Liberian officials arrive at Cornell

ITHACA, N.Y. (NNPA) — Four officials of the Government of Liberia have arrived at Cornell University to begin a review of a proposed law designed to modernize the judicial and litigation practices of the West African republic.

They are James A. A. Pierre, head of the group and a justice of the Liberian Supreme Court; Momulu S. Cooper, commissioner for foreign concessions; Lawrence A. Morgan, a public defender; and Edward R. Moore, assistant attorney general.

They will assist the Liberian Codification Project at the university in refinement of the draft, after which they are expected to submit it to President Tubman.
