about former Baltimoreans now of the California colony should have a chat with Elizabeth Marshall.

Mrs. Marshall is just back from a month's visit with her son, Dr. Granville H. Marshall, and his family in Los Angeles. And she saw just about everyone who had migrated from this city . . . that is when she wasn't doing a lot of 'grandmothering' with the Marshall's three youngsters.

She had dinner with the Tom (Rosalie) Hawkinses. The new Mrs. Hawkins is a nursery school teacher. She saw Dr. and Mrs. Roy Johnson and their two - year-old. The Johnsons are expecting their second child in January. She visited Dr. and Mrs. Peter Swann (she's the former Elane Manns of this town and the daughter of Edgar Manns of hereabouts). And there were the MacBetts, the Coopers, the Deavers, Anna May Goodman and Etta Pearl, sister of Jennie Wilson of Baltimore . . . and Mildred Lynch Mebane and sister, Gladys.

POT - POURRI: If Dr. and Mrs. Emerson C Walden have chins especially high in the air this week, it's because they are mighty proud of her Dad, Henry T. Banks, who was recently honored at a testimonial dinner by the Past Commanders' Council of the James Reese Europe Post, Department of the District of Columbia, American Legion.

Past Commander Banks had given yeoman service to his post for the past 30 years, and is still serving as finance officer. The dinner was held in the International Room of the Occidental Restaurant in Washington.

George L. Holland, manager of the Veterans Benefit Office, was guest speaker.

The Compasions were hostesses to the cultural tete-a-tete following the second concert in the Morgan State College series.

A BUSINESS meeting preceded the social activity. The president, Tommi White presided. She gave a summary of the National Convention and every one joined in her happiness of the fact that Baltimore has three National members, including Celonia Walden, National president; Lillian Lawrence, Eastern Zone Director; and Tommi White, National Coordinator of Children's Program.

Baltimore also received the Silver Merit Award for the largest paid membership; plus the plaque for the 5 point program participation, and was given honorable mention for activities in pictures.
