis is a dead horse, led around by its nose by one man. Instead of protecting everybody's interest — including its own — except the people it is supposed to represent."

Hyman A. Pressman, "Taxpayers' Watchdog" leveled this charge while addressing the Frontiers Club, Tuesday.

Addressing 30 Frontiersmen at the Druid Hill YMCA during their regular luncheon meeting, the fiery attorney lambasted Gov. J. Millard Tawes and the State Legislature.

Led by Governor Tawes, "a one-man government," Mr. Pressman said, legislators are making laws which benefit the rich and hurt the poor.

• • •

"THE FIRST thing they did after getting to Annapolis was vote themselves a raise," he said.

"To benefit George Hocker, the governor's aide, and the liquor industry for which he is a lobbyist, lawmakers are supporting laws to remove state tax stamps from liquor.

"If passed, and it seems certain that it will, this not will cost the state $2 million in taxes," Mr. Pressman charged.

After he threatened suit, legislators recinded a $10 expense increase for themselves he said.

Another scheme which will cost taxpayers millions is the current effort of legislators to relax "conflict of interest laws," the attorney declared.

CONTRARY to their contentions, Pressman said, competitive bidding will not destroy evils created by relaxed conflict of finterest provisions.

Saying the legislature is led around by its nose, with no new or good ideas, Pressman charged that a serious situation in the prison system is being white - washed, instead of improved.

"Despite evidence obtained by Alvin J. T. Zumbrun, Maryland Crime Commission, and myself, which shows a serious narcotics problem at the House of Correction, legislators refused to take action," he charged.

Mr. Pressman said he not only obtained a list of drugs available at the prison, but prices as well.

He has urged Sen. Aaron Baer (5th Baltimore) to interview inmates in order to get more information. The Senator, said the spokesman, feels there's no need for more such interviews.

QUESTIONING THE need for new taxes called for in the Governor's recent budget message, Pressman said:

"Governor Tawes is raising tax this year to avoid doing so during an election year"

Other business saw Frontiersmen go on record as opposing the "preference clause" in the contract provisions of the Baltimore Urban Renewal and Housing Agency's Project 1.

The group adopted a resolution, introduced by Howard Mitnick, chairman, public affairs committee, to send telegrams to President Kennedy, Mayor J. Harold Grady and the City Council.

They asked the mayor and City Council to exert every effort to insure fair treatment for all persons affected by the renewal project.

TELLING President Kennedy that $40 million in govern funds are involved, Frontiersmen urged him to use his influence to make sure the project is handled according to pronounced national policy, which guarantees equal treatment to all citizens, regardless of race, creed or color.

Frontiers president, Samuel T. Daniels announced that the Regional Conference will be held April 15-16 at the Stafford.

Baltimore Frontiersmen too part in the March of dimes.

'Freeze' backfires at Univ. of Georgia

By CLIFF MACKAY

ATHENS, Ga. — Efforts of segregationists through a organization called "Students for Passive Resistance" to give the cold shoulder to Charlayne Hunter and Hamilton Holmes have boomeranged, student leaders disclosed this week.

Barred from demonstrations and threatened with expulsion if they resorted to further overt acts of hostility, the segregationists came up with the idea of inflicting a "punishment of silence" on the first-two colored students to be enrolled in the 175-year-old University of Georgia.

But the scheme hasn't worked out according to its originators' plans.

Instead of the "deep freeze" which was to be given the two youthful Atlantans, scores of white students banded together at the pressure being put on by segregationists, are going out of their way to give friendly greetings, the AFRO was told.

AT FIRST THE cold-shoulder organization attempted to ostracize not only Miss Hunter and Holmes, but any white student seen or heard making friendly overtures toward them.

But three things threw unexpected roadblocks into the scheme.

1. The segregationists made the mistake of attempting to pressure less rabid students to conform, resulting in bitter resentment and reverse reaction by many youngsters who had been maintaining a neutral position in the controversy.

2. Father Cronan Kelly, the Catholic priest on campus persuaded student members of the Catholic Newman Club to extend a cordial and protective welcome to Miss Hunter, a convert to the Catholic faith.

3 Announcement was made that Miss Hunter in her first journalism examination had scored an "A," while Holmes for the second consecutive week topped his zoology class with the highest grade.

• • •

DURING THEIR first full week of integrated scholarship students greeted them with a cordial, yet friendly fashion, the AFRO learned.

But after the organized "cold shoulder" campaign began during the second week many scores of students and classmates who before had ignored their presence, began going out of their way to inquire how they were doing and even to walk with them between classes.

In Center Moore University where Miss Hunter is quartered in a kitchenette suite, a more cordial atmosphere seemed to be developing.

