MOMENTS MUSICAL

Yule concerts provide one of the joys of the season

By ADAH M. JENKINS

One of the joys of the Advent and Christmas seasons is the hearing of Handel's "Messiah". At the Sunday morning service of Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, the Chancel and Youth choirs presented selections from the first part (known as the Christmas portion) of this monumental work.

At the hands of Clarence Henderson, choir master, the presentation had distinguished eloquence and consistently polished finish at a professional level.

It is not the kind of work that handled by a few stellar voices, with the rest of the singers "coming in." The Madison Ave. Church choral forces were vocally equipped to handle the exacting demand of the big moments as well as the many intricate details of interpretation that only too often escape choirs who aim only losing the notes.

Solo roles were in very capable hands, with Jeannette Walters, giving a most distinguished performance of "Rejoice greatly." Hers is a voice of remarkable range, capable of radiance and also of a warmly sympathetic quality, which she used in the contralto arias.

Wendell Wright was in excellent voice, giving the tenor aria "Comfort Ye" with clear and true intonation. The fear-some awe of "Who may abide the day of His coming" and the compelling "He is like A Refining Fire," were handled creatively by William Griggsby. Altho his voice is not a large bass, he gave the coloratura passages with confidence and brilliance.

* * *

SOPRANO ARIAS were done also by Lillian Nelson, who has a voice of considerable substnce, altho the liable substance, altho the vibrato is a bit strong.

The difficult organ score, which is really condensed from the original full orchestration, was played admirably by M. Almira Miller.

Preceding the oratorio the Young Peoples' Choir, conducted by Wilhelmina Garner, sang three delightful carols, combining with adult choir in an antiphonal arrangement, of "While By My Sheep."

It was interesting to note that when he completed his duties for the opening of the service, the Rev. Reginal Daniels, minister, repaired to the bass section of the choir.

* * *

THE MASSED choirs, numbering 50 voices, at Douglas Memorial Community Church, presented at their annual Christmas concert a cantata from the pen of Buxhebude, "Rejoice, Beloved Christians."

Scored for choir, strings and organ, it is a work of remarkable freshness with a jubilant sense of energy and movement that characterized the best of its period.

Under the spirited and efficient direction of James S. Hammond, minister of music at Douglas, the choral forces gave a well integrated rendition, displaying remarkable development in control and technics.

The voice leading was clear and the elaborate figuration as capably handled. One of the loveliest moments was the first "Amen" sung by female voices and answered by the string quartet.

Mr. Hammons was fortunate in having the able accompaniments of Juanita H. Davis at the organ and first rate playing by the Haithcock String Ensemble.

* * *

AFTER THE cantata, the choir sang a progam of carols, most touching of which was "A Babe Is Born," a Christmas round treated in modern style by Bouman. The a capella singing of "Silent Night," both with humming obbligato, was a most effective. "Hallelujah" from "Messiah" concluded a musical event of appeal and pleasure.

After the concert the Baltimore Fellowship of which Miss Ruth Fogley is director, hosted the Rev. Marion Bascom, pastor of Douglas, the choirs and audience at a holiday reception.

The offering of the afternoon was contributed to the Fellowship, as is the annual custom at the church.

CALENDAR: Sunday, Dec. 31 at 5 p.m. in the auditorium of Union Baptist Church, Druid Hill Ave. near Dolphin St., Walter Anderson, will be presented in an organ recital by the Baltimore Chapter of Alpha wives, Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity. General admission is $2.

Sunday, Jan. 7 in two sessions at 21 E. Mt. Vernon Pl., Robert W. Dumm, dean of Boston Conservatory, in "Music at Second Sight." The course, which is designed for piano teachers especially, concerns interpretive analyses of intermediate music by Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Schulbert, Chopin Debussy and the Moderns. Fee is $6. (Special student rate $2.50) for the sessions 3 to 5 and 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The event is sponsored by ers Association. Robert E. the Baltimore Music Teachers Association. Robert E. Fields, 5309 Plymouth Rd., 14, is in charge of advance registrations.

Realist battles in New Albert show

Adventure, romance and all the thrills, chills and excitement of yester - year's battles at sea with guns and swords make American International's "Guns of the Black Witch" one of the memorable sea adventure tales of all time.

Starring six foot, six inch all-strong actress Don Megowan and Italian beauties Silvana Pampanini and Emma Danieli, the exciting adventure Colorscope film is now at the New Albert Theater.

The stirring tale of vengeance and revenge among the buccaneer sea adventurers of the 17th Century features action aplenty, with the numerous gun battles at sea and daring sword duels made all the more realistic and bloody in that they are enacted by the complete cast entirely without doubles and with real swords and knifes. ern customs of the western 2500 employees due for lay-off at Martin Co.

Some 2,500 workers of the Martin Marietta Company, Middle River, Md., will be laid off in the next two weeks because of a decline in government contracts, William B. Bergen, president of the company announced this week.

Issued jointly with this announcement was the disclosure of a new Space Systems Division for Jan. 2 aimed at getting Baltimore major new assignments in the nation's accelerating space program.

The company said every effort will be made to find new positions for laid-off workers. Some will be offered jobs elsewhere in the organization where, Mr. Bergen pointed out, "the backlog of work continues high and where employment is steady at high levels."

The company made it clear it was not abandoning Baltimore headquarters for much of its separate space research, advanced studies division and nuclear division. Some $3.5 million was invested in building last year and the year's payroll exceeded $100 million.
