CRACKDOWN ON EXTORTION BY TEENS

Baltimore Notebook

By MAX JOHNSON

While many people are waiting for Gov. J. Millard Tawes to stop being coy and announce whether he will be a candidate for re-election — let's look at Baltimore's registered voters.

First, though — my thanks to former Republican governor, Theodore R. McKeldin, and Dr. Clarence D. Long, Johns Hopkins University professor and executive co-chairman, Democratic State Central Committee.

Mr. McKeldin and Dr. Long, both busy men, found time to author guest columns here during my recent vacation.

• • •

NOW, BACK to the city's registered voters.

There is an all-time high of 109,835 colored citizens registered as eligible voters in Baltimore.

They represent about one third of the city's eligible voters.

It is important to note, however, the distribution of this vote power throughout the city.

In the primary this coming May, each party will nominate by state-wide votes Democratic and Republican candidates for governor, attorney general, state comptroller and one each for the U. S. Senate.

• • •

THEN, IN each of the city's six legislative districts and the state's 23 counties, both parties will nominate a candidate for the state senate — and their allotted number of candidates for the General Assembly's House of Delegates.

On a broader political level — each party will nominate a candidate for U.S. Congress in each of the state's seven congressional districts.

And there will be a state-wide vote to select each party's nominee for a congressman-at-large — as a result of a newly granted eighth congressional seat for Maryland.

• • •

NOW — LET'S look at the Supervisors of Elections' latest registration breakdown for Baltimore's six legislative districts.

1st. D — Democrats: colored, 2,554; white, 33,387. Republicans: colored, 838; white, 3,296. Independents: colored, 51; white, 428.

2nd D. — Democrats: colored, 8,404; white, 15,221. Republicans: colored, 4,110; white, 2,297. Independents: colored, 182; white, 544.

3rd D. — Democrats: colored, 11,187; white, 87,208. Republicans: colored, 4,832; white, 21,022. Independents: colored, 276; white, 2,397.

4th D. — Democrats: colored, 17,363; white, 16,385. Republicans: colored, 9,553; white, 2,552. Independents: colored, 565; white, 399.

5th D. — Democrats: colored, 22,358; white, 61,752. Republicans: colored, 10,900; white, 10,058. Independents: colored, 613; white, 1,614.

6th D. — Democrats: colored, 7,912; white, 30,498. Republicans: colored, 4,502; white, 4,054. Independents: colored, 186; white, 429.

• • •

THE THIRD, Fourth and Seventh Congressional Districts lie wholly within Baltimore.

Here's the registration in each of these:

3rd Cong. D — Democrats: colored, 15,998; white, 69,602. Republicans: colored, 7,114; white, 7,947. Independents: colored, 329; white, 1,030.

4th Cong. D. — Democrats: colored, 26,379; white, 59,324. Republicans: colored, 13,763; white, 14,181. Independents: colored, 638; white, 1,721.

7th Cong. D. — Democrats: colored, 27,027; white, 109,256. Republican: colored, 13,667; white, 20,333. Independents: colored, 793; white, 3,769.

THESE TABULATIONS were made when the registration of colored eligible voters in the city totaled 106,306 at the first of the year.

The 3,529 who have since registered to bring this total to 109,835, of course, alters the picture somewhat — but how much remains to be seen.

Supervisors of Elections officials say they will have a later breakdown of the city's registration before the end of the year.

Meanwhile — proposed candidates and political groups might use this as a yardstick.

One of the basic rules in politics is — to know where the votes are.

Liquor Board defers

BULLETIN

"I very definitely state that I was offered nothing, no promises were made and no threats made against me or my business, and I withdrew my objections to the license, as I never really had any objections whatever to the Playboy Club.

"I am indeed sorry that because certain people have misinterpreted my statements and actions that any embarrassment was caused to Mr. Philip Goodman."

John Weston, proprietor of a business establishment at 1023 Cathedral St., issued the above statement to the AFRO Thursday evening.

The Liquor Board Thursday delayed its decision in the controversial Playboy Club dispute.

The liquor board was scheduled to decide if the proposed club would be allowed to occupy the premises at 1006 E. Morton St.

• • •

HOWEVER, Joseph C. Vancollom said the board did not rule on the dispute because one of the three commissioners who heard the case, was ill. And also the applicants were allowed seven days from the date of the original hearing to get protestants to change their minds.

The deadline for this maneuver, the secretary pointed out, was 4 p.m. Thursday, three hours after his regular meeting.

