Tony Konstant also deserves bouquets.

"Credit also should go to the restaurant owners in Baltimore, Harford and Cecil counties who came through Wednesday with commitments to serve all.

"Also to CORE for the position they took. I have every confidence the other restaurants will go along and open their places and serve all as a place of public accommodations should do in a democracy.

"It's difficult to say whether they will make the deadline.

"As for a bill, what happened in the last General Assembly won't hold true in the next. The climate now has changed tremendously.

"It has been a wonderful thing to work with the people from CORE. I think their dedication of purpose and principle motivated the Commission to some extent."

DR. FURMAN L. TEMPLETON, commission member, said:

"I am greatly pleased in the way the immediate problem of Route 40 has been received.

"The Commission worked hard on the problem but our success would not have been achieved without a reasonable attitude on the part of CORE, the hard work put in by the Restaurant Owners Committee and the generous support of the public.

"It is my firm opinion the final answer lies squarely in the hands of the state legislature which must pass an acceptable public accommodations bill at its next session.

"Failure on the part of the legislature to do this would break faith with all those who were actively involved in the present Route 40 solution.

"I am confident many more restaurants along Route 40 will open up between now and Dec. 15."

years, the Rev. Dr. Mays noted Dr. Tobias' deep interest, in social justice.

"He always championed the cause of the man furthest down," said the Atlanta educator. "He always championed the underdog."

A NUMBER OF notables attended the simple but dignified last rites of Dr. Tobias. Among them were:

U.S. District Judge Thurgood Marshall, Lester Granger, retired National Urban League director; former Sen. Herbert Lehman, civil rights and labor leader A. Philip Randolph and former Judge Hubert Delaney.

Also, Arthur Spingarn, NAACP president; Bishop Stephen G. Spottswood, NAACP board chairman; Mrs. Poppy Cannon White, widow of Walter White; Mrs. Marguerite Belafonte; Dr. Jean Noble, president of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, and Roy Wilkins, NAACP executive secretary.

Others included Judge Joseph Goldstein, president of the Grand St. Boys Association; Dr. Peter Marshall Murray, Judge Francis Rivers, the Rev. O. Clay Maxwell, Councilman Herbert Evans, William Trent of the United Negro College Fund, State Sen. James Watson, Mrs. Ruth Whaley, secretary of the Board of Estimate, labor leader Thomas B. Young, and George Gregory of the Civil Service Commission.

Also, Allen L. Dingle, Rudolph J. Thomas, Dr. Francis S. Harmon, Dr. Paul H. Anderson and Dr. Donald A. Lowrie, all representing the YMCA.

MORE THAN 200 persons were killed when Hurricane Hattie slammed into Belize, Capital of the British Honduras. More than 15,000 nearly half of the population, persons, were left homeless.

British troops moved into the paralyzed, storm-struck city with orders to shoot to kill to prevent looting of food.

An airlift from the United States, Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras, Jamica and other countries rushed in huge supplies of food and water purification chemicals. But feeding centers were still overcrowded three days after the storm.

Belize bore the brunt of the hurricane which packed 200-mile-an-hour winds. An estimated 75 percent of the buildings in the capital were destroyed. The devastation was greater than the 1931 hurricane when more than 2,000 persons were killed.

The government announced after the storm that the capital, twice destroyed by hurricanes, would be moved from the exposed Caribbean coast to higher ground 44 miles inland.

Persons interested in helping Miss Hood should sent clothes or other itmes to her in care of The Hofius Hardware Co., Ltd., P.O. Box 193, Belize, British Honduras, C.A.

when the Maryland Commission on Interracial Problems and Relations came up with the only solution that could halt it.

LAST FRIDAY, CORE gave the commission its final offer.

The demonstration would be held off, Julius Hobson, CORE regional director said, if a "substantial" number of Route 40 restaurants voluntarily desegregated by Nov. 11.

"Substantial" was defined as 25 to 30 of the more than 65 restaurants along the Maryland strip of the interstate highway.

Late Wednesday, William C. Rogers Sr., commission chairman, told CORE 35 owners had accepted the final offer, but set Nov. 22, instead of the 11th as a target date.

By Dec. 15, the chairman added, all remaining restaurants would drop color bars.

CORE accepted.

The truce produced a variety of reactions.

JAMES FARMER, national director of CORE saw it as a "Thanksgiving present."

To Gov. J. Millard Tawes the reprieve was "heart-warming news."

After receiving word from Mr. Rogers that the ride was off, the governor issued this statement:

"This is indeed heart-warming news. I have long felt that the entrance of Freedom Riders into Maryland was unnecessary.

