Master to run Baptist elections

By LOUIS LAUTIER

KANSAS CITY, Mo., (NNPA)—Judge Richard H. Koenigsdorf in the Jackson County Circuit Court Wednesday afternoon signed a consent decree empowering the Rev. D. A. Holmes, 35-year-old pastor of the Paseo Baptist Church, to conduct the election of officers at the 81st session of the National Baptist Convention held here this week.

The order is sweeping. It gives him authority to decide who may vote in the election. It also restrains both the Rev. Joseph H. Jackson of Chicago, president of the convention, and the Rev. Gardner C. Taylor of Brooklyn who is opposing him, and their supporters from engaging in any disorderly conduct.

Judge Koenigsdorf signed the order after the lawyers representing Dr. Jackson and Dr. Taylor entered into a stipulation. He had all the lawyers in the case to sign the order indicating their consent before he approved it.

BEFORE SIGNING the order, Judge Koenigsdorf called Dr. Holmes to the bench and told him that the order he was about to issue placed upon the aged minister certain responsibilities in the conduct of the election.

He added that it also gave him certain authority and certain obligations in accrediting delegates to the session.

He asked Dr. Holmes whether he would accept such responsibilities.

"I do," replied Dr. Holmes in a firm voice.

Judge Koenigsdorf then directed that the record show that all parties to the suit brought by seven ministers from the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area against both Dr. Jackson and Dr. Taylor had consented to the jurisdiction of his court for the action under consideration and had also consented to the stipulation and order.

"I THINK it should be clearly shown that no coercion of any kind was used by the court in forcing the agreement between the parties," he said.

He congratulated those who had been responsible for working out the agreement.

"It is a great achievement and also relieves the court of a great responsibility which I am happy not to have," he said. "It is certainly the best way the matter can be settled."

Dr. Holmes told the NNPA that Dr. Jackson had called him Tuesday night. When court convened Wednesday morning, Judge Koenigsdorf was informed that there was a possibility of the matter being worked out by agreement. He recessed the case until 3:30 p.m., Wednesday.

At that time, he waited in his chambers while the lawyers worked out an agreement on the points covered in the order and stipulation.

JUDGE LEWIS CLYMER of the Kansas City Municipal Court informed Judge Koenigsdorf that an agreement had been reached to have Dr. Holmes to conduct the election and asked time to draft the stipulation and order.

"Dr. Holmes is an old friend of mine," replied Judge Koenigsdorf, "and I certainly have every confidence in his integrity and ability."

Judge Koenigsdorf remained for more than two hours while the stipulation and order were being drafted.

The stipulation provided:

1. That the court issue an order directing Dr. Holmes to preside over the election of officers.

2. That only voting "messengers" (delegates) be admitted to the arena floor.

3. That there is to be no disorderly conduct and that the court issue a restraining order enjoining both Dr. Jackson and Dr. Taylor and their supporters from "any boisterous, unruly or other conduct tending to interfere or obstruct the business and work of the convention."

4. That there would be only one official badge — the badge of the convention assembled at the Municipal Auditorium (the badge of the Jackson group).

Jackson and Taylor hit with 2nd suit by D.C. ministers

KANSAS CITY (NNPA) — Seven ministers brought suit in Jackson County Circuit Court Friday to enjoin both the Revs. Joseph H. Jackson of Chicago and Gardner C. Taylor of Brooklyn from collecting and disbursing funds of the National Baptist Convention, Inc.

Dr. Jackson and Dr. Taylor are contestants for the office of president of the convention which opened here Tuesday.

Dr. Jackson is ending his ninth successive term in office. Dr. Taylor claims he was elected president at a convention held a year ago in Philadelphia.

THE WASHINGTON ministers filed suit in the U.S. District Court in Washington a week ago seeking the appointment of a special master to supervise the conduct of the election of officers in the 81st session.

In the suit filed here, they also asked the court to order both Dr. Jackson and Dr. Taylor to account for all monies collected and disbursed by them in the name of the National Baptist Convention since the 1960 session.

A class action suit, the plaintiffs say they are acting on behalf of a numerical majority of the members of the convention. Informed sources say they are supporters of Dr. Taylor.

They state that they are duly elected delegates or "messagers" of the meeting here.