The commissioner who was unable to attend today's hearing is Frank J. Hanson.

• • •

THE PROPOSED club, one of a chain of exclusive night spots, has created heated controversy between opponents and proponents.

A druggist, John Weston, who opposed the club at last week's hearing, reversed his position Tuesday.

He said he took the action after City Council President Philip H. Goodman, promised him business with City Hospitals.

Mr. Weston's support, opponents charged, would make it possible for the club to open.

Mr. Goodman who represents owners of the new club, has been bitterly criticized for his part in the controversy.

IT WASN'T DONE IN '61' — The Orioles didn't win the pennant this year, so Herbert L. Sturdivant collects a two-year bet in the form of a free wheelbarrow ride from his Sterling St. home to the stadium. Furnishing the horsepower (manpower, in this case), is Joseph R. Reichenbach, who lost bet. Charles Kaiser, who rigged up wheelbarrow, points the way. The baseball fans are employed at Sparrows Point.

Orioles put rooters behind a wheelbarrow, 212 pounds

When the New York Yankees clinched the American League pennant by beating the birds Sept. 19, it marked "Crow eating" time for a lot of baseball experts who predicted the race would end otherwise when the season began.

But this is not unusual since crystal ball gazing is a ritual steeped in the tradition surrounding our national past time.

But for two Sparrows Point workers, the event had a special meaning.

When the Yanks, led by the M-Squad, wrapped up the '61 flag, it also signaled payoff time on a two-year-old bet between Herbert L. Sturdivant and Joseph R. Reichenbach.

• • •

JOE, FATHER of four children who lives in Dundalk, is a faithful Birdwatcher.

Herbert, 34, 721 Sterling St., likes the Birds well enough, but couldn't stand Paul Richards, then manager.

So in 1960, the two men who work together at the steel plant, cooked up an unusual bet.

Joe was convinced that the Birds would win the pennant either in '60 or '61. If they didn't, he vowed, he would ride Herbert, all 212 pounds of him, from his Sterling Street home to Memorial Stadium, on 33rd St.

Herbert, on the other hand, was equally convinced that Tall Paul's handling of the Orioles was sufficient to prevent their grabbing off the pennant in '60, '61, "or any other time."

If they turned the trick in either of the above years, Herbert promised, Joe would have the pleasure of riding the wheelbarrow from his Dundalk home to the stadium.

• • •

AS AGREED upon, the bet amounted to a 2-1 deal. Herbert couldn't win last year, but Joe could, that is if the Birds had won.

Disappointed last year, Joe was sure "it could be done in '61."

But the Bronx Bombers took care of that bit of optimism.

So 6 p.m. today (Friday), Mr. Sturdivant will climb into the gally decorated wheelbarrow replete with cushion, at his home and begin collecting his bet.

Between the handlebars will be Joe. They plan to arrive at the stadium in time for the Oriole and White Sox game.

Joe, a sporting fellow he, had a chance to renege on the deal but would have no part of it.

"I told him he could call off the bet the same day the Yankees won, but warned him I'd talk about him like a dog," Herbert told reporters while getting ready for the unique ride.

The wheelbarrow was made by another steel worker, Charles Kaiser, a crane inspector at the Point. A three wheel job, the wheelbarrow is appropriately lettered.

An arrow, pointing to the rider's seat says: "He said it couldn't be done in '61." Another arrow aimed at the pusher, declares: "He said it could be done in '61!"

P.S. Now that Tall Paul has departed to the wide open spaces, the Birds have a new rooter, Mr. Sturdivant.

"They'll come through in '62," he predicts.

Service man held in Cherry Hill shooting

A Fort Meade soldier is being questioned by Southern District Police about a shooting that disrupted a party in Cherry Hill Thursday morning.

A 25-year-old Army corporal was picked up after Earl Simmons, 34, of the 200 block Mt. Royal Terrace was admitted to University Hospital with a gunshot wound of the head.

Sergeant Charles Moran reported that Mr. Simmons was shot between the eyes as he sat in an automobile with his wife, Mrs. Laverne F. Simmons, in the 200 block of Bridgeview Rd. at 3:35 a.m.

The condition of the wounded man is described as "critical." He died at 6:45 Friday morning.

Police said Simmons was shot following a dispute with a man at a party.

The victim allegedly had just entered a car with his wife when a man walked over, pressed a .22 caliber pistol against his head and pulled the trigger.

• • •

IN HER haste to get her husband to University Hospital, Mrs. Simmons collided with an automobile at Baltimore and Green Sts. according to police.