"This has confirmed my first intuition." Miss Hunter told AFRO Saturday. "The ones I thought liked me at first and appeared sincere,

"Things are coming along just fine," she added, "I feel that as soon as we catch up with our studies it won't be so bad. The more routine things become the better I'll like it."

• • •

HOLMES SAID many of the students who used to greet him with frowns now approach with smiles.

"Things are getting better day by day," he said, adding, "There are more smiles and more hello's on the campus every day. While I'm there I concentrate on just three things, zoology, psychology and physics."

The youngsters returned to their homes in Atlanta for the second consecutive weekend Friday. Alfred Holmes, Hamilton's father drove down to bring them from Athens.

Miss Hunter said she plans to continue to fix her breakfast in her suite each morning, but will begin taking her lunch in the school cafeteria

• • •

DURING THE first two weeks both students were eating off campus. There are no present plans to attempt use of the university's huge dining hall, it was learned.

Marvin B. Perry, president of the University of Georgia alumni, last week mailed a memorandum to the school's graduates, saying:

"We must all dedicate ourselves to the task of seeing that nothing is allowed to disturb or disrupt the education of our young people."

Balto. County News

By DORIS ADAMS

Charles Kidwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kidwell, Catonsville; has been chosen as one of Baltimore County's two representatives to participate in an experimental high school science seminar for superior students beginning Feb. 4.

The program features lectures by outstanding scientists and individual student work. The new program here is sponsored by the Hunter College Alumnae Association with the cooperation of schools in the city and county.

Taking part in the seminar will be 120 high school students from Baltimore through 11 and from private, public and parochial schools.

• • •

CHARLES, AN eighth grade student at Catonsville Junior High was selected from 550 applicants. While attending the 16 week seminar he will hear lectures on various phases of science, chemistry, physics, earth sciences and biology.

The major purpose of the seminar is to create the maximum stimulation of interest in science and to supplement the regular school work."

Charles will attend the classes held at Mergenthaler Vocational - Technical High School. The Dumbarton School in Baltimore County will be the locale of the other class.

• • •

THE STUDENTS were chosen on the merit basis. Mrs. Kidwell told your columnist that Charles' outstanding scholastic record and strong science foundation are due to the untiring efforts of his two former Banneker School teachers, William A. Grace and Merrill West.

And well do we all remember the day we breathlessly watched as Charles and his brother Earl, two of the aforementioned teachers, set off their homemade rocket and Banneker and Catonsville history!! Congratulations Charles!!

Johnson named 'most popular' lay leader

By FELICIA ADAMS

James E. Johnson, Furnace Branch Rd., lay leader of the John Wesley Methodist Church, Glen Burnie, was named most popular lay leader in the South Baltimore District in program held Sunday at the Asbury Methodist Church in Annapolis.

Theodore Cass is lay leader for the district and Morris Yorkman his assistant.

Contest runners - up were Mr. Yorkman of Centennial and Mrs. Otelia Douglas of the St. Paul in Baltimore.

All the lay leaders received a certificate of appreciation from the district lay leader. The winner received a loving cup from Mrs. Hilton Parker, wife of the district superintendent.

Walter Hardest brought greetings.

Mrs. Catherine Gaither was recently dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Roland J. Gaither.

THE REV. AND MRS. James Smith and daughters Jammie, Sandra and La Reesa were dinner guests of the Rev. and Mrs. Soldon Nicholson on Crain Highway.

The Ministers and Ministers Wives Fellowship met at Crownsville State Hospital Saturday with the Rev. and Mrs. S. J. Mack as hosts.

The Rev. James E. Adams conducted the morning worship in the nurses lounge. Dr. Charles S. Ward, superintendent, met them as they dined in the cafeteria.

Among those present were the Revs. and Mesdames Hilton Parker, John H. THE PAST WEEK there has been much talk about the State Tea which was so well attended at the First Baptist Church on Sunday. Most people who attended are saying it is the "tea of the season."

Sponsored by the Pattie Thorpe North Carolina Club, the states which participated were outstandingly represented by those who spoke for them.

These speakers were also dressed as belles of the states were as follows:

Miss Aletha Perry, Maryland; Mrs. Julia Hawkins, Virginia; Mrs. Bettie Turner, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Ethel Thompson, North Carolina; Mrs. Dora Bundy, South Carolina; Mrs. Lowella Parker, Alabama; Mrs. Thelma Persons, Tennessee, and Mrs. Mary Scott, Florida.

Soloists on the program were Mrs. Joseph Hardesty, Mrs. Maude V. Campbell and Miss Odessa Brown. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hawkins sang as a duet, and the Annapolis Commoniers rendered selections.

Prayer was offered by Mrs. Hattie Pierce and Charles Walker extended greetings. Remarks were made by Mrs. Corina Knight, president of the club, and the Rev. Leroy Bowman, minister of the church.

