land colored citizens."

Purpose of the Thursday's meeting was to get the thinking of colored leaders on halting the demonstration, Mr. Hobson said.

AFTER HEARING from Mrs. Juanita J. Mitchell, secretary of the Legal Redress of the NAACP; Dr. L. Logan Kearse, pastor, Cornerstone Baptist Church; and Solomon Baylor, treasurer of the local CORE chapter, Mr. Hobson declared:

"Regardless to what happens at the commission meeting, we will roll."

The only thing to stop it, the director declared, would be for Gov. J. Millard Tawes "to uphold his oath of office and be governor to all the people of Maryland."

This can be done by calling a special session of the legislature and passing a public accommodation law now, Mr. Hobson pointed out.

"THE ONLY other thing that could halt the ride is for the Rt. 40 restaurant owners to reactivate its committee and voluntarily end discrimination," he said, adding:

"I have heard or seen nothing to indicate that either of these things will happen at the meeting. The ride is on!"

Giving the official position of the NAACP on calling off the demonstration, Mrs. Mitchell told the audience:

"Our experience shows that nothing is done for us unless we keep the pressure on. All gains realized in education, employment, recreation and housing are a direct result of pressure. Let them ride."

"IF IT PASSES, and I doubt it, the bill will do nothing but give the little man the run around.

"There are so many loopholes in it, he could never get a hearing in court."

As approved by the council, the proposed bill provides that all complaints of segregation be referred to the attorney general for investigation, who in turn refers them to the state's attorney in whose area the complaint arises.

"It will probably help Africans because they have the backing of the White House, but not us," Mrs. Mitchell said to prolonged applause.

Dr. Kearse, said:

"IT IS simply an act of postponement, procrastination and another in the long series of brain washing attempts."

The council action, the minister declared, is a clear indication of the governor's power to push through an antibias bill if he so desires.

"If it can be done in February, it can be done now. I see no reason for the delay," he said.

"The freedom riders should roll on and I will personally ride with them," he added.

The minister said he will lead a "prayer pilgrimage" of 5,000 citizens to the State House in Annapolis 8 p.m. Nov. 10, "to indicate to Governor Tawes that our position is representative of the rank and file."

GIVING DETAILS of the stration, Mr. Hobson said said due to the response from other groups and organizations, the total number of persons participating will be well over the estimated 1,000 announced earlier.

More than 700 will come from Washington alone, he said. Commenting on the governor's charge that CORE has given him an "ultimatum," Mr. Hobson replied:

"As governor, he has a physical problem of segregation on Route 40. He knows how to correct it without us telling him.

"All we are saying is, 'boy, you have a problem, either you fix it or we ride.' This is no ultimatum or threat. It is a moral issue. The newspapers put politics and politicians in it," he continued, "and we are not thinking of either."

During the planning discussion, CORE spokesmen said there will be enough cars in the demonstration "to reach from Baltimore to Delaware."

OTHERS ATTENDING the meeting at the E. North Ave. office building Thursday were:

Gordon Carey, CORE national executive secretary; Henry Thomas, national field secretary; and student groups from city high schools and colleges; Warren Shaw, real estate dealer and other representatives from churches and "local organizations.

MEANWHILE efforts to avert the demonstration were intensified. Douglass Sands executive secretary of the State Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations, was busy drawing up an agenda for today's meeting with CORE officials at the State OfficeBuilding.

Mr. Sands told the AFRO his group is anxious to persuade CORE to postpone the demonstration to give legislators time to act on the public accommodations bill approved by the Legislative Council Wednesday.

Asked what proposals his group would make to CORE officials, Mr. Sands said:

"At this point, I'm unable to say. Right now we don't know what conditions CORE will accept in order to postpone the 'ride.' we'll have to play it by ear."

A THIRD force was busy looking for ways to cope with "riders" should efforts for a truce fail.

This group included the 11th District Civic League of Baltimore County held a meeting at White Marsh Fire Hall.

Shortly before the gathering, Paul Sullivan, chairman, told the AFRO he was not optimistic about getting any of his group's requests toward off possible violence on Nov. 11.

The group had asked CORE to call off the demonstration, or restaurant owners along Route 40 will close on the 11th.