The second driver involved in the accident was identified as Phillip Tolson Jr. 24, of the 3000 block Southland Ave.

CIG gets $373; still needs $$$

Additional contributions are still needed to help the Civic Interest Group (CIG) continue its efforts to integrate public places.

In answer to an appeal published in the Sept. 16 issue, integrated citizens have contributed $373.

However, Mrs. Catherine W. Adams, treasurer of the adult advisory group, says additional funds are needed to support the students in their sitdown efforts.

Contribution money will be used to pay fees and fines and post bail for student sitdowners arrested for demonstrating in Catonsville and on Route 40.

The Rev. Marion C. Bascom, pastor of Douglas Memorial Church, is president of the adult group. Last month, he used his personal funds to pay a court fee for CIGs under arrests.

Persons interested in supporting the student movement, may mail their contributions to: Mrs. Catherine W. Adams, treasurer, Civic Interest Adult Assistance Group, 2506 Overland Ave.

Those who have contributed the $373 to date are:

Local No. 194 International Hod Carriers and Common Laborers Union of America, A. F. of L., $200; Enon Baptist Church, Rev. A. J. Payne, $80; Jack and Jill of America, $25; Dr. William H. Watts, $15; Mrs. R. Garland Tindall, Dr. William Birt and Earl Koger, all $10 each; Dr. Joseph Thomas and Mrs. Edith R. Smith, and Dr. Thomas C. Jones, all $15 each.

Earl Koger, Jr. $2.; Gordon B. Koger, Barbara Snowden, Elaine Lewis, Thelma Parker, Montenia Crawley and Audrey Randall, all $1.

Archbishop Shehan says justice needs integration

Archbishop Lawrence J. Shehan, D.D., newly appointed coadjutor to Archbishop Francis P. Keough of the Archdiocese of Baltimore, does not favor Federal aid to education "unless it is for all children", including the nation's 5 million Catholic children.

The Most Rev. Mr. Shehan favors integration of schools. "I follow the Catholic principle that justice calls for integration," he told the AFRO this week.

He has just returned from Bridgeport, Conn. where he served as the first ruling bishop from 1953 to 1961. He said he is "extremely happy to return to Baltimore."

Archbishop Shehan was officially received in the Archdiocese of Baltimore at Mass of Reception at the new Charles St. Cathedral, Mary Our Queen, on Thursday.

The 10 a.m. ceremonies were attended by 50 Bishops and Archbishops from across the nation.

The colorful, impressive rites lasted 2 hours and were followed by a 1 p.m. banquet at the Emerson Hotel.

PRIOR TO the Thursday events, the 53-year-old Archbishop was greeted by the visiting bishops and Catholic church officials.

• • •

ON HIS THEORIES of the church and education, he stated: "It is easier to reach and hold the young through religious and moral education. Adolescents especially need religious and moral training at that age before they become resentful of authority.

"The junior and senior high school years are critical years when we must try to bring the young religious and moral training."

He explained that he does not advocate Federal aid to education because of the danger of Federal control or supervising the money.

He added: "If there is Federal aid, it should be for all children."

• • •

THE MOST Rev. Dr. Shehan was born in Baltimore and attended St. Anne's parochial school and St. Mary's Seminary. He received the Doctor of Divinity degree at the North American College in Rome.

From 1922 to 1946 he was pastor of parishes in Washington, D.C. In 1946, he became Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore at the time, he was stationed in Baltimore and pastored the St. Philips and James Parish.

• • •

He became bishop of Bridgeport in 1953.

As coadjutor to Archbishop Keough, the Most Rev. Dr. Shehan has right of succession.

Archbishop Keough, who is 71 years of age, came to Baltimore in February of 1948 to succeed Archbishop Michael J. Curley who died in May, 1947. Bishop Jerome Sebastian, auxiliary bishop, died in Sept. last.

Archbishop Shehan will reside in a residence on the grounds of the new Charles St. Cathedral.

Phony cop given fine, sentence

Edward Fontaine Jr., 32, of the 1700 block Johns St., didn't fool anyone Tuesday when he tried to pass himself off as a narcotics squad officer.

In Western Municipal Court, Fontaine was given a 30 - day suspended sentence and a $50 fine for impersonating an officer.

POLICE SAID Fontaine met his downfall when he went to Provident Hospital for treatment of a hand injury.

While there he flashed a badge and identified himself as a member of the police force.

When Patrolmen Norman Mike and Alfred Woolridge were called, they didn't believe his story either.

