On the TOWN

Last week Crawlers laid well-deserved plaudits on the men who make the Crawlers' Cafavan go.

They earned them because they saw to it their houses were operated in a manner which put them head and shoulders above the spots which got caught in the grand jury's web a few moons back.

That conditions uncovered by this probe borders on the sickening side, there's no argument.

Neither is there any beef that methods of cure must be hard and fast. No city can afford a "Block."

However, the Pub Crawlers suggest that great care be taken in passing legislation so innocent league won't get hurt.

NOW FOR THE happenings!

Maceo's still swinging to the organ magic of Waverly Edmondson and basking in the candlelight atmosphere of this beautiful loung. Thrasher's Lounge, with Flink Johnson holding the reins, bursts on the scene last seven, and oh what winging!

One of the classiest spots these days is Red Fox where the bewitching voice of Ethel Ennis is keeping all who listen spellbound.

Casino, which has gone a long way to bring a touch of the Great White Way to the Main Drag, is again the hub of those seeking live, big time entertainment.

Lou Donaldson, terrific "ax" man, moves center stage tonight, he follows Michelle's combo, which rang out last dark. Until told otherwise, there's no cover, no minimum and no admission fees here. You should join Charlie on Thursdays for Old Timer's nite.

New face at Chick's, Anne Love, the "girl with gimmick," buzzed Crawlers the other bright that you are missing something if you haven't caught her baseball act which highlights her twisting routine. She says it's no accident that she's known as "home run champ."

We know now that the holidays aren't long in coming. Walter (Tall Man) Thomas and Kleece are getting ready for the annual holiday decoration festival. This is always a ball.

THERE'S NOTHING special planned at Jones Cocktail Lounge for the upcoming seven. But that's the point. it leaves room for the unexpected gay sessions triggered by Dusty and Dukie, which always swing out A - OK. Same can be said for Big Tom Wilson at Alhambra, and Wendy Wilson at Vilma.

At Knotty Pine of course, the stomp is standard. You can't beat it for endless rug cutting. You'll have to make it to the Rose Room if you want to dance at Lucky Number, but that doesn't kill the urge when you give listen to the mighty strokes of Cornell Muldrow, the "Can't Sit Down" man and his Bim Bam Boos.

The make - you - want - to dance also seizes you when you hit in at the Carnival Lounge. But that's no secret look whose playing the music.

If you get the feeling that the missile men have been a work when you see M. J. T. plus 1, don't panic. It's just that Phil's has come up With a new tag for the Modern Jazz Trio plus One, which is a fixture there.

The fixture tag also fits Adams Cocktail Lounge, out Turner Station way. That's what Tune Toppers and Al Brown are. [illegible] the mood.

Grachan Moncur at North End falls into this category, especially when teamed with Gary Bartz's Jazz men. A really swining show they put on.

SAILING HIGH at Dotson's is Swinging Affairs of '62, with Sammy Jay and Dave Ross furnishing the go-power. At the Spot like Club Sara, everybody furnishes the momentum, so it's not easy to cut loose when you get caught up in the excitement. But make it in and hang on, you'll love it.

A tip of the lid to a new face, the White Elephant, formerly Tijuana. Welcome aboard nice knowing you are here. Will be in to pick up vital statistics on the who's and how's this set of sevens.

Composer wins high UN award

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (ANP) — William Grant Still, noted composer who once worked with the late W. C. Handy and arranged music for such well known personalities as Paul Whiteman and Sophie Tucker, has been awarded the National Federation of Music Clubs award for an orchestral work dedicated to the United Nations.

Titled "The Peaceful Land," the score was selected from among 86 entered in the contest, co-sponsored by the United States Committee for the United Nations and the Aeolian Music Foundation.

It will bring Still, 66, $1,500 plus the cost of the reproduction of the performance material. "The Peaceful Land" was to have its premier performance Tuesday, United Nations Day.

WINNING honors is nothing new to Still, however. He was the first to conduct a white radio orchestra in New York; the first to write a symphony, and the first of his race to lead a major symphony orchestra.

—New case recalls

all this. I didn't ask for you fellows to come into the department."

McKnight added, "The captain knows what he has done to me but he is hiding under the brotherhood of his fellow officers."

"These incidents represent only a fraction of the injustice which has been perpetrated against me by Capt. Curran.

"In an effort on my part not to become a nuisance with chronic complaints, I have endured this until the situation of this treatment and injustice has become so obvious that at this time I seek redress".

LT. ALLEN said he could not understand why McKnight objected to performing menial tasks when the company was under strength because "I did it myself."

Firefighter Spradley said he was "familiar with the situation" at the station house.

Firefighter McDowell stated that when he asked the captain about driving he was told, "It takes time".

Firefighter White said that after trying to talk with the Captain on three occasions he was finally told, "I assign men as I see fit. You can quit if you don't like it."

Firefighter Bynum of Engine Company 36 testified that when he was assigned to Capt. Curran's command he was asked not to use certain wash basins in order to "keep down friction in the house".

Bynum said he heard no more about the wash basins after he took the matter up with his battalion chief.

CAPTAIN CURRAN told the Board "Gentlemen, half of the remarks you have heard here are not true.

"I saw no reason for changing the house work from being done the same way.

"I have seen McKnight prolong a job that could be done in a half hour. He works like a man 85 years old.

"It seems to me as if he has almost lost his mind he is so willing to operate the apparatus.

"Gentlemen, he came here loaded with a lot of things that are not so," Capt. Curran declared.

FIREFIGHTER COVER said "McKnight has been on me about this prejudice thing so often that I asked him to talk about something else, even football.

"He has called me names and threatened to hit me. The next time he does that I might hit him back with a chair.

"There is nothing but dissension and Mr. McKnight is the cause of it all," Cover stated.

UNDER QUESTIONING by J. Marshall Boone, one of the Board members, McKnight admitted to a false statement on his Civil Service application eight years ago.

McKnight said he made the error because he did not understand the question.

THE McKNIGHT CASE follows by almost two months a complaint made by a second colored firefighter.

Last September, Firefighter Sherwood G. Gambrill asked to be reinstated after he had been dismissed for "conduct prejudicial to the Department".

The case against Gambrill who was later reinstated and then resigned, centered around testimony of "unsanitary conditions" in the fire house where he was stationed.