Failing to get either of these, Mr. Sullivan would ask Gov. J. Millard Tawes to call out the National Guard to "protect property". Speakers included William Boucher 3rd executive director, Greater Baltimore Committee; William Tutton Jr., vice president of the Maryland Restaurant Association;

Also Hyman Pressman, lawyer; Frank Newell 3rd, State's Attorney for Baltimore County; and Alvin J. T. Zumbrun, chairman, Maryland Crime Commission.

Denying an effort to solve the race problem in favor of either side, Mr. Sullivan said the purpose of the meeting was to "find the best way to keep peace in the 11th Ward when the Freedom Riders come."

ANOTHER GROUP, taking no stand on the merits of the proposed demonstration, also worked to ease the "crisis" created by restaurant closings in Maryland generally and on Route 40 in particular.

Myles Katz, president of the White Coffee Pot Restaurant chain, has invited 1,000 restaurant owners to attend a Nov. 7 meeting at 707 N. Calvert St.

Mr. Katz called the meeting at the prompting of the Civic Interest Group, composed of high school and college students who have fought restaurant segregation since 1959.

Pedro Sanjuan, assistant chief of protocol at the State Department will be guest speaker. Mr. Sanjuan has represented the executive branch of the Federal government in all past efforts to kill Maryland restaurant segregation.

Governor Tawes, Mayor J. Harold Grady and Philip H. Goodman, president, City Council were also invited to attend.

MAKING INDIVIDUAL efforts to head off possible adverse consequences of the "ride" were Dr. Theodore H. Johnson, president, Anne Arundel County NAACP, and Mr. Pressman.

Both urged the governor to convene a special session of the legislature to pass public accommodations laws.

Expressing agreement with others who urged the same action, Dr. Johnson told the governor:

"A special session in March, 1962 which you propose to call is too far away.

"Discrimination in restaurants and motels along Route 40 not only is a national issue, but it also is a local issue along our Revell Highway leading from the Bay Bridge to Annapolis, Baltimore and Washington."

MR. PRESSMAN, taking note of the action of Legislative Council, declared:

"The 12 to 6 vote in the council shows that the time is ripe for passage of an anti-discrimination bill now. It is now your compelling duty to call a special session of the legislature and avert the 'freedom ride.'"

Otherwise," the lawyer said, "you will be the one responsible for putting Maryland in the same category with Arkansas and Mississippi in the eyes of the nation and the world."

Delaware governor, Elbert N. Carvel, aggravated the situation by a statement he made Wednesday.

"Restaurant owners in Delaware," he said, "have a legal right to refuse service to colored citizens."

THE REV. MAURICE J. Moyer, president, Wilmington NAACP branch, answered:

"It seems to us that the oath of governor would also embrace the concern and protection of the inalienable rights of all Delawareans, including 33,000 colored citizens."

Governor Tawes has said he endorses a public accommodations bill in principle but has declined to state what form the law should take.

Early this week, the governor was reported as saying he was in favor of passing the law, but was against calling a special session to do so.

The governor told CORE he and legislators would not be blackjacked into calling a special session. Such action should be taken at the regular session, the governor pointed out.

Critics point out it's almost impossible to pass the bill in the next session because it can be killed by one county.

Spokesmen for the governor contend this is true, but it also will improve the chance of passage in a special session, immediately after the regular session adjourns.

Worms play havoc on African populace

ACCRA, Ghana — According to a recent estimate by health officials, only half of African babies reach adulthood.

One of the major reasons for the high death rate, officials said, 162 million of Africa's 200 million inhabitants suffer from three diseases caused by worms or other parasites, namely: bilharziasis, hookworm, malaria.

Ready for jail . . . says Del. cleric

WILMINGTON, Del. — "We're ready and willing to go to jail again and again, until this injustice, humiliation and indignity of restaurant discrimination is removed from the State of Delaware. . .

With these words, the Rev. Maurice J. Moyer, president of the Wilmington NAACP Branch, expressed that group's determination to carry out a massive freedom ride along sections of U.S. Route 40.

HE SAID Wilmington will send more than 100 white and colored Freedom Riders to meet hundreds coming from New York on Nov. 11. They will be joined by hundreds more from Maryland.

The minister made the statement after Gov. Elbert N. Carvel said at a press conference Wednesday that Delaware restaurant owners have the "legal right" to refuse service to colored persons.

