A CHRISTMAS party is another delightful event as the Yuletide season comes. The Saturday night party of the Valiant Women was held in their clubhouse on Holmes Ave. which in itself is a beautiful setting.

The Christmas tree, laden with gifts, was the center of the decorations which included holly garlands and tinsel.

Mrs. Verda Welcome, adviser; Mrs. Lillian Cummings, president; and Mrs. Alverta Bowie, party chairman, were official hostesses.

Things that make Winter a delight

An early winter drive in Anne Arundel County Sunday led through lanes of evergreen trees bent to the ground and glistening with ice. Sleet formed tiny silver Christmas bells on each branch and they tinkled in the bleak wind.

In the vicinity of the Chesapeake Bay, evergreens and holly trees are abundant because of the sandy soil. For a journey through a story book winter wonderland on a snowy day, take any roadway leading from Annapolis to Crownsville or to Arundel on the Bay.

An unforgettable marine scene can be visioned through the picture window of the oceanside Arundel on the Bay home of Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Johnson. Seagulls can be seen dipping their wings into the salt spray as the waves wash along the shore for miles. Stretching to the horizon is the sea. To the left is a faint glimpse of the Chesapeake Bay bridge.

DINNER WITH friends on a late winter afternoon as the sun goes down is a rare treat.

The Sunday dinner served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wilson in Annapolis was an event long to be remembered.

Mrs. Wilson, mother of a year-old son, is quite a fine cook. A native of Salisbury, Md., she served old - fashioned stewed chicken, flat German dumplings, plus all the side dishes entitled to go along with such a heart-warming winter dish.

* * *

THE CROWNSVILLE Women's Auxiliary held the Sunday afternoon meeting in the picturesque setting of the old Colonial style nurses' dormitory on the Crownsville Hospital campus despite the rain, sleet and snow.

Mrs. Joyce McManus sang soft, golden spirituals.

* * *

MRS. J. MILLARD TAWES, wife of the governor of Maryland, honorary vice-president of the group, was seen with tears in her eyes, so impressive was Mrs. McManus's song.

On the TOWN

Mystery still shrouds the Sunday ayem celebration which left some people mixed up with the police, others mixed up with the Liquor Board and most mixed up period . . . and mad!

At this point it is impossible to present the arguments of all factions involved, because a key link to the chain is missing.

Although several names have been bandied about as far as placing the blame is concerned, only one person can say what went wrong and why — the sponsor.

He ain't talking. In fact we haven't been able to locate him.

When he's found — if he's found — still to be answered are such questions as:

1. Why did he stage a cabaret (including spirits) without bothered about the minor detail of getting a one-day license

2. Why did he scheduled a dance and not bother to get a permit?

3. Why did he ask patrons to plank down $3.25 and $3.75 for tickets for a shindig advertised from 11 p.m. until, when the 2 a.m. blackout applies to any event involving spirits?

Crawlers will have the answer when our sleuths track down Mr. X.

TO THE happenings:

Congenial Ted Carver has a lot going for him in his plush Bamboo Lounge. Aiding and abetting it all is a trio of lovelies who bring charm to the after dark set —the personable Doris; the sharp - witted king - size midget, Libby; and pert Sonya.

You have a date with Walter (the Tall Man) Thomas, Greta, Shirlee, and Jerri on the 19th when they throw the fabulous decoration party. "Brang what you want to and slang it where you please" is the theme of the day.

The Allegros, who have shook Casino for the second straight week, are rounding out a swinging stand. Moving in on the 18th is wild man Johnny Sparrows and his Bows and Arrows. There's a whaling holly season line-2 up here.

Ditto for Maceo's, where the big wheel and our queen are rounding out plans for the Yuletide early morning feast. It's a traditional thing ya know.

North End Lounge, like a batch of our favorite hideouts, is going with standard fare during the holidays. Floyd is banking on yours truly Gary and his Jazz Trio to keep the festive spirit alive as they've done for lo these many moons. Ditto for:

Carnival Lounge, Mickey and Shirley Fields; Dotson's and Dave Ross; Phil's and M. J. T. plus 1; Adams's and Al Brown with his Tunetoppers;

Same goes for Lucky Number, Watty, Cornell Muldrow and the Bim Bam Boors; Knotty Pine and Earl Omaro; Chick's and the bevy of twisters, anchored by funny man Baby Seals;

In the absence of the live stuff, others such as Alhambra and Big Tom, Wendy Wilson and Vilma, Jones Cocktail Lounge, Dusty and Dukie rely on their sure-fire reliables — atmosphere and coziness.

So after doing battle with old St. Nick, why not swing out and live? — YOU'LL
