PRISON FOOD AND PRISON JEANS make us look "fat," the young women disclosed. They had hoped to lose weight but feel they have gained instead. Freedom Ride Sidelights

While parents across the country are singing the praises of a colored jail warden, Warden Phillip L. Colbert, 23, of Annapolis, who is one of the two colored wardens in the United States (The other is in Texas).

Their children, lodged in the Anne Arundel County jail for trespass Saturday, have sent the word back home how Warden Colbert is the essence of courtesy, sent them dinners of ham, potato salad, last Saturday night when he found they were in jail.

The young women report they have sheets, pillows, blankets. At Warden Colbert's request, a special matron has been sent in, Mrs. Alma Johnson, staff member of Crownsville State Hospital.

PRESIDENT of the Democrats for Political Action, Dr. Kearse, had no time for meals since Friday 4 p.m., but bore expense (about $400) of dinner and breakfast for more than 60 persons.

Present were the 22 persons arrested and other demonstrators, friends and out of towners.

EDWARD NOTTAGE, arrested at Grecco's Steak House Glen Burnie, was a lone Freedom Rider, missed his group when they left Philadelphia.

BONDSMAN William Dixon put up over $2,200 bonds without much persuasion even though many of the demonstrators are from out of town, some under 21 years of age. Orchids to Mr. Dixon.

AROUND TOWN

Miss Anna Gross Bennett, speaker for the 8:30 a.m. Women's Day services at Sharp Street Methodist Church Sunday has been faithful secretary at Sharp Street 25 years.

She is a teacher of Adult Education at Dunbar Evening School office practice classes, a Douglass graduate.

Leaders include Mrs. Rosella Lucas, national president; Mrs. J. Frank Pile, United Church Women; Mrs. Earlenne Golden, AME Zion Church Young People's Department; Mrs. Clementine Cheatham, AME Church director of Missionary Education; and the Revs. C. C. McCormack, Sidney Daniels, Vernon Dobson, James Adams, and the Rev. Edward G. Carroll, Sharp Street pastor.

LETTER from Reginald Robinson, the Baltimore CIG leader who is working on register and vote campaign throughout the South, says he is in Atlanta, Ga.

THE WOMEN'S Democratic Club with Mrs. Victorine Adams as chairman, voted to follow the Freedom Riders on the trip to the State Capital and to take the trip with the group last week.

They will also join the United Nations and take an interest in foreign students. Mrs. Marguerite Linton reports that many need warm clothing.

Mrs. Ida Bolden is chairman of the group's UN trip in the Spring. Preparation has been made for placement of foreign students in homes for Christmas and Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Beryl Williams and Wilkes Peters are serving as advisors.

Mrs. Ruth Turner is secretary. Members of the UN Committee are Mesdames Ida Bolden, Marguerite Linton, Grace Johnson, Elizabeth Briggs, Hortense Henry, Myrtle Johnson, and Miss Gladys Barbour.

ARREST SCENE — In the shadow of the Governor's Mansion and the State House in Annapolis, 10 persons were arrested Saturday after 9 of them sought service in the Barnes Drive-In Restaurant. AFRO reporter Mrs. Elizabeth M. Oliver was arrested on a warrant ordered by the restaurant although she did not seek service and identified herself as a working member of the press. All were charged with trespassing.

Trepass Act of Maryland. The charges grew out of a Saturday demonstration at Barnes Restaurant, located about 100 feet from the Governor's Mansion, where they and six other students asked to be served food at tables.

Including today, Friday, the young women have been in jail seven days, 168 hours. They chose jail for the cause of freedom. The six others remained in jail over Monday.

MISS BARRETT a member of the Delta Sigma Theta sorority, and a Temple University graduate, celebrated her 23rd birthday in jail Thursday.

WHEN THE Freedom Ride of last Saturday came, she decided, "and volunteered to serve as spokesman for a group of 19 Philadelphia students.

She told the AFRO, "When a cause is right morally, spiritually and within the law, you just don't have any fear."

MISS KING, also a 1961 Temple University graduate honor and scholarship student, says: "Only by remaining in jail can we bring this issue to the public to let them decide what the Constitution already insures us, that all people are accorded freedom in the United States."

MISS SIRIZOTTI, a sophomore at Antioch Collge, Yellow Springs, Ohio, is serving a 6-month internship at the Philadelphia Followship House.

She said, "As long as this condition exists, our best protest can be made from the jail."

WHEN THE AFRO visited the jail on Wednesday, permission to interview the young women was gained from Warden Phillip Colbert, 23.

Assuring visitors that the three unusual prisoners are not receiving any special favors or treatment, he pointed out: "I make it a practice to treat everyone as I would would like to be treated."

In accord with usual treatment for women prisoners, the three students have blankets, sheets and pillows on their bunk beds in the dormatory-like 15-30 foot cell.

Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Johnson of Annapolis, the Anne Arundel County NAACP president, sent them a portable TV.

