"We may need help from U.S. and UN"

AME's may ask UN aid in S. Africa

BY CHARLES P. HOWARD

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.— The African Methodist Episcopal Church, may ask for the protection of the United Nations to save its church property in the Union of South Africa, a church leader declared in an interview here last week.

Dr. A. Chester Clark, secretary-treasurer of the Board of Missions of the AME Church, revealed that the "apartheid policies" of the South African government had led to the confiscation of 300 churches of his church. He added that he might have to go personally to South Africa and try to intervene.

If Dr. Clark goes to South Africa, it will not be for the first time The dignified American church leader has spent the last decade of his busy life in the missionary work in Africa, including visits and interventions in the interests of the natives to try to help indigenous peoples of South Africa where the AME Church's situation has consistently been the least secure.

• • •

DR. CLARK revealed that the Union Government had detained a bishop of his church because he was an American, and ordered that church leadership had to be furnished by a native African. Dr. Clark and his collaborators have found the answer, however, they got hold of an African pastor in Capetown brought him to the United States, gave him the necessary training, then elected him a Bishop of the church and sent him home, to preside over the Episcopal District.

Dr. Clark believes that racial discrimination both in the United States and in Africa has weakened Christianity's appeal. Realizing that thus it is Christianity's future which hangs in the balance.

Dr. Clark speaks in strong terms of the work of his church in this country. "Our church," he says, "is that of the common man, seeking equality and justice for all. We have never wavered from this course."

• • •

"THE UNITED NATIONS should be strongly supported," he says, adding that on this issue he agrees with President Kennedy. "Actually," he continues, "the United Nations is indispensable as a replaceable as an agency to help the emerging independent African countries."

He proves his belief in the world organization by stressing all the means by which the AME Church is carrying the UN role to its followers.

The church's paper, "Voice of Missions," has a UN correspondent, and frequently carries the proclamations and addresses of leading African statesmen. The paper is read by thousands of Africans, he reveals.

In addition, the pastors and teachers of the AME Church in Africa, through seminars and regular church curricula, "carry the UN message."

Totten back home with glowing report on V.I.

NEW YORK — Ashley L. Totten, organizer of labor's only representative on the board of the Virgin Islands Corp., returned to Harlem last week with glowing reports on the political and economic future of the Virgin Islands.

Mr. Totten, international secretary-treasurer of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, said hundreds of jobs for skilled tradesmen are available in the islands.

"There's a building boom going on down in St. Thomas and St. Croix," he explained, "so there is an acute need for arpenters, brickmasons, plumbers, painters and trained farmers.

"Gov. Ralph Paiewonsky and the Legislature are making plans to set up an employment office here in New York. You'd have to see this boom to believe it. Land which sold for $400 an acre 10 years ago now sells for $3,500 an acre."

Mr. Totten, a property owner in St. Thomas and St. Croix praised Gov. Paiewonsky's administration, Sen. Walter Hodge, and Sen. Earl Ottley.

"The policies advocated by them," he said, "have brought a record tourist business to the islands."

Congo most difficult, expensive UN venture

NEW YORK (NNPA) —The Congo expedition is the "most difficult, the most frustrating, and the most expensive" operation in the history of the United Nations, Dr. Ralph Bunche, U. N. Under Secretary for Special Political Affairs, told student ambassadors to the Herald Tribune Youth Forum Friday.

The students from 37 nations toured the United Nations building and were greeted by UN Secretary U. Thant during a lunch break. They also heard Roberto Huertematte, assistant managing director of the UN's Special Fund, discuss technical assistance to underdeveloped countries.

Moody Memorial, Windy City church, mixes congregation

CHICAGO — Moody Memorial Church—named for the founder of Moody Bible Institute, which has been integrated for some time — desegregated its membership and services last Sunday morning.

Dr. Alan Redpath, pastor and vice president of a group sponsoring a revival this summer featuring Billy Graham, said that acceptance of the three candidates for membership seemed timely.

He explained that the revival will be "conducted on an integrated basis" and it will "indicate to the public that Moody Church supports this principal."