The Rev. Mr. Moyer said: "Governor Carvel states that all of the trouble seems to be on the Maryland side of Route 40. We submit it is a sad state of affairs to let arrests and jailings be the only measures to assure service to all people at the restaurants along 16 miles of Route 40 that embrace Delaware.

"The Governor expresses intent to protect the rights of the restaurant owners but he has said nothing of defending the moral and legal rights that colored Americans have in the pursuit of happiness in this country, or their chance of fair play."

THE PRESBYTERIAN minister said that in sponsoring the Freedom Rides "we are seeking no unreasonable considerations. In fact, we know this to be our right under the law of the land.

"No one looks forward to going to jail; but we are ready and willing to go any go again until the injustice, humiliation and indignity of restaurant discrimination is removed from the State of Delaware."

The Rev. Mr. Moyer explained that the Wilmington NAACP Chapter is working with CORE and will "do whatever it wants to do."

The Delaware Freedom Riders will leave from the Community Presbyterian Church on Rogers Rd. in Dunleith Estate, a Wilmington suburb. The Rev. Mr. Moyer is pastor of the church.

zens at random, for this preliminary poll on Gov. Tawes.

They were asked: "If Gov. Tawes was a candidate now for re - election, would you vote for him?"

Among these citizens, almost all of whom were contacted on the streets in East and West Baltimore, 29 said they would not vote for the governor, three said they were undecided, and four said they would vote for him.

Nine of those who said the governor would not get their vote asked that their names not be used, because of business or personal reasons.

The other citizens polled, and their answers, were:

• • •

Charles Harris, 324 N. Calhoun St.: "I don't know. I don't know. I don't know now whether Tawes is the right man or not."

George A. Williams Sr., 1101 N. Stricker St.: "I don't have anything to say on this right now. Maybe. I will later on, but not right now."

Harry L. Coles, 1101 W. Lanvale St.: "I wouldn't vote for him now, or next year. Not only is he prejudiced, but there are so many other reasons why he won't get my vote, it would take a long time to go through all of them."

Howard Gross, 817 Chauncery Ave.: "I have never voted for him, or anybody off the Eastern Shore. I wouldn't vote for him now."

Travis Palmer, 2340 Druid Hill Ave.: "He won't get my vote."

George Buckner, 1313 Argyle Ave.: "I will vote for him. He seems all right to me."

Warren Eley, 707 George St.: "He seems to be a pretty nice fellow, with all that he's done, I will vote for him."

Mrs. F. Bryant, 821 N. Arlington Ave.: "I don't see very much he has done for us so far. Just to put a man in office who does all for his race and nothing for us is something we should avoid. If he doesn't do more for us than he has, I won't vote for him."

James Scott, 1115 N. Calhoun St.: "I didn't vote for him before, and I won't this time."

CORN JOHNSON, 202 N. Fulton Ave.: "I don't know. I don't know now whether I will vote for him or not."

John Williams, 1511 Edmondson Ave.: "No. I wouldn't vote for him. He hasn't done anything for us."

Claude Wallace, 1907 Moreland Ave.: "I'm not going to vote for Tawes, and the way he's been handling that Route 40 situation."

Thomas Kelley, 2510 McCulloh St.: "Hey, I'm going to get my vote. I don't want no parts of him."

Leroy Smith, 808 Baker St.: "Would I vote for Tawes' re - election? I would say no. He has given me no reasons to vote for him."

Clarence Cherry, 2118 W. North Ave.: "Not me. I wouldn't vote for him, and I've got many reasons."

The Rev. Julius Knight, 1616 Milliman St.: "I don't get involved in this sort of thing. I'm a preacher. I don't bother with politics."

Henry King, 2025 Robb St.: "Tawes hasn't handled that Route 40 matter to suit me. I won't vote for him."

William Henson, 1730 N. Caroline St.: "I'm not going to vote for him. I can't see anything he has done."

Bruce Bell, 1730 E. Monument St.: "I wouldn't vote for him under any circumstances. We've lost ground under him, instead of gaining things."

Marion Tolliver, 1416 Harford Ave.: "I'm not going to vote for Tawes. He has promised a lot of things, even a colored judge, but has come up with nothing that I can see."