"In this instance, with the support of our citizens, state officials and representatives of restaurants and hotel owners, we have followed a course of action with a firm dedication to correct a wrong without submitting to individuals coercion.

"I AM PROUD of this state and its people. This problem was solved by perseverance. The many individuals and groups who worked so long and diligently in the area, have genuinely earned the respect and admiration of their fellow Marylanders and indeed their fellow Americans.

"I hope the manner in which this problem was solved will serve as an inspiration to our sister states. It demonstrates that if Americans will face their responsibility with courage and dedication, no problem is too big to be licked."

STUDENTS WHO supported the ride, were unhappy. They said:

"We would have never accepted those terms." They added they were willing to accept nothing short of "all or none."

A key figure in the proposed "ride," Dr. Logan Kearse, pastor of Cornerstone Baptist Church, disagreed with this viewpoint.

"The announced plan to desegregate should not cause despair among citizens of Maryland. We should be grateful that national CORE entered the situation and produced results equal to or greater than those we could have gained by the actual ride."

The minister said the scheduled prayer pilgrimage to Annapolis has been cancelled. However he will join with businessman Earl Koger who'll lead a "thanksgiving prayer" assembly to City Hall Plaza at 5 p.m. Friday.

This gathering will go on as scheduled for two reasons, Dr. Kearse said.

FIRST "to give thanks that the consciousness of restaurant owners have been raised to the point of a peaceful freedom ride", and secondly "to pray for complete desegregation of all places of public accommodation throughout the state."

Saturday at 10 p.m. sponsors and supporters of the "ride" will meet at Cornerstone, Bolton and Wilson Sts. Originally this was to have been the assembly point for Freedom Riders in Baltimore and all points south.

In wake of the truce, it will be a rally meeting.

The NAACP, which supported the demonstration wholeheartedly, gave this reaction:

"The Maryland State Conference of NAACP Branches supports the position of the Civic Interest Group and other studies that the victory on Route 40 is a skimpy one!

"Maryland colored citizens are being humiliated and mistreated in places of public accommodations throughout the state every day. We reiterate that February and March, 1962, is too far away for legislative action on the national and international disgrace in Maryland.

"We pledge every resource to assist the CIG and other students who are willing to sit in for freedom now!"

• • •

DESPITE THE truce, several questions remain unanswered. Among them:

Where do we go from here?

Does the agreement between CORE, the commission and 35 Route 40 restaurant owners solve the problem once and for all?

Will the truce be short-lived when implementation becomes even more difficult than the formal, written agreement?

Will Nov. 22 or Dec. 15 become a new target date for the massive ride along Route 40 or elsewhere?

Is the agreement a prelude to statewide public accommodations laws?

Answers to these and the many other questions which come to mind are unknown.

BUT ONE thing is certain. Until the very cause for freedom rides disappear throughout the state, there will be other Freedom Riders, one way or another.

Examination of CORE's statement and those of other parties interested in the struggle for equality is proof positive of this.

Mr. Farmer said:

"CORE feels that the decision of 35 Maryland and 12 Delaware restaurant operators to provide equal service for all is a Thanksgiving present for the American people."

He added that CORE is confident that the change will be accomplished smoothly and volunteered the assistant of his organization to bring same about, then warns:

"If the rest of Route 40 restaurants don't open by Dec. 15, we will hit them with everything we have.

"CORE pledges to take action to end discrimination in every area of Maryland, in public accommodations, restaurants, housing and employment."

THE NAACP's position is crystal clear on this point.

CIG, which fought the problem over two years, promises no letup.

The Rev. Dr. Kearse, who warmly received the news, also gave notice that the Route 40 situation will not bring complacency.

"The fact that CORE has committed itself not to ride on Route 40, does not prevent Marylanders from riding on other routes."

He added that one of the results of Saturday's rally will be a decision to ride "for freedom elsewhere in the state."

ANOTHER INSIGHT to the future activity of rights righters came in the announcement from Dr. Kearse that a federation to coordinate the efforts of all groups working for equality will be formed immediately.

It's apparent then that the Route 40 truce is merely a lull in an uneasy peace threatening to explode anew unless it is recognized for what it is — the beginning of true equality for all Maryland citizens, and not the final solution to a problem which should have been solved a century ago.

family home."

The Postmaster General withdrew the latter remark.

Law was charged with five infractions of his duties and dismissed last September. He fought the dismissal, charing it was based on his activities with the NAACP in Georgia.

Clarence Mitchell, Washington director of the NAACP and Senator Case of New Jersey, had criticized Law's dismissal.

A three-man board heard Law's appeal from the dismissal and recommended reinstatement. The Post Office regional director did not act and the case went to Postmaster General Day.

