'Verda sings own song, no man calls tune,' guests told

By LULA JONES GARRETT

Close to 600 guests rose to their feet and gave prolonged applause, Sunday night, as the Hon. Verda Welcome of the Maryland State Legislature entered the Ballroom of the Emerson Hotel to be honored at an "Appreciation Dinner."

Friends were citing Mrs. Welcome, because, as one speaker put it, "Verda does not dance to the tune of any fiddler."

The guests, as Mrs. Welcome later noted, included a veritable cross - section of the city and state, most of whom had worked with her in her many programs of housing and zoning, the Red Cross and Heart Funds, the March of Dimes, the church, a variety of organizations and in politics, as well as scores of friends.

THE BALLROOM, with its pale cream walls, brilliant red velvet drapings, and magnificent chantilleer, faded into a mere backdrop for the Lady herself.

The honoree had never made a more charming picture than she did that evening . . . in a white satin street - length frock of satin, over - embroidered in crystal beads; gold slippers, a handbag to match the frock and a deep green orchid. A pale ember mink stole was her wrap.

THE APPRECIATION dinner had been arranged by a committee of citizens, who pointed out: "It is a common error to accept as fact the proverbial statement that a prophet is not without honor in his own country.

"The people of Baltimore have chosen to acclaim one here on the home front, Verda F. Welcome, and to congratulate, felicitate, and thank her for being just what she is — a citizen whose vision, determination, and faith in the desire of human beings to improve themselves have not been unlike the ways of a prophet."

RAYMOND HAYSBERT, in explaining the occasion, echoed this thought. Said Mr. Haysbert:

"As a rule, we do not commend our public servants. If they make mistakes we criticize and censure them wholeheartedly.

"But if they do their work well, we are silent, excusing ourselves with the thought that it is only what we expected of them, otherwise we would not have entrusted them with the office.

"This is not right. A high public office is an extremely difficult place in which to place a person. He or she should be critiicized certainly for incompetence or dishonesty. If he makes mistakes, he should receive sympathy and kindly advice.

"But when he brings to that office great organizing ability, great personal dynamics, intrepid honesty and should receive our wholehearted commendation.

"We feel that Verda Welcome possesses in the highest degree all of these requirements. That is why we have come together to say we appreciate her."

BUT THE TENURE of what the hundreds of guests attending felt was summed up by two speakers: Dr. Samuel Proctor, Chief of Peace Corps for Nigeria, who delivered the main address; and John H. Murphy 3rd, president of the AFRO-AMERICAN Publishing Company.

Said Mr. Murphy:

"I can think of no one more deserving of an appreciation dinner than Mrs. Welcome. In this-era of equality between the sexes, where men are vainly clutching the last vestiges of male superiority, Verda has proven sex is no deterant in her job.

"As a matter of fact when we study the figures, it may be to Verda's advantage that she is a woman. In the 4th District there are 24,987 male registered voters and 25,456 female registered voters—50 5/10 percent of the registrants in the 4th district are female.

"Here's another reason figures prove it may be an advantage that Verda is a woman — In the 1958 general election who lead the ticket for the House of Delegates in the 4th, District? That's right; not just one woman but two of them.

"There is a quotation used by the minstrel men of the old country which says "Whose bread I eat his song I sing"— This saying may be updated by a better known quotation, "The man who pays the fiddler calls the tune."

"Verda has paid her own way — She is beholden only to the interest of the constituents of her 4th district. She sings her own song and no man calls the tune.

DR. PROCTOR told the audience that his first contact with Mrs. Welcome was at a meeting during which she was urging ministers to not only vote themselves but get their congregations to the polls.

"This was a switch," said Dr. Proctor. "Here was a woman of charm and means, a physician's wife, who you would ordinarily expect to be wallowing in furs and being driven from one party to another, out fighting to get people to vote for their own benefit."

And then Dr. Proctor turned to the subject of American democracy. Of the student movement he pointed out that this great revolution is not being brought about through violence, by throwing bombs in windows. Colored Americans have not created a tradition of burning bridges, food - poisoning, subversion or treason despite the great opportunities.

"They have chosen to take the long (count) trek and fight a clean battle. This is pretty," said he.

Dr. Proctor also reminded the group of the inequities under which students are laboring.

"After 90 years of inequalities in education they come and tell us 'you asked for opportunities, now produce'", he said. The students are taking this in stride, not making excuses, said he. "We tell them they must meet the demands and make haste doing so. It means working hard, staying in libraries longer," he added.

OF ADULTS, Dr. Proctor said that colored Americans are no longer willing to be spectators in the political arena. They want to get down on the field and make legislation.

On wiping out sterotypes he advised putting their best in showcases. "They'll never know what you are like as long as they are at their country clubs and you are here," he said.

As a parting shot he added "If you are true to the moves which brought you here, you will get out and work for what you have come here to appreciate."

THE DINNER was arranged by a committee headed by Mesdames Maurice Adams and Ellicott Michelson. Mrs. Ernest Johnson was chairman of the program committee.

Serving as hostesses were Mesdames Mary B. Adams and Celonia B. Walden, co-chairmen; Anethia Williams, Vashti Jude, Miriam Winborne, Joyce Ward, Jo Ann Orlinsky, Geneva Wood and Ruth Rosedom.

Mesdames Chandler Wynn and Medford Reynolds were chairmen of the souvenir program.

AMONG GUESTS at the Appreciation Dinner for Mrs. Welcome were left to right, Drs. A. T. and Faye Allan, E. W. Hunt, Sr., Charles E. Bush, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Corbin and Dr. and Mrs. Vernon Pennington.

MRS. WELCOME, who will run for the Senate, this year, is the wife of Dr. Henry C. Welcome, right.