Arthur Scott, 730 Harford Ave.: "No. I won't vote for him."

William A. Ross, 2521 Huron St.: "Definitely not. I will not vote for him."

Mrs. Mary Martin, 2500 Huron St.: "Yes, I will vote for him. I think he is a nice man, although I don't understand too much about these things."

Mrs. Lethia Williams, 2028 E. Hoffman St.: "I think I will vote for him. I don't have any special reasons. I think I will vote for him. That's all."

Rev. Frank Williams of the Ministerial Interdenominational Alliance and many other civic and religious leaders. Earl Koger Sr. is heading the movement.

Dr. Jackson, one of the cosponsors, hailed the movement as "a righteous step," as did other sponsors.

Parents are encouraged to bring their children who may witness and long remember this event.

Mr. Koger said, "We are debtors to the colored race, and therefore are obligated to make freedom live and prosper. We can win only by peaceful means born of persistent faith and long patience.

We know the sting of humiliation. When a state is governed by prejudice, then freedom is mocked and the state becomes enslaved.

"Who of mortal flesh and blood should tell us where to go or stay?"

TRICK OR TREAT

Halloween has changed but, yes, Linus, there is a 'Great Pumkin'

By FRANK HUNT

I have a confession to make to those upper Northwest residents who were disturbed by the appearance of a makeshift Sheik with a real mustache at their doors on Halloween night.

It was me.

No, I didn't really need the pounds and lollipops, and I don't like bubble gum.

It all stemmed from an idle conversation with a colleague who is best known to you for her biting and descriptive crime stories.

"HALLOWEEN isn't what it used to be. People just as soon slam the door in a kid's face as give him a treat nowadays.

"When I was coming along, we'd get as big a treat out of tricking them if they didn't play ball, as if they knew it, so they invariably went along with the game," she reminisced glowingly.

NOT WISHING to remind her how long ago that really was, I punned "It's not so bad as all that. The spirit's there."

And from this humble beginning ensued a surprisingly heated discussion, in which I, on par, shoved my foot in my mouth and promised to prove my point.

So there I was, garbed in a zebra-designed, Japanese kimono, a sheet around my head and dropping cleaklike down my back, and a turban further hiding my curly locks.

To make the venture less risky, I took along my two-year-old nephew, Randy Davis, and the seven - year - old son of a friend, Johnny Brown.

ALL SAINTS NIGHT was at its best. A benevolent moon defied threatening clouds to throw its inimitable and inimical pall of on the most innocent of objects.

I soon discovered that there are more goblins, witches, shockingly plump spooks and sundry other denizens of darkness than there were when I was in my prime.

Several of these glanced curiously at my costume and indicated that, on this night at least, they had no respect for their elders.

"Looks like your mother," a goblin said to a skelton.

WE CUT THROUGH a couple of alleys and side streets to find more virgin territory since by this time we were drawing evil looks from groups of spirits who seemed to resent us encroaching on "their blocks."

Even Halloween has been tainted by monopolism and big business, I thought.

We emerged on the 1300 block of Allison St., NW, saw that the block was clear of our amicious competitors and began our own practical campaign.

Johnny rang the bell, and after a few moments, the Venetian blinds parted, a pair of eyes peeped out cautiously, and the door opened to reveal an elderly lady with a paper bag in one hand.

"Twit Tweet" said Randy. "Trick or Treat" said Johnny.

"Likewise" I intoned, carefully concealing the lower half of my face with a corner of my "cloak."

"Here you are," the woman said smilingly, and proceeded to dispense candy and peanuts.

As I hastily shoved my bag forward, I carelessly dropped my cloak, revealing my mustache and not-too-young features.

SHE PEERED at me sharply, and hesitated with a fistfull of goodies.

"Aren't you a little old for this sort of thing," she asked pointedly.

"Second-childhood," I murmured, hastily pulling back my cloak and rattling my bag.

She stared hard for about 10 seconds, while I shakingly considered beating a quiet retreat. Then she dropped the handful of goodies into my bag and banged the door shut.

Round one a draw, I thought.

FOREWARNED by my first goof, I vowed to keep my face covered and my mouth shut, and the next few homes fell easily before the skillful wiles of my youthful comrades.