AN ORDER TO show cause was signed by Judge John H. Lucas and made returnable Tuesday before Judge Richard H. Koenigsdorf.

The plaintiffs allege that the assets of the corporation, the extent of which is unknown to them, are being jeopardized by the acts and conduct of Dr. Jackson and Dr. Taylor.

An allegation similar to the one in the District of Columbia complaint states that the convention owns, controls and administers property and assets of over $2,300,000 and directs charitable and educational programs and promotes religious programs of interest to the church.

UNDER THE constitution and bylaws, the business of the Convention between sessions is carried on by its officers and a board of directors.

The plaintiffs state that dues and assessments are being collected by the two contending sets of officers in the name of the Convention and that they will continue to do so and to make disbursements to the "irreparable and permanent" injury of the plaintiffs.

Dr. Jackson and Dr. Taylor, the plaintiffs alleged, are spending large sums of money and entering into contracts in the name of the Convention.

Both contending sets of officers, the complaint states, have announced their intention to hold sessions in the name of the Convention in the Kansas City Municipal Auditorium.

THE PLAINTIFFS assert that the acts of Dr. Jackson and Dr. Taylor are unlawful and unauthorized and will deprive plaintiffs of their lawful rights and privileges as members of the Convention unless the defendants are enjoined from acting on behalf of the Convention.

On the basis of the call for the Convention sent out by Dr. Jackson, the plaintiffs state that both sets of officers have assessed and are collecting dues, as follows:

Churches with 200 to 500 members, $25; 500 to 1,000 members, $35; above 1,000, $50; less than 200, $10.

Under this dues schedule, each church is allowed an additional delegate for each $10 paid, but no church is allowed more than 10 delegates.

STATE BAPTIST conventions are assessed $200. An additional delegate is allowed each state convention for every $50 paid in representation fees, but no state convention is to exceed 300 "messengers."

The assessment for district conventions is $50 each and for associations $35.

A similar schedule of dues was reported to have been sent out by Dr. Taylor.

disorder broke out again. The Rev. A. M. Waller of Pennsylvania was prevented temporarily from responding to the mayor's address by shouting from the floor.

He attempted to go through with his speech but was drowned out by shouts of "No!" The microphone wires were cut.

After they were repaired, a police squad took a stand on the floor in front of the microphone to keep the wires from being cut again.

The Rev. C. H. Hampton of California, presiding, introduced the Rev. F. D. Haynes of California to preach. Again there were shouts of "No!"

Dr. Hampton said Mrs. Haynes would sing before her husband preached. Mrs. Haynes came to the microphone. The introductory music was played over several times as tears welled in her eyes and streamed down her cheeks. But she composed herself and sang. The delegates quieted down to listen to the sermon of the Rev. Mr. Haynes.

The uproar in the morning session began when the Rev. E. C. Estell of Dallas, Tex., read a resolution, approved by the Board of Directors Monday, reaffirming the election of Dr. Jackson in 1960 and urging his re-election at the 81st session. Dr. Taylor's supporters shouted "No, "No," but the resolution was passed by a voice vote.

IN THE MORNING, an enrollment committee of Dr. Taylor's supporters carried out their plan to set up a table to register delegates in the Municipal Auditorium. The Rev. E. A. Freeman of Kansas City, chairman of the entertainment committee, and the auditorium director, sought to have them thrown out.

But Lieut. Col. William Canaday of the Kansas City Police Department decided to await the outcome of the decision from the Jackson County Circuit Court on a petition of Taylor supporters to enjoin both Dr. Jackson and Dr. Taylor from conducting the convention.

AT THE afternoon session, amendments to the constitution, proposed by Dr. Jackson were adopted. These amendments provde:

1. That no member or group of members has equity or special property rights in the assets of the corporation and that registration fees at annual sessions are to meet the expenses of the convention and to help in its work in general and cannot be construed as capital investment in the corporation.

2. The question of the rights and privileges of membership are settled only by the convention or its Board of Directors between sessions.

3. No member or group of members has the right to use the civil courts to settle matters of membership rights and convention procedures. The convention is the supreme court from which there is no appeal.

4. Voting in the convention shall be without reference to member organization, states or sections of the country, and shall be by voice, show of hands, or standing.