Members of the Annapolis Delta Sigma Theta sorority sent a radio and fruit. Other visitors bearing gifts were two St. Johns College students here.

A BIRTHDAY cake came from the Baltimore Jackie Robinson Youth Council of the NAACP.

Other visitors include staff members of the Philadelphia Fellowship House, the Annapolis and Baltimore Chapters NAACP., the Annapolis College Avenue Baptist Church and other individuals from Baltimore, Annapolis, and surrounding communities.

Among leisure hour pastimes is a contest the young women have based on how many roaches can be killed.

They go for walks accompanied by the matron, Mrs. Alva Johnson, a Crownsville State Hospital rehabilitation worker, who was "borrowed" to stay with the Philadelphia students.

Mrs. Johnson says it is the first time in history a matron has been employed at the jail.

She disclosed that the young women have recieved mail from relatives and friends but no word has come from Maryland government officials.

James B. Morton, assistant to Governor Tawes, visited on Sunday, she said, after the father of another jailed Freedom Rider called long distance from Akron, O.

The Freedom Rider's father is law director for the city of Akron, a Mr. Richard VanBerg Sr. The son, arrested on Saturday and in jail through Monday, was released on $100 bail, returned to his studies at Haverford College in Philadelphia to await trial.

Others of the nine Philadelphia students, released on bail Monday, have also returned to college. A 10th person arrested on the Saturday occasion, Elizabeth M. Oliver, AFRO reporter, was released on $24 bail Saturday.

—Plan more sit-ins

in actively supporting a statewide bill on equal accommodations was sincere and done in good faith as borne out by our efforts in working on and preparing a suitable bill," the statement said.

"To further this objective, the association invites leaders of the demonstration groups to meet with its legislative committee at the earliest moment to discuss means of achieveing such legislation."

THE 16-MEMBER board of directors, policy making arm of the association, condemned the demonstrations and what they called "attendant rowdyism."

"We believe that continuation of the sit-in program, with its attendant rowdyism, may make passage of such a law more difficult.

"We think the demonstrators should direct their efforts not to restaurant owners, who sympathize with their views, but to the governor, the members of the legislature and the general public, in whose hands the final and equitable solution of the problem lies," the statement continued.

William Tutton Jr., association vice president and chairman of the legislative committee, said owners will continue to jail demonstrators if they refuse to leave when asked.

"VULGARITY, violence, especially when fomented by outsiders," will not be tolerated the association declared.

Referring to an incident at Hooper's Restaurant where 16 demonstrators were arrested Saturday, the statement said:

"Rowdyism, mob rule and breaking down restaurant doors will not be tolerated." The owners added that such "lawlessness, moreover, alienates public opinion and will influence a negative vote on such legislation."

The association asked the demonstrators to abandon their campaign against local owners and join with them and other Marylanders in urging prompt passage of a state-wide law.

Earlier prospects of a peaceful settlement of the restaurant controversy were dimmed when reports circulated that owners would reverse the stand they took Oct. 17.

At that time they asked Gov. J. Millard Tawes to convene a special session of the legislature and pass a statewide bill.

A threatened freedom ride on Route 40 on Nov. 11 to Howard Restaurant segregation was cancelled at the last minute when the Congress of Racial Equality, the Commission on Interracial Problems and restaurant owners reached an agreement.

Last Saturday hundreds of student demonstrators of both races, led by Dr. I. Logan Kearse, pastor of Cornerstone Baptist Church, staged sit-in and picket demonstrations at 50 city restaurants.

TWENTY-TWO demonstrators including the Rev. Dr. Kearse were arrested. Another nine were arrested in Annapolis in another sit-in.

They have promised to stage an even bigger protest this Saturday.

Thursday attempts were being made to head it off.

Douglas B. Sands, executive secretary of the Interracial Commission, Dr. Kearse and Clarence Logan, chairman of the Civic Interest Group were trying to set up a meeting agenda.

Mr. Sands told the AFRO the group would discuss possibilities of halting "Project Baltimore" until the General Assembly has had time to pass public accommodation legislation.

Gov. J. Millard Tawes ordered commission officials to confer with demonstration leaders late Wednesday, after a meeting with the Frontiers Club.

The group of professional and business leaders had urged the governor to call a special session of the assembly to pass the law "before the situation gets out of hand."

ALTHOUGH COOL toward a special session, the governor promised to confer with legislative leaders to consider the feasibility of a special session.

In expressing fear of the situation "getting out of hand," Frontiersmen were obviously referring to the near clashes between spectators and sit-iners, particularly in Little Italy, Saturday.

The Maryland Restaurant Association, which earlier came out for a statewide public accommodation law, met to consider "withdrawing its support for such measure."

The restaurant men took this action, it was said, because they were angered by the Saturday demonstration and prospect of other.

DR. KEARSE told the AFRO his group was determined to demonstrate Saturday.

Regardless of the proposals offered by the commission, he said, the negotiating committee, which must make the final decision, will not meet again until Saturday morning.