Everybody was obviously prepared for the ocassion. To what extent was indicated by the quantity of goodies they dispensed. Some had apparently been hit harder than others, and were doling out their sweets carefully in anticipation of a long night of youthful visitors.

At one ome a youth clad in a cadet uniform, came to the door with apples, stared at me, went back in the house, and returned with a specimen which more nearly matched my age.

"This one," he said with some rancor, "has worms in it."

"Touche", I said with a bow, and folding my cloak about me, I quietly stole away in the best tradition of the Near East.

An answer to the petition is due by Nov. 13.

right away" if Col. Shreve is back Monday.

"THERE HAS been a division of opinion in various areas and this is a hearing designed to clear matters up and get the city a comprehensive civil defense program," Councilman Angelos said.

"What the problems are, where civil defense may not have done what it could, is what we want to settle," he added.

Francis X. Gallagher of the Third District is chairman of the City Council Committee, composed of one councilman from each district, which will hear the complaints.

Another councilman expected to play a key role in the hearing is William D. Schaefer of the Fifth District who, the AFRO learned, has personally looked into the matter on the basis of complaints he received.

WESTERN CD District Coordinator Charles N. Perry, spokesman for the district's volunteer workers, said this week "we will still bring the charges, some of them very serious.

"There has not been a cooling off period. It is beyond that stage."

In an AFRO story of Oct. 21 Mr. Perry, whose district has the only ranking colored volunteers, said it is better off from an organizational standpoint but definitely worse off as to equipment.

He said the Western District, which has headquarters in the Enoch Pratt Library Branch at North and Pennsylvania Aves., has but two telephones and no radios while each of the other eight districts has six telephones and at least two radios.

Mr. Perry said that in order to operate efficiently the Western District must have the same facilities as the other districts."

Representatives from Governor J. Millard Tawes' office and from the Federal Government are to attend the civil defense hearing whenever it comes up.

amples of similar classics with similar points.

He stated that the two books are under the same cover published in 1933 by Noble and Noble, a New York firm. He quoted the publisher as selecting "The Emperor Jones" book as a joint classic along with Macbeth for comparative literature units.

Dr. Brain revealed that the book went on the approved booklist when Thomas VanSant was assistant superintendent.

Dr. Brain said: "The book has not been removed from the approved list but we have instructed English teachers to use it in such a manner as not to embarrass any student, not to use it in oral reading, but simply as a study text in literature classes for the particular unit of study."

Dr. Brain said: "If we removed every piece of material some group might find objectionable, we'd have few left, a very limited amount of pastoral remaining for the teachers for classroom instruction.

"Just about all books and materials have points of objection. It is difficult to find books that are not objectionable to some group or another."

Dr. Brain also said steps have been taken to seek a revised edition from the publisher. A letter to Noble and Noble from the assistant superintendent of Secondary Education, Dr. Vernon S. Vavrina, requested that the Baltimore school authorities be informed of any action taken.

Dr. Brain also states that a committe of English Supervisors and assistants has been assigned the task of reviewing "The Emperor Jones" play and its uses in the curriculum to see if a substitution can be made.

DR. VAVRINA told the AFRO he had read the book "so long ago" he can only recall it was the subject of an opera, a movie and a play in which Paul Robeson starred.

He said he would not recommend it for oral reading but pupils should Be prepared for it and should have the maturity to handle it.

He stated, "If this is followed, the students' attitudes would be wholesome attitudes.

"It could be used well but if not handled carefully it could result in attitudes we would not condone.

Dr. Vavrina added, however: "I could say that about many books. At the corner drug store are many of them the pupil must someday meet and they have to be trained to evaluate them."

Mrs. Josie G. Smith, an English supervisor in the Secondary Schools told the AFRO on Wednesday:

"No book is compulsory to use in any classroom. I prefer not to be quoted.

"Emperor Jones" has been on the public school list for over 20 years, since the play became popular. It is still a part of the listing. It is combined with the book "Macbeth," under the same cover.

"The two are on the list for 11th grade reading.

"As far as I know, every school in the city, including Douglass High, has it on the book shelf. Every school has access to the book catalogue."

She stated that her statement on the matter of "Emperor Jones" is on file in the office of Dr. Vernon S. Vavrina, assistant superintendent in charge of Secondary, Vocational and Adult Education.