DR. TAYLOR was kept off the platform a second time late in the afternoon. This time he came to the platform from the rear of the hall. He was stopped at the bottom of the steps on the right side of the platform. His passage was blocked by a detail of police and Jackson supporters.

He apparently came to the hall in response to a call from his lawyers advising him that a consent court decree providing for the conduct of the election of officers by an impartial minister, the Rev. D. A. Holmes, pastor of Paseo Baptist Church, had been issued.

He entered looking as if he expected to be greeted as a hero. Instead, he was met by the police and Jackson supporters who stood guard. A bitter controversy went on, but he was never permitted to go on the platform.

William White

Funeral services were held Thursday at the Nutter Funeral Home for William (Billy) White, New York City, a former resident of the city.

Mr. White died last Saturday in New York City.

The son of William and Edith White, he had boxed as lightweight in Baltimore, Jersey City and Newark, N.J. Mr. White, who fought under the name of Billy Wise, twice fought Lewis (Kid) Conn and had once been with Johnny Bratton.

A graduate of Douglass High School, he served four years in the merchant marine during World War II. Mr. White left Baltimore in 1946 after his discharge and went to New York.

After completing a course at Samuel Gompers Trade School, he started working for the city and continued until his death.

IN ADDITION to his parents, he is survived by three brothers, Clemmey, Louis and Harold White; five sisters, Misses Elizabeth, Rose, Catherine, Ann and Francine White; Mrs. Ruth Pettigrew and Mrs. Gertrude Jefferson, all of Baltimore.

Other survivors include four nieces and nephews.

Rev. Earl Kay was in charge.

Jury calls lawyers in gambling probe

The retiring Grand Jury, following a three - month probe of crime and vice along The Block, which ended with 18 persons being charged with 50 asserted violations, turned its attention to lottery and organized gambling, this week.

Seeking information on the reported gambling empire in the city and state, the panel subpoenaed three prominent criminal lawyers Wednesday who have defended many lottery law violators.

They were:

Milton B. Allen, Alan H. Murrell and Maurice T. Siegel.

HOWEVER, the attorneys were either unable or unwilling to shed any light on the alleged gambling ring because they each spent approximately three minutes before the investigation panel.

Police Commissioner Bernard J. Schmidt, who took office last Friday, also appeared before the body. His appearance lasted about 30 minutes.

Last week the jury questioned several inmates now serving prison terms for lottery convictions. However, what, if any, information they gave, as in other cases, is unknown.

The jury which has been in office since May, retires today (Friday). Saul A. Harris, State's Attorney, said if it is determined that the investigation should be continued, the incoming panel, to be sworn in Wednesday, will take up where this one leaves off.

During its four months of service, the outgoing panel has devoted most of its time to inquiring into rackets and crimes of all descriptions, questioning more than 150 witnesses in the process.

High police, city and state officials, including Gov. J. Millard Tawes have testified.

The retiring panel, headed by John L. Berry, is expected to make public reports and recommendations concerning its findings this weekend.

Messrs. Allen, Murrell and Siegel were also kept busy Wednesday in Criminal Court Part I, representing accused lottery violators, as Judge Joseph L. Carter dug into a backlog of 40 - odd cases of numbers charges expected to last until today (Friday).

Civic groups join Pratt Institute

Mayor J. Harold Grady and various local municipal agencies and civic organizations will serve as co - sponsor of the institute, "Baltimore Area - Exploding Metropolis," set for Sunday, October 8 through Nov. 5, at the Enoch Pratt Free Library, Edwin Castagna, director has announced today.

Authorities in many related fields are scheduled to take part, with Walter Sondheim, Jr., as general chairman.

Among the cooperating groups Mr. Castagna listed: The Baltimore Area Chapter, American Institute of Planners; Associated Catholic Charities, Baltimore's Health Department and public schools; the Regional Planning Association; Urban Renewal and Housing Agency; Bureau of Recreation; Citizens Planning and Housing Association.

Also, Coordinating Council of the Baltimore Public School - Parent - Teacher Organizations; Department of Transit and Traffic; Greater Baltimore Committee; League of Women Voters of Baltimore City; Planning Commission of Baltimore City; Young Men's Christian Association and Howard County Planning Commission.

Open to the public without charge, the sessions will be financed by the Pratt Library's Humphrey Moore Fund.
