2nd Hit "Secrets of Deep Harbor"

IN "X-15", now playing at the Met Theatre, through United Artists release, contact is maintained with the world's first pilot controlled spaceship. In the Panavision and Technicolor suspense drama Kenneth Tobey plays an Air Force colonel (in hat) and James Gregory (seated, left) is the X-15 Project Director.

LAWMAN JOHN WAYNE suspiciously eyes Stuart Whitman, a reformed gambler, who has fallen in love with the daughter of an outlaw chieftain, in "The Comancheros," 20th Century-Fox's outdoor adventure now at the Regent Theatre. Ina Balin co-stars in the CinemaScope-DeLuxe Color drama.

DAWN ADDAMS pleads with Paul Massie in American International's "House of Fright" to stop his horrible experiments. Chiller is now at the New Albert Theatre.

JAMES SHIGETA bids goodbye to his wife, Carroll Baker, and little daughter, Mako (Emi Hirsch), as they leave Japan for the United States in a touching scene from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Bridge to the Sun" now playing at the Harlem. The drama of the experiences of an American girl married to a Japanese diplomat is based on the auto-biographical novel by Gwen Terasaki.

Experts check emotions to aid reading

By RAY BOONE

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. — Reading is emotional.

Because this is so, says Mrs. Ada P. Puryear, director of Tuskegee Institute's Reading Clinic, "we diagnose individually the cases of students who have reading problems before making recommendations for remediation."

This step of helping the student to become emotionally secure through understanding social and psychological complications is one of the first strides the Tuskegee Reading Clinic takes to conquer one of the nation's biggest educational problems.

(It is estimated that at least a third of students entering college yearly on a national basis have substandard reading skills.)

* * *

PICKING UP a data sheet that includes background information (from diseases suffered to the number of children in the family) Mrs. Puryear said the reading clinician — like the psychologist — considers case history invaluable because "it furnishes information that is essential for adequate diagnosis and remediation."

Pointing out how the social and psychological makeup is related to a student's reading ability, Mrs. Puryear said she has observed that students from problem-laden homes are, in the main, the most mentally disturbed and unskilled readers; while those from relatively problem - free homes are usually emotionally - stable and skilled readers.

MRS. PURYEAR adds that social problems such as broken homes, the death of loved ones and the lack of adequate financial support are elements that shatter a student's concentration — an important factor for comprehension and reading skill.

"Once we find o r t where the problem lies, we (the reading clinic, along with other departments on campus — including the counseling division) make every effort to free the student's mind of it so that rapt attention can be given to his studies — of which reading is a major part."

While such a physical handicap as poor vision can be a barrier to skilled reading, Mrs. Puryear considers the emotional problem the greater handicap to overcome.

* * *

MRS. LILLIAN R. WYNN, an associate in the clinic, agrees, saying: "Even the brilliant student finds difficulty in reading" when his mind is cluttered with problems outside his school work.

Both reading experts also agree that a student with sub - standard reading ability "should not be ashamed", because this problem — which is not of a person's own making — can be remedied.

However, they point out that such a student should have the "right" attitude. The "right" attitude is the realization of the problem, and then setting out to eradicate it with the aid of the clinic, they say.

* * *

AFTER THE student's problems are diagnosed, his course of study is designed to wipe out his individual weaknesses. "Reading problems," says Mrs. Puryear, "are individual in nature and must be solved on an individual basis."

A "very encouraging sign" in the Tuskegee clinic is that among 260 freshmen enrolled in 12 reading classes "are quite a number" who were not required to take the remedial course, but did so "for self - improvement," says Mrs. Puryear.

In addition to diagnosis, what does a reading course include?

"Mainly hard work," answer the clinicians.

That means intensive exposure to exercises that develop skills in word perception, comprehension, vocabulary building, phonetics, the elimination of vocalization and speed.

First Run Films

John Wayne stars in Regent film

John Wayne, still number one box-office attraction after 32 years of film making, is in familiar strides again as he portrays Texas Ranger Captain Jake Cutter—in the 20th Century-Fox action packed saga of Indians, gun smuggling and violence in the early West. "The Comancheros," is now at the Regent Theater.

Co-starring with Wayne are Stuart Whitman, Ina Balin, Nehemiah Persoff and Lee Marvin.