Under questioning by Judge Howard L. Aaron, Mr. Fontaine answered "No Sir," when asked if he knew Capt. Joseph Carroll, head of the Police Department narcotics division.

The defendant, who also claimed that he was a special officer, finally told the court that he found the badge.

WHAT'S GOING ON AT U. OF MD.?

Does school draw the color bar?

BLUE STREAK EDITION
Baltimore Afro-American
70th Year, No. 22 Copyrighted 1961 by AFRO-AMERICAN Co. for all material previously printed in the current National Edition BALTIMORE, MD., OCTOBER 7, 1961 32 PAGES 15 CENTS

Does the University of Maryland discriminate because of race?

The university, through its president, Dr. Wilson H. Elkins, has answered no.

However, an investigation by the AFRO has uncovered several facts which would seem to have a bearing on the racial issue at the school which was desegregated in 1954.

1. The salary scales for teachers at Maryland State College at Princess Anne, which is a branch of the University, are lower than those at the parent school in College Park.

2. No colored members belong to any of the Greek letter fraternities and sororities at the University of Maryland.

3. No colored athlete has ever made a varsity team at the school.

4. The university has never awarded an athletic scholarship to a colored student.

5. Several years ago when a colored student in the Journalism Department was scheduled to move up to the managing editorship of the "Diamondback," the school newspaper, the job was given to a white girl, who was NOT a journalism major.

6. There are no colored faculty members among the 900 at the university campus at College Park.

7. If pupils' records are not kept by race, as the university contends, then how is it possible for officials to go five years back in the records, and state accurately how many colored students have received graduate degrees in that time?

• • •

THE QUESTION of possible discrimination at the University, arose last week when Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, Morgan State College president, questioned the fact that Morgan graduates have never received fellowships from the University which gives over 200 scholarships annually.

He noted that just this year, four of Morgan's top students applied for graduate aid at the University, and all were rejected.

Dr. Jenkins also observed that other top schools had accepted Morgan graduates, which meant that outstanding students were being forced to leave Maryland to continue their education.

Among the out - of - state schools mentioned were Harvard, Princeton, Chicago and Michigan, all considered scholastically superior to Maryland.

Dr. Jenkins said that he was not charging racial discrimination but that it seemed as if the University department heads, responsible for awarding fellowships and assistantships, were unaware of what was going on at nearby Morgan.

He also noted that these professors tended to make their awards to students from out-of-state colleges.

• • •

IN DEFENDING the record of the U. of Md., Dr. Elkins, insisted that discrimination was not practiced in the granting of assistance to graduate students.

6 Funerals Held For W. W. Allen

GRAND MASTER SAMUEL DANIELS, Dr. Allen's Grand Lodge successor, is in the lead of the pallbearers as the body lies in state in the Temple on Thursday morning. Also pallbearers were James T. Dorsey, Grand Senior Warden; Henry T. Robinson, Grand Building Superintendent; Armstead Jenkins, trustee board member; Joseph Christopher, Past Master, John A. Holmes Lodge 89; Martin Wise, Grand Tiler; George Brown of the Sullivan Funeral Home. (Other photos on page 7.)

10,000 join in Masonic services for 73-year-old leader; 4,500 attend church rites

Five solemn fraternal services preceded the funeral today (Friday) for Dr. Willard Wallace Allen.

Over 2,500 persons crowded into the Enon Baptist Church auditorium and lower halls, and another 2,000 gathered outside as the services began at 1 p.m.

On Wednesday and Thursday, 10,000 persons had participated in the five fraternal rites and passed his bier, first at the Sullivan Funeral Home, and later at the new $350,000 Eutaw Place Masonic Temple purchased in 1960 under Dr. Allen's leadership.

The 73-year-old civic, business and fraternal leader died Monday morning of a kidney ailment. He had been hospitalized a week.

He was best known for his leadership in Prince Hall Masonry.

• • •

UNTIL HE retired in 1960 to become Grand Master Emeritus, Dr. Allen held the office longer than any Grand Master in the country—38 years.

He was also the Most Puissant Sovereign Grand Commander, Prince Hall Scottish Rite Masons, for 32 years.

Only two other Baltimoreans, Joseph L. H. Smith (1908 to 1910 and AME Bishop James A. Handy (1887 to 1888) have held that office.

The Scottish Rite Southern Jurisdiction which Dr. Allen administered, covers 22 states from Maryland to Florida and West to California.

EACH OF the five fraternal services held at the Masonic Temple Thursday was attended by a capacity audience of 1,700 persons.