Proceeds from the tea were designated to the Woman's Day fund of the church. The Pattie Thorp North Carolina Club is grateful to all, those who participated in the program, committee, and all of those persons who attended the tea and contributed to the fund. Ethel Thompson was general chairman.

THE BEAUTIFUL home of Dr. and Mrs. Horace L. Small at Denton was the scene of the lovely wedding reception of their pretty twin daughter, Sylvia and her husband, W. Jerome Horn, who were wed on Dec. 1.

Although the inclement weather prevented many guests from attending the event, there were over 100 guests in attendance from five states.

Mrs. William H. Richardson served as the senior hostess and Mrs. Charles Wayman (Harriet) kept the bride's book.

A number of other Annapolis people were expected, among whom were the Douglas S. Kings, the Joseph Hardestys, and the Herbert S. Hilliards, although they were unable to attend.

Sylvia looked stunning in a lavender satin sheath fashioned with a sweetheart neckline which plunged to the waist in the back, edged in lavender sequins. Her pretty crystal earrings were enhanced by a large orchid.

Her mother, Dr. Small, was lovely in a purple sleeveless satin sheath set off by crystal jewelry and a white metallic stole.

Sylvia's twin, Shela, donned an exact copy of her sister bride's gown, although her costume was in dusty rose, and she wore pink rosebuds.

The bridegroom's mother, who also stood in line, was attractive in beige cotton lace over green satin. She wore a large orchid.

AMONG GUESTS were several personalities who make frequent visits to Annapolis. About were Mrs. Horatio Jones (Omega) of Green Acres, Dr. Ruth Laws and hubby, William Laws, Mrs. Cecie Henry and Miss Lucille Woodfin, all of Dover, Del., Francis W. Gales, now of Denton, as principal of the Lockerman School and Charles Wayman of Annapolis.

Both the Small twins are graduates of Morgan State College and received their master's degrees at Temple University. They are at present working on their doctorates at the University of Pennsylvania.

Their fine parents are nationally known in medical circles and well liked his peers all over the country. Both the girls are teachers in the Philadelphia school system.

Sylvia's husband, who is employed by the Federal government, is a graduate of West Virginia State College. He is pursuing a course in political science at the University of Pennsylvania.

They are at home to friends in Philadelphia at 1909 West Olney Ave.

THERE IS A newcomer in the city, little Maria Denise Callahan, who arrived at the Anne Arundel General Hospital on Thursday, Jan. 26 at 5:30 p.m.

Little Miss Maria Denise weighed eight pounds and eight ounces and is the second daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Callahan. Mother and baby are doing fine.

Services were so inspiring at St. Philip's Episcopal Church on Sunday morning.

Father David M. Croll, vicar, conducted the services very impressively and spoke on the Christian life, taking his text from Hebrews 12:1.

He called the attention of his congregation to the fact that Sunday was the first Sunday, days about 38 days before the Lenten season.

In further comments he designated Lent as a period of the year for self-examination and serious soul-searching in order to determine what progress has been made within our selves toward the goal.

He pointed out that Lent will be a time to fortify ourselves with new strength and vigor in working toward the goal.

• • •

HE COMPARED the Christian life with that of the athlete and said in order for the athlete to win the game he must have months of preparation during which time he must keep his mind on the subjection.

The Rev. Mr. Croll also said that sensible athletes give up those things which impede their progress in health and fitness.

"So in te Christian life in order to win we must do as Paul said: 'I keep under my body and bring it in subjection.'"

He declared that such sins as pride, anger, envy, gluttony, lust and sloth are among other things which hinder our progress.

"I know that my Redeemer lives, and I know that I will win if I run."

Music by the choir was under the direction of Mrs. Thomas Baden Jr.

It was so nice to attend these services with Mrs. Herbert S. Hilliard and Miss Amanda Nunley.

On The East Side

By CHARLOTTE W. DOWNIE

On Last Sunday afternoon the officers and members of Temple Baptist Church witnessed the installation of their new Pastor, the Rev. Christopher Avon Hill.

The church, located at 1800 Wolfe St., was filled with many friends and well wishers.

The installation sermon was delivered by the Rev. C. C. Alexander of the Eastside Baptist Church.

Others on the program were the Rev. Montague Brackett of Central Baptist Church, who served as master of ceremonies and also gave the Rev. Mr. Hill his charge. The Rev. Arthur Brown of Community Baptist Church gave the church its charge.

Highlights of the beautiful and impressive ceremonies were both the presentation of the Holy Bible by the Rev. James Wilkens of the Zion Hill Baptist Church, and the presentation of the Hymn Book by the Rev. James A. Minor, assistant pastor of Community Baptist Church to the newly installed pastor.