Sorority, Symphony Orchestra re-plan co-sponsored concert

Following notification that Miss Leontyne Price will be forced to cancel concerts for this season, the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra and the AKA Sorority turned to re-arranging plans for the March 6th and 7th concerts.

The Orchestra and the Sorority are co - sponsors of the concert on those dates when Miss Price had been scheduled as featured artist.

DR. GLADYCE B. JONES, basileus of Epsilon Omega Chapter of AKA, said this week, that the group is regretful of the disappointment the announcement has brought to music lovers. A concert, however, will be held and details announced as soon as Peter Adler, conductor of the orchestra, has completed the necessary arrangements.

This project is for the benefit of the scholarship fund which grants scholarships annually to deserving high school graduates and for the support of the Symphony. "Patrons and friends, who through the years have demonstrated that they consider the scholarship fund to be worthy of support and who believe also that the Baltimore Symphony is vital to the cultural development of Baltimore are urged to retain or purchase tickets," said Dr. Jones.

PERSONS who have purchased tickets from Epsilon Omega chapter of the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority and who desire to receive refunds may do so at the residence of Mrs. Harold A. Clark, ticket chairman, 2017 Wheeler Avenue, February 12 and 13, from eight to ten o'clock in the evening.

AKA sorors mark Founder's Day

with Lula Jones Garrett

More than a hundred sorors of Epsilon Omega chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha marked the 54th anniversary of the sorority at luncheon, Saturday afternoon.

The luncheon, program and rededication were held in the Sheraton - Baltimore Inn, with the director of the North Atlantic Region, Mrs. Emma G. Bright, speaker.

Sorors gathered at 1:30 p.m. to view an, exhibit of sorority mementoes, which included a copy of the first Ivy Leaf, official organ of the sorority; earrings formerly belonging to the late Ethel Hedgeman Lyle, national founder; one of the first sorority pins made, and a number of AKA artifacts owned by Soror Vivian Cook, a chapter founder and charter member. Also included were pearls and specially designed pin given to national presidents, which was loaned by Soror Edna O. Campbell, and souvenirs collected by sorors at various bodies.

The exhibit was explained by a recording made by Soror Juanita Gates, and was arranged by a committee, the history committe, which included Sorors Cook, Gates, Lilla Barnum, Flossie Dedmond and Emily Gilkes.

Soror Edith S. Gordon presided at the luncheon. Soror Bernice Hunley gave the greetings. Introduced were Sorors Bernice Gibbs, Emily Beaufort and Edwina Burke of Delta Pi Omega Chapter, Annapolis, Md.

History of the sorority was given by Soror B. Carolyn Gee. Poetic tribute to past national officers, including Sorors Edna Campbell, Mabel Frisby, Laura Jones, and Lillian Murphy, came from Soror Jean B. Owens. Each of these honorees was pinned with a corsage. Soror Cook received an orchid and a necklace of crystals.

Soror Gladyce B. Jones, chapter basileus, introduced Soror Bright, who talked of the ideals, tasks and responsibilities of AKA women.

MRS. IDA MURPHY SMITH, Director

Soror Elizabeth White thanked the speaker and presented an orchid and AKA jewelry to Mrs. Bright.

Soror Nellie Moore composed the prayer which memorialized "Ivys Beyond the Walls," which was read by Soror Rebecca Davis. A musical background was given by Soror Jeanette Blount.

Rededication services were led by Soror Campbell.

Sorors Gordon and White were co - chairmen of the Founder's Day program. Also on the committee were Sorors Appye Morse, Rosaline Allen, Agnest Brown, Theresa Brown, Margaret Buck, Charlotte Holt, Constantia Jackson, Blanche MacDonald, Elizabeth Nalle, Grace Scott, Rubye Walker, Bettye Williams and Mary Adams.

I HAVE always said that Alpha Kappa Alpha women are no-mean examples of the fashionably dressed, but that to see their real talent in this area one must see them when they dress for themselves . . . for instance, at a Founder's Day affair.

Take Saturday, for instance.

Appye Morse, who teaches the craft at Bates High School, Annapolis, and designs and executes her own ensembles, had on a pale green wool, sparked with white; and Flossie Dedmond's beige wool with its attached stole anchored with a brilliant pin, were among the dressmaker suits seen.

Edith Gordon, in beige brocade ensemble, and Frances McKenzie in off - white wool and black accessories were among the stunning pictures seen.

Chic black frocks were the choice of Jeanette Blount, Helen Thornton, Doris Wheeler, Edna Campbell, Jean Owens, and Camille Peterson . . . the latter spiking the ensemble with gold jewelry. Jean Lockett created that intricate turban of white (the same material as the dress she wore; and Gladyce Jones' black and white silk was sparked with a mink touch. Dark gray knit frock with red and green rose hat was worn by Emma Bright.

BALTIMORE ALPHAS are not too busy laying plans for their forthcoming Eastern Regional Convention, to forget their obligation as hosts at their annual spring formal. The affair this year is to be held on Friday night, Feb. 16.

The early day was selected because of the regional set for April 6, 7 and 8. Bids are already in the mail for the affair to be held at the Alcazar Ballroom.

Social Chairman Osborn Dixon, aided by Clark Davis has promised Alpha guests something special in the way of music and entertainment.

Meanwhile Frank Ellis, who is serving as general chairman of the regional, and his committee met Sunday at the Stafford Hotel with Dr. Alfred C. Fentress of Norfolk, Va., who is Eastern regional vice president of the fraternity.

Sitting in the two - hour session also were Kermit Hall, Alpha comptroller; and Ralph Brown, Alpha general counsel, both of Philadelphia. Messrs. Fentress, Hall and Brown were dinner guests of Delta Lambda President Frank Veney in his Sorinedale Rd. home following the meeting.