Clarence Mitchell, director of the Washington NAACP, told the AFRO:

"I think that it was a very cheap and shabby reaction on the part of the Postmaster General.

"It seems the President had pointed the way to a gracious solution, but the Postmaster General acted in a manner that shows he's unworthy of his position.

"All he did was to retract one line."

Ashed if the NAACP planned further action in the matter, Mr. Mitchell replied:

"We haven't closed the case. We will keep it open in case it becomes necessary to defend Mr. Law again.

"We want it known that we are not going to stand by and let them frame the man."

Cleric calls for 'gospel bombs' on Khrushchev

WASHINGTON

Methodist ministers reminded themselves this week that "we as ambassadors of God should see that people get the real gospel."

A forum Monday at Asbury Methodist Church emphasized need for "the real gospel," as opposed to dwelling on "Khrushchev and Communism" in the pulpit.

The Rev. Kelly Jackson, Methodist superintendent and participant in the discussion, quoted a layman as saying:

"I think our ministers are afraid of us. We just don't get the real gospel. People today are in search for the real gospel."

THE REV. Benjamin F. Hall, retired minister, said what is at stake is the relaxation for clergymen and laymen alike:

"This world is in a hellnva fix, but God is going to have the last word."

Men must realize the power of the love of God, he said.

Another retired minister, the Rev. Charles E. Smallwood, said pastors should ask themselves if they are reaching the hearts of men and women, thus enabling them to cope with today's problems and tensions.

THE REV. R. H. BADDY, who conducted the meeting, said the idea is not to avoid problems, personal and otherwise, but to deal with them in terms of the real gospel.

GIFT FOR MRS. SANTA — James Grant (left) president of the West End Social Club is presenting a $70 check to the AFRO's Mrs. Santa Project. The money represents entree fees contestants paid in a beauty contest which was part of the club's cabaret party last week. This was the first donation of the year to Mrs. Santa. If you would like to help, you can, by attending the AFRO's Festival of Music on Nov. 26. This issue contains full details on the musical treat. Receiving the check on behalf of Mrs. Santa is James D. Williams, assistant managing editor.

MRS. SANTA CAME EARLY — On Wednesday night, the AFRO's Mrs. Santa took these four youngsters to Sears in the Mondawmin Shopping Center, where she purchased shoes for them. The youngsters, whose mother was taken off the welfare rolls, could not attend school because they had no clothes. In fact, when Mrs. Santa took them to get the shoes, they didn't even have stockings. If you would like to help families like these, buy several tickets to the AFRO's Benefit Festival of Music on Nov. 26.

her mother and father where there were already two nephews, brother, cousin and niece's baby.

The woman's father had just been laid off at a local steel plant. No one in the home is working.

Meantime, the children were hungry, had no shoes and were in no clothing suitable, had been unable to attend school at all this term.

HERE, MRS. Santa was faced with tragedy upon tragedy.

However, cash from the AFRO's Christmas fund was available.

That evening before the sun went down, a great basket of food was sent to the home.

The grandmother told the AFRO: "The children ate like they were starved. Thanks to the Lord and to the AFRO's Mrs. Santa came early this year.

DESCRIBING conditions before Mrs. Santa arrived, the grandmother said: "The babies were crying for milk. The people in the neighborhood don't have much. They were willing to share but they had nothing.

"Things looked pretty bad until we found the AFRO. Now, I just told the children, see how blessings can come."

With a tear in her voice, the grandmother added: "I certainly do thank you. I'm so glad for your help."

And still the blessings came — from Mrs. Santa.

THE NEXT DAY, the AFRO took the five children to Sears Roebuck Store at Mondawmin to shop for shoes. The discovery that the little fellows had no stockings on posed no problem. Immediately, stockings were purchased and the gala affair of trying on new shoes proceeded.

Over and over again as the children smiled broadly, the grandmother said, "Thank you, thank you, thank you."

Within a short time, the five youngsters walked out the store looking proudly down at their shoes.

At the Penn Fruit Store, the manager said he would send Pet Milk to the home on the following morning.

A member of the Light Street Presbyterian Church, making her purchases at the meat counter, bought meat for the family. Hauswalds Bread bakery gave loaves of bread.

ALL PERSONS who wish to make the many needy families of this city and surrounding areas happy for Christmas, may help by attending the Festival of Music on Sunday, Nov. 26.

Tickets are now available at the AFRO office.

ATLANTA — "The Nation and the Colored American" is the title of the four-day lecture series being presented this week at Morris Brown College by Dr. Eli Ginzberg, professor of economics at Columbia University's graduate business school.