They were:

8 p.m.—Lodge of Sorrows — Samuel T. Daniels, Grand Master, assisted by Mt. Horeb Lodge No. 34.

9 p.m. — Grand Chapter OES — James R. Parker, Grand Patron, assisted by Rebecca Chapter No. 35.

9:30 p.m. — Royal Arch Masons — Seth Robinson, Most Eminent High Priest, Hiram Holy Grand Chapter, assisted by Adolphus P. Hill Grand Chapter, District of Columbia.

10 p.m. — Imperial Council Services, A.E.A.O.N.M.S. — Bishop T. Alexander, Imperial Potentate, Detroit, assisted by Jerusalem Temple No. 4 of Shriners;

It was at Mr. Alexander's direction in 1957, that Shriners gave Dr. Allen Past Imperial Potentate honors.

12 midnight — Supreme Council Scottish Rite Services — John G. Lewis, acting Most Puissant Sovereign Grand Commander, Baton Rouge, La., assisted by Hiram Council No. 1.

BEFORE THE body was moved to the Temple on Thursday at 9:30 a.m., it was viewed by an estimated 3,000 others at the Sullivan

"I had heard about color discrimination in the United States, but I never thought that it persisted so openly.

"It is a pity that some people in this great country are not cognizant of the wind of change of this age.

"These people may satisfy their personal egos, but they are doing a great damage to the image of the United States overseas."

Those were the comments of Onuara Nwanya, one of two Nigerians denied service in Maryland restaurants this week.

• • •

MR. NWANYA, east regional editor of the Daily Express, Enugu, Nigeria was denied service at the North Restaurant at 860 W. North Ave., Tuesday morning.

Seven hours later, a Nigerian diplomat enroute to New York with his family was refused service at the Cottage Inn Restaurant and Bar on U.S. Route 40 at Middle River Rd.

The diplomat, Aliyu Y. Bida, is educational attache to the Nigerian consulate general in New York.

MR. NWANYA IS in this country to study operation of American newspapers.

He is in Baltimore to observe the operation of the AFRO-AMERICAN's city news staff.

THIS IS THE STORY he related on his arrival at the AFRO Building Tuesday morning.

"I called at the North Restaurant for a quick breakfast and sat for over three minutes without attention.

"Two customers who came in after me were served. Later the lady serving them turned to me and asked what I wanted.

Two killed in crash

John M. Willis, retired president of Bethlehem Steel Co., and Milton Lewis, 82, 1500 block Edmondson Ave., his chauffeur, were killed in a car-truck collision on the Bay Bridge this morning (Friday).

Police reported the accident occurred about 6:30 a.m. when the car in which the two men were riding rammed into the rear of a disabled truck. The truck driver was not injured.

Greenberg named as NAACP counsel

NEW YORK — Thurgood Marshall, director-chief counsel of the NAACP Legal Defense Fund which directs the organization's court activities, resigned Wednesday night.

The board of directors of the Fund, in a dinner meeting at the Roosevelt Hotel in New York City, named Jack Greenberg, 36, Mr. Marshall's principal assistant and assistant counsel of the Fund since 1949, to succeed Mr. Marshall. Mr. Marshall's resignation was accepted by the Fund, in a dinner meeting mediately.

Mr. Marshall has been nominated by President Kennedy to serve as judge of the Second United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

• • •

AT THE same time, the Fund board named Mrs. Constance Baker Motley as chief assistant to Mr. Greenberg and agreed to name a third person as administrative and fund raiser for the Legal Defense Fund.

All of these posts had been handled previously by Mr. Marshall, but the board took the position that it was "too much for one person to do."

Commenting on the selection of Mr. Greenberg for the post, Mr. Marshall said, "As those who are fighting discrimination, we cannot afford to practice it." Mr. Greenberg is white.

Mr. Marshall indicated that although his resignation is effective immediately he "will be around cleaning things up" until his appointment to the federal judge-

Congress librarian gets proof

By CHUCK STONE

WASHINGTON

On August 24, L. Quincy Mumford, Librarian of Congress, issued a memorandum following the Washington AFRO's expose on racial discrimination in the Library's promotion and hiring policies.

The memo declared, in part, that "if any staff member has evidence" that the policy of racial equality has not been followed, "I invite him to communicate with me, with the Director of Personnel, or with any other responsible officer of the Library."

The "show-me" challenge was quickly accepted by a group of Library employees who sent a long letter to the Washington AFRO, outlining a few specific "for instances."

