KIRK DOUGLAS and Carol Lynley stroll through a $200,000 western town constructed in central Mexico for the "The Last Sunset," held over at the Harlem. A powerful action drama of conflict and passion, it also stars Rock Hudson, Dorothy Malone, Joseph Cotten and Neville Brand. Universal releases the fine Brynaprod color production.

BRADFORD DILLMAN and Lee Remick, as excitement - seeking youths of the 1920's, star in "Sanctuary," 20th Century-Fox CinemaScope drama based on a William Faulkner plot, now playing at the Regent Theatre with Yves Montand.

'LAST SUNSET' NOW ON HARLEM SCREEN

A brand-new career has blossomed for ambidextrous Joseph Cotten with his election as one of the stars of Brynaprod's Universal release, "The Last Sunet," powerful action drama of conflict and passion now playing at the Harlem Theater.

Cotten, a brilliant romantic star of stage, films and television, now emerges as a full-fledged character actor as he shares top honors with Rock Hudson, Kirk Douglas, Dorothy Malone, Carol Lynley and Neville Brand in the colorful outdoor action drama that was filmed in its entirety in Mexico.

In "The Last Sunset" he portrays a whiskey - soaked, stubble - chinned rancher who fails miserably in everything from Civil War battlefield bravery to raising cattle and clinging to Dorothy Malone, a wife who no longer considers him romantic. He finally dies in a gunfight he inspires by his own braggadocio.

REGENT SHOWING 'SANCTUARY'

The fast - living, tragic, hard - drinking rebellion of American youth during the 1920's is brought to the screen with realism and suspense in "Sanctuary," 20th Century-Fox CinemaScope version of two best - selling novels by William Faulkner, now playing at the Regent Theatre with Lee Remick, Yves Montand and Brandford Dillman in stellar leads.

Here is the Deep South as Faulkner delights in exposing it: the "proper" communities riddled with moral decay, the "first families" behind whose veneer of social prestige some dark and startling shame exists.

This story, combining the plots of "Sanctuary" and "Requiem for a Nun," deals with the correct household of the Governor of Mississippi (Howard St. John), whose cherished an properly married daughter Temple Drake (Lee Remick) makes an astonishing confession to him one night before the execution of a household servant for the murder of Temple's baby.

FUNNY 'PARENT TRAP' PLAYING AT MET

As the mother and father of identical twin girls on a mission with a message, Maureen O'Hara and Brian Keith find themselves on the horns of a dilemma in Walt Disney's Technicolor feature, "The Parent Trap" now playing at the Met Theatre.

As Mama and Papa to Hayley Mills playing their daughters, Miss O'Hara and Mr. Keith lose complete control of one hilarious situation after another through their absolute inability to tell one girl from the other.

"The Parent Trap" stars Miss O'Hara, Keith and Miss Mills and co-stars Charles Ruggles, Una Merkel, Leo G. Carroll and Joanna Barnes.

'RAISIN IN THE SUN' STILL AT ROYAL

With an imposing file of critical acclaim for her performance on Broadway in "A Raisin in the Sun," Claudia McNeil re-creates her powerful role for the motion picture version now in its third week at the Royal. "A Raisin in the Sun" is based on Lorraine Hansberry's prize winning play, and stars Sidney Poitier.

Miss McNeil portrays the understanding mother of a Chicago South Side family that seeks to better its position in life through judicious use of a $10,000 insurance bequest.

Miss McNeil was born in Baltimore, but has lived most of her life in New York City. Ruby Dee co-stars.

MUSICAL MOMENTS

Baltimore Civic Orchestra in concert at Dumbarton High

The Baltimore Civic Orchestra, under the direction of ivin Wildhorn, joined forces with Hansonia Caldwell, young Baltimore pianist, in a recent concert given at Dumbarton High School. The event was sponsored by the Optimist Club of Midtown Baltimore.

Mozart's Piano Concerto in A Major, K. 488 was the main event of the afternoon. From the master's more than twenty concerti this is one of the most elegant, full of his rare inventive magic of glittering scales and (in the Andante) one of the loveliest melodies in musical literature.

Miss Caldwell handled its difficulties with assurance, exhibiting considerable skill in pearl-like scales and well accented climaxes, especially in the last (Presto) movement.

