AT HARLEM — Ben-Hur (Charlton Heston), right, and Messala (Stephen Boyd) drink a toast to each other when they meet in Jerusalem for the first time in fifteen years. This is one of the early scenes in Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's Academy Award - winning "Ben-Hur," now playing 2nd big week at the Harlem Theatre. The William Wyler presentation was filmed in Italy and other foreign locales in color and MGM Camera 65.

First-Run Films

'Pirate, Slave Girl' playing at Regent

A motion picture produced on as broad and vivid a scale as the period it depicts, "The Pirate and the Slave Girl," spectacular new adventure drama at the Regent Theatre, is an absorbing and colorful account of ancient conflicts dating back to times of the Crusades.

Lex Barker, long associated with Tarzan roles, fully deserves the praise he now receives for a masterful portrayal of an unsympathetic historical figure.

European actress, Chelo Alonso, is a talented stand-out in the role of a Moslem slave queen steeped in political intrigue.

Royal picture has top stars

One of the screen's most beautiful and most honored actresses, Vivien Leigh, and the year's most exciting newcomer, Warren Beatty, head the cast of "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone," now at the Royal Theatre. The Technicolor drama is based on a novel by the screen's most provocative writer, Tennessee Williams.

Two-time Academy Award winner Vivien Leigh stars as the wealthy American widow of fading beauty lured into a love affair with the handsome young Italian gigolo played by Beatty, who won instantaneous stardom in his screen debut in "Splendor in the Grass."

Second feature, "The Young Hellions," stars Jan Sterling and Mamie Van Doren.

'Babes in Toyland' Opens today at Met

Combining all the tricks of his trade with the unforgettable music of the great composer Victor Herbert, Walt Disney has produced his first live-action musical, "Babes in Toyland," and the result is a sparkling, gift-wrapped package of screen entertainment.

This delightful Technicolor production opening today (Friday) at the Met Theater, starring Ray Bolger, Tommy Sands, Annette and Mamie Van Doren.

'Ben-Hur' is held over at Harlem

The day on which they filmed the big Victory parade for Metro-Goldwin - Mayer's Academy Award - winning "Ben Hur" held over at the Harlem will be remembered by 4th florists of Rome, Italy as the day in which they did their biggest business in years.

Customers, however, will recall it as the day when it was scarcely possible to buy a flower in all the city.

Under orders of Director William Wyler, Set Decorator Hugh Hunt and Prop Man Don Vanni rounded up 60,000 blossoms to decorate the streets for the scene in which Charlton Heston and Jack Hawkins march in a spectacular parade.

The two actors were preceded by girls strewing flowers before them.

Baltimore's Great Hymns Choir spellbounds Masonic Temple crowd

By ADAH K JENKINS

A near-capacity audience at the Masonic Temple last Sunday evening sat spellbound for an hour listening to hymns by Baltimore's Great Hymns Choir, conducted by Daniel L. Ridout Sr.

As often as we have seen this happen, it is always a fresh affirmation of the power of music and poetry in the hands of a director of such insight and skill.

These were no elaborate anthems sung, but hymns from the pages of the regular hymn books in use in hundreds of the churches. With careful discernment Dr. Ridout selected ten—some quietly meditative, some triumphant and others full of evangelical fire.

Of particular effect was the quality of the "Amen" cadences used in several of the hymns. Sometimes it rolled out like a paean; while at the conclusion of other hymns, it was a benediction that melted away into softest humming.

Similarly, the interpretation of each hymn followed the meaning of the text, so that several verses were not a monotonous repetition, but an unfolding of the entire meaning.

With Audrey Cyrus, the choir was given noble support throughout the evening.

THE concert was presented by the Baltimore Chapter and Auxiliary of the Frontiers International, headed by Samuel T. Daniels and Mrs. Beatrice Pitts.

On behalf of the two groups Mrs. Alma Redden made a presentation to Dr. Ridout and the Choir, in appreciation of their notable contribution to the musical life of the city.

Dr. Thomas Pitts was master of ceremonies, representing Baltimore group, which is one of the interracial chapters of the national organization.