• • •

1.) A WHITE employee, head of the Reprint Section, with less than a high school education, was selected for promotion to a position over a colored woman who holds a master's degree in library science and has several years experience in the same job the white employee now has.

2 more hit discrimination

Two more powerful voices have been added to the growing chorus seeking an end to racial discrimination in public accommodation in Maryland.

This morning (Friday) the Catholic Review, official newspaper of the Archdiocese of Baltimore, in a front page editorial endorsed the efforts of the State Department to end discrimination along Route 40.

The editorial also noted that many Americans have no idea of how "destructive" of self-respect segregation can be and said that the racial incidents in Maryland made the state the "site of acute national embarrassment."

On Thursday, Woodrow F. Strong, president of the Maryland and District of Columbia AFL-CIO, sent letters to local unions representing about 200,000 workers asking them to support efforts to end discrimination along Route 40.

Brewster in favor of rights law

"I commend Gov. Tawes for his forthright statement in support of equal accommodations legislation.

"As a member of the Congress and as a former member of the Maryland House of Delegates, I strongly urge my friends and former colleagues in the legislature to act with all possible speed in drafting and adopting a public accommodations law."

Congressman Daniel B. Brewster (2nd Cong. D.) issued this appeal Thursday for prompt action by Gov. Tawes and Maryland's General Assembly in approving a state-wide public accommodations law.

Brewster is running on the "Tawes ticket," a slate that is expected to be headed by NIGERIAN NEWSMAN REBUFFED — Onuara Nwanya, East Regional editor of the Daily Express, Enugu, Nigeria, was denied service in this restaurant at 860 North Ave. Mr. Nwanya, who is observing the Baltimore AFRO-AMERICAN city news staff in his study of American newspapers, was told he could purchase food to take out, but could not eat in the restaurant.

'Odds don't mean a thing' as Reds gun for win No. 2

By SAM LACY
AFRO Sports Editor

YANKEE STADIUM, N.Y. — Cheered by their 6-2 rebound game, the Cincinnati Reds were claiming a significant psychological advantage over the heavily-favored New York Yankees as the classic shifted from this city Thursday afternoon.

Even after dropping the opener, 2-0, under Whitey Ford's classy two - hitter, the National League champions were far from dismayed.

This much was obvious as coach Reggie Otero, an old-time associate of the New York Cubans, Homestead Grays, etc., discussed the developments of the first two contests.

• • •

"LOOK," SAID Otero, "our guys weren't panicked by this city. Time on. They've looked into the nozzle before and didn't scare. Why should they now?

"The odds (12-5 against Cincy) didn't mean a thing. They wrote us off in Florida during spring training — the other clubs as well as you writers. We started to jell on the way North.

"Then we bogged down on our second trip to California, and fell as far as a team could fall in an eight - club league. But we bounced again, got back to the top and fought off first one shot after another.

"First we got rid of the Braves, then the Giants, and after them the Dodgers."

• • •

EVERYBODY TALKS about the Yankees winning when they have to," Otero went on, "and they point to last year when they knocked off the Orioles in September. This year, it was the Tigers.

"But what about the way we went into Los Angeles with a one-game lead and swept four in a row?

"If you think this gang hasn't got guts, take a look at the season we had. Not a single first - division club beat us. Some of the teams we had to knock off, the games we had to win. We'll win this thing, too."

• • •

WHILE THE aforementioned observations attest to the calmness and resilience of the Reds, Otero neglected to mention the big item in the psychological edge they feel they have.

That is the knowledge that the admittedly better - balanced, if not stronger, National League has won five of the last seven World Series, and the Yanks themselves have been vanquished in three of their last five appearances.

Dr. Allen's funeral largest since 1934 Bishop Brooks rites

The funeral services for Dr. Willard W. Allen, Masonic leader, are probably the largest ever held in Baltimore since 1934, when AME Bishop W. Sampson Brooks was buried from Bethel Church.

An AFRO story in July 1934, said that 8,000 persons passed Bishop Brooks bier at the rate of 300 an hour.

The AFRO further reported:

"A crowd of 2,500 filled the church for the services . . . and 1,500 lingered outside of the building listening to the funeral program from three loudspeakers, making a total of 4,000 in attendance.

"The Baltimore funeral for Bishop Brooks was one of four services held in Tex., Mo., and Mass. Bishops attracted large crowds.

At the time of his death, Bishop Brooks, a popular pastor and eloquent speaker, headed the Tenth Episcopal District of the Church.