SHE HAS ability, unusual for one of 16 years, to unify and project a composition. This, with a refinement of phrasing and increasing warmth of tone, is laying a well balanced foundation for her future studies and career.

Mr. Wildhorn is giving yeoman service to the community as the organizer and conductor of the volunteer 50-piece orchestra. Now in its third year the ensemble is intercultural, being the first local community group of its size that is interracial. John S. Thompson, is a member of the violin section and James Moore, of Abdeen, plays in the brass wind choir.

Mrs. Florence C. Carter presented her piano students in their annual recital at Coppin State Teachers College. The elementary and intermediate players were very engaging in pieces that displayed considerable accuracy in notes, and rhythm as well as technical facility.

Playing were: Audrey Adams, Charles Cenhas, Hardenia Rock, Vera Alton, James Carter, James Pair, Deborah Lockwood, Margaret Young, Anceneth Park, Shirley Alexander, Deborah Liner, Marcia Lewis, Frank Park, Marcia Malone, Sandra Means, Patricia Wheeler, Larry Lewis, Veronica Grafton, Madaline Morton, Emile Julian, Deidre Johnson, Odelia Wallace, Sandra Lamont, Yovonda Hawkins, David Williams, Eric Wright, Gloria Wilson, Nancy Manning, Jean Woodson, Margaret Parsons, Cynthia Hunt, La Verne Lockwood and Andrew Ennis.

Since "all work and no play" is calculated to make dull Jacks and Jills in the musical profession as well as in other areas of endeavor, June has been marked by several social gatherings among musical folk of the city.

Dr. R. Hayes Strider, head of the music department at Morgan State and Mrs. Strider hosted members of his faculty at a delightful supper at the Garrison Lounge.

Mrs. Katrine White was hostess at a Sunday supper for five of her piano pupils who were graduating this year from high school. Honorees were Barbara Ware, Carveretta Robinson, Frankie Miller, Jeannette Mebane, Zenobia Cornish and their escorts. A delightful evening was spent exchanging musical experiences and discussing plans for the future.

MAIL-BOX: From Scranton, Pa., a program of the 65th annual commencement concert of the Scranton Conservatory of Music, which was held at the Century Club. Listed among the first prize winners was Carolyn Jenkins, formerly of Baltimore.

CALENDAR: Sunday, July 2 from 3 to 5 p.m. at Collington Square, Patterson Park Avenue and Preston Street, a special Patriotic Concert, in celebration of the Fourth of July, will be presented by the combined Municipal and Park Concert Bands, with Weldon J. Irvine conducting.

There will be demonstration by the Sollers Point High School Majorettes and numbers by the Bohian Vocal Quartet, which was so popular last year. Also programmed are a trumpet quintet and a clarinet quartet from respective sections of the bands. William Tyson is playing a tuba solo and Mr. Irvine a medley of familiar tunes on the accordion.

The concert, which is free to the public, is arranged by the Bureau of Music, J. Irving Gray, acting superintendent and the Department of Recreation and Parks.

CHERRY HILL NOTES

Tennis champs talk to 250 at father-son dinner

Cherry Hill was fortunate on Father's Day to have in its midst the 1960 and '61 Table Tennis Champions of the United States, Ronnie Hobson and Richard Jackson.

They were guests of honor at the Annual Father - Son Breakfast sponsored by the Men's League of the Cherry Hill Presbyterian Church held each year on Father's Day.

Approximately 250 fathers and sons came out to enjoy a delicious breakfast, hear a brief talk by Dr. Dwynal Pettengill, assistant professor of political science at Morgan State College and watch the champions put on an exhibition match.

* * *

DR. PETTENGILL spoke on the father's responsibility to the sons and the son's responsibility to the fathers.

Herman Prescott, director of the Bay's Club in Newport News, Va., which sponsors the champions, also spoke briefly.

Prior to coming to Baltimore, Mr. Prescott had just returned from California where Richard and Ronnie played in a tournament held in the Hollywood Bowl.

Mr. Prescott was also accompanied to Baltimore by his wife, Patricia, his two daughters, Sharon and Norwell and his two sons, John and Terry.

Special birthday wishes to little Miss Shizona Thornton who will celebrate her 8th birthday today (June 30th). She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Thornton.
