SOME OBSERVATIONS ON HOME BUYING

Recently our firm conducted, what was to us, a very revealing survey. We were interested in finding the source of our many clients. This survey disclosed that 1 per cent of our sales was on a cooperative basis with many prominent local realty firms. Further, 4 per cent of sales resulted from prospects seeing "our silent agent" posted on homes for sale and who called our firm for further information. 27 per cent of sales were derived from people who read our 'ads' in this paper. Lastly, 68 per cent of the people buying through our firm did so on the recommendation of persons who had purchased their homes through our company.

Our greatest source of satisfaction in perusing these figures came when we observed that possibly 10 per cent of these homebuyers, previous to talking with us, were somewhat doubtful as to their eligibility (financially, that is) to make this important step. Our trained personnel was able, in many cases, to point out certain adjustments that, if made, would increase their financial position to the point where home buying could become a reality.

You, too, may feel that the home of your dreams is just wishful thinking at this time. We believe that a frank and honest appraisal of your present financial situation may reveal the dream can be realized sooner than you think.

P.S. Need we say all information is held in strictest confidence?