In "The Comancheros," lawman Wayne arrests New Orleans gambler Paul Regret (Stuart Whitman) for killing a man in a gun duel. Believing Regret's story of self-defense, Wayne, off his guard, is knocked unconscious by his prisoner. When Wayne masquerades as a gun smuggler in order to penetrate the ranks of "The Comancheros," a renegade band supplying Indians with arms, he is surprised to find Regret, a member of the gang.

Jekyll-Hyde Thriller at New Albert

Few tales of the macabre have so successfully captured the imagination of successive generations as Robert Lewis Stevenson's Victorian classic, "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Now, this eerie thriller, one of the world's most gripping horror stories, comes to the screen again more exciting than ever before with the aid of several ingenious new twists guaranteed to make your hair stand on end!

This latest filmization of the macabre drama is American International's "House of Fright," starring Paul Massie, Dawn Addams and Christopher Lee, which is now at the New Albert Theatre.

The highlight of "House of Fright" is Massie's characterization of evil, unlike the previous Hydes who were visually loathsome monsters.

X-15 Tests on screen at Met

Not only is the motion picture "X-15" being released almost coincident with newspaper stories heralding the latest records made by this famous supersonic jet—but the Panavision and Technicolor film, now playing at the Met Theatre through United Artists release, was similarly favored by coincidence during production.

As a result, movie audiences will see some of the most thrilling footage ever recorded for the screen, and it is authentic.

In addition to the astonishing astro-photography shot in the fringes of space during actual X-15 tests, they will witness a dramatic near disaster.

'Bridge to Sun' playing at Harlem

"Bridge to the Sun" now playing at the Harlem unfolds not only a tremendously moving love story but also the gripping drama of an American girl and her Japanese husband whose courage and tenacity are put to a heart-breaking test in the throes of war.

Starring Carroll Baner and the Hawaiian-born Nisei actor, James Shigeta, the Cite Films Production, released by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, is based on the highly-praised autobiography by Gwen Terasaki, the Tennessee girl who met and fell in love with the young Japanese diplomat, Hidenari ("Terry") Terasaki, married him and went to live with him in Japan after the outbreak of World War II.

200 parochial school pupils attend St. Edwards concert

More than 200 youngsters from St. Edward's and St. Agnes R. C. Parochial Schools displayed attective appreciation that would have done credit to an adult audience at the recent morning concert given by the I Cantati quartet at St. Edward's Parish Hall.

The singers, who are among the top vocalists of the city, were Phyllis Franklil, Ellen Barlok, Ralph Marquiss and Frank Whitmore. In addition to their musical gifts, they established a delightful rapport with their elementary grade audience.

The recital was one of the annual series presented in local schools and institutions by Young Musicians Series. Present from the organization's board were Mrs. Francis McLaughlin and your writer.

Following the concert the Rev. Mother Joseph Paul, principal of St. Edward's, Mrs. Philathea Hall, of the faculty, and Mesdames Mary Wilson and Gladys Himes from the PTA entertained the singers and the board members at a coffee hour. Father Linn is pastor.

Among the public schools where YMS will present concerts during the 1961-62 season are Schools 66, 104, 95, 106, 183, 225, 99 and Eastern High School (for music majors). Mrs. W. F. Gerlinger is executive director of YMS and Mrs. Rudolph Marburg, president.

Floods hold up relief program

NAIROBI, Kenya (NNPA) — Nearly half a million people are reported to be facing starvation as the movement of relief supplies is being slowed to a trickle by floods, authorities reported Monday.

Observers at the scene said that, although there are many wealthy Africans in Kenya, contributions to relief funds have been strikingly meager. They say neither the Democratic Union nor the National Union has organized any special efforts of assistance, and the indifference of African political circles is being increasingly criticized.

Extensive flooding, following a drought and crop ravage by insects, has caused the biggest natural disaster this territory has suffered since the famine of 1906.

Meter-matic moves to Liberty Heights

The World-Wide Meter-Matic TV Company has moved to 3825 Liberty Heights Avenue, near Garrison Boulevard.

Larger quarters were necessary because of rapid expansion in the Baltimore area. World-Wide Meter-Matic TV has branch offices in Philadelphia, Pa., Washington, D.C. and other large cities.

Meter-Matic is the meter-plan television with a small meter hidden behind the set in a secret compartment.

This unique arrangement enables Meter-Matic to do its own financing. Meter-Matic is also famous for aiding customers restablish credit.

Another important factor why Meter-Matic TV is becoming so large is case of shopping. You don't even have to leave your home. A phone call to Liberty 2-3674 will bring a man to your home to give a free presentation.