In other developments, Julius Hobson, regional director of CORE, who was quoted as being against city demonstrations until the Route 40 problem is resolved, refuted the report late Wednesday.

Mr. Hobson read a telegram that said: "The eastern chapters of CORE are urged to support and take part in "Project Baltimore." Gordon Carey, national field director of CORE signed the telegram.

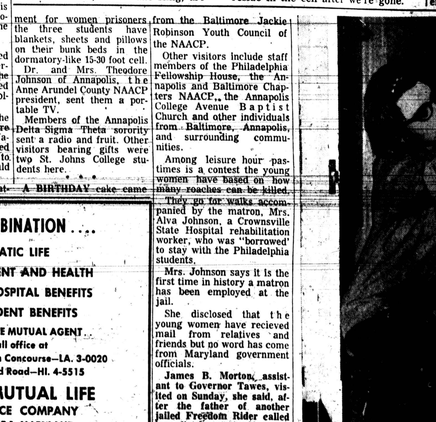
ALL CITY demonstrators arrested Saturday are free on $100 bail except John Collins Sr., 2600 block E. Preston St. He was released on probation before a verdict in Eastern Police Court Sunday after paying $3.25 court cost.

All but three of the nine Philadelphians arrested at the Barnes restaurant in Annapolis Saturday, also are free on bail.

Three, Misses Joyce Barrett, Diana King and Larsene Sirizzotti, refused bail and are confined at the Anne Arundel County Jail.



MISS LARSENE SIRIZZOTTE, 19, a sophomore at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, is interning for 6 months in social work at Fellowship House in Philadelphia. The youngest of the jailed trio, she is an honor student.

Presbytery calls for special session

Dr. Furman L. Templeton, Baltimore Urban League, issued a statement Monday on behalf of the Presbytery of Baltimore, urging state legislation to provide for "equal accommodations for all people, irrespective of race or color."

The Presbytery of Baltimore is the local directory of the United Presbyterian Church in the United States. Dr. Templeton is chairman of its Committee on Social Education and Action.

The statement calls attention to the fact that Maryland has accomplished desegregation in many areas of public life without violence and calls for the remaining issues to be settled in a similar way.

This week Dr. Templeton attended a three-day conference in Milwaukee, to discuss how the church can improve its community relations.

On Monday he reported to the counseling committee of the Office of Church and Society of the Presbyterian Church, on his recent trip to Jackson, Miss.

Principal still under suspension

The suspension of Albert T. Jacobs, 40, 2600 block Roslyn Ave., vice principal of Druid Hill Elementary School, has been ordered continued by the Board of Education.

The decision was made Thursday and will remain in effect pending the completion of an investigation.

Mr. Jacobs was acquitted in Criminal Court last Wednesday of larceny after trust charges. He had been accused of selling a $2,000 lot without permission and pocketing the money.

Charged in death of Edward Reddick

William Shackelford, 31, 1600 block W. Lexington St., charged in Central Municipal Court Tuesday with the fatal shooting of Edward Reddick, 44, 800 block Lemmon St., was held without bail for a Homicide Court hearing.

Mr. Reddick was discovered shot at his home Saturday morning, according to Southwestern District police, after a woman and man had visited at the home.

Police said Mrs. Hazel Shields, 42, a friend who lives at the home, found Mr. Reddick slumped against his back door.

Hold Women's day at Enon Baptist

Focusing upn the theme, "Living and Working Together As Christian Women," the women of Enon Baptist Church celebrated their annual day on Sunday.

William H. Robinson of Chicago, was the featured speaker at the 11 a.m. service.

Mr. Robinson, a native of Virginia, holds the A. B. Degree from Virginia Union University and the M. A. degree from the School of Social Administration at the University of Chicago.

He vividly illustrated that this is an age which needs faith rather than fallout shelters that there must be a recovery of humility life, and that Christian adults must always live in a manner worthy of the emulation of the young.

Music for the morning service was provided by a women's choir under the direction of Isadore Oglesby, with Mrs. Katherine Boston at the organ.

Mrs. Ruby Hamlette, Women's Day chairman, presided at morning worship.

Other participants included Mesdames Beatrice Dupre, Sarah Jones, Ernestine Carter, Bertha Johnson, Katie Harding, Ethel Raines, Elizabeth Bowen, Betty Shelton, Alice Robinson and Alice Matthews.

PRAYER AND praise service was held at 6:30 a.m. with Mesdames Martha Presley, Annie Powell, Eunice Morgan and Nellie Neal in charge.

Miss Ruth Saulsbury directed Church School at 9:30 a.m. The Women's Day celebration was concluded with a 5:30 p.m. program entitled "This is Your Church Life," during which key women of Enon were recognized for outstanding service.

Dr. Arthur J. Payne is pastor of Enon.

Mrs. Nannie T. Norwood wife of church founder

Mrs. Nannie T. Norwood, 74 of 1436 North Mount St., died Sunday at her home after a month's illness.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at St. Paul's Methodist Church.