Builder to appeal Deerfield decision

CHICAGO (ANP) — The Progress Development Corp. said last week it will appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court a ruling by the Lake County Circuit Court that the Deerfield Park Board has a right to condemn 215 acres owned by the company.

The park board wants the land for a public park. The corporation wants to keep it for a racially integrated housing development, and charged the park board conspired to condemn the land to prevent development of the integrated subdivision.

The park board's right to condemn the land was upheld once in Lake County Circuit Court. The corporation appealed and the Supreme Court sent the case back for retrial to permit Progress to have a full hearing on whether the condemnation was necessary.

Chides critics as suppressors of liberties

Special to AFRO

PALM BEACH, Fla. — While ignoring critics who question his loyalty, Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, last week, branded as "false prophets of the far right" persons who are calling for withdrawal of the United States from the United Nations.

The United Nations Under Secretary, winner of the 1950 Nobel Peace Prize, came to the defense of the United Nations during a speech here under auspices of the Florida Forum of the Palm Beaches.

He said the charges that the United Nations is "premature" and "useless" plays into the hand of "the false prophets of the far left who also are opposed to an effective UN, if for different reasons."

• • •

DR. BUNCHE, who is the highest ranking U.S. citizen in the UN Secretariat, noted that "Many of those who would claim to 'defend' our liberties against communism by restricting or suppressing them are among the most vociferous in denouncing the United Nations."

Responding to the critics of the United Nations, Dr. Bunche asked:

"Have they never heard of the wars averted and stopped by the UN in Indonesia, Kashmir, Palestine, Suez, Lebanon and the Congo?"

While the UN Under Secretary failed to identify "the false prophets," his speech recalls recent charges in and out of Congress of Senators and members of the House who have urged that the U.S. withdraw from the United Nations.

• • •

AMONG THE critics of the United Nations are the following:-

Senator Barry Goldwater (R., Ariz. who recently urged that the United States withdraw from the United Nations and organize a substitute composed of only Western Bloc nations.

Senator Thomas J. Dodd (D., Conn.), who urges the United States to abandon its support of UN policy in the Congo.

Rep. James B. Utt (R., Calif.), who says Adlai Stevenson's "considered opinion that Dr. Bunche must be considered a security risk" for the United States.

Rep. Utt introduced a bill in the current session of Congress to "rescind and withdraw" U.S. membership in the Unite ' Nations.

Rep. H. R. Gross (R., Iowa), who accuses the United Nations of "aggression in Katanga, aided and abetted by the United States."

Rep. Elmer J. Hoffman (R., Ill.) who suggests a probe of the U.S. State Department because of its support for UN policy in the Congo.

• • •

REP. JOHN R. RAY (R., N.Y.), who agrees that the new nations of Africa are only "fictitious fragments" of nations.

Senator Carl T. Curtis (R., Neb.), who is critical of the "bloated membership" of the United Nations.

Reps. W. J. Bryan Dorn (D., S.C.), Katharine St. George (R., N.Y.) and Walter Norblad (R., Ore.) also are critics of the United Nations.

A Veteran Congressman Takes A Look Into 1962 Political 'Crystal Ball'

By SAMUEL HOSKINS

WASHINGTON

As of next Nov. 5, Rep. William L. Dawson (D., Ill.), dean of the colored members of the House of Representatives, expects to be re-elected to his 11th term in Congress.

This information can hardly be classed as extraordinary as Rep. Dawson, who is known as a politician's politician, has been re-elected to Congress from the First Illinois District since Nov. 3, 1942.

What is unusual, however, he doesn't plan to campaign for re-election.

"THE PEOPLE know me. They know my record. If they approve of me and the record I've made, they will vote to send me back to Congress. If they don't approve, they will vote to retire me. It's as simple as that," the Congressman explains.

He added that in event the majority of his constituents voted disapproval, he would be happy to withdraw, but he does not expect he will be required to retire.

The Dawson political record in the First District pre-dates his Congressional record by several years.

His venture into the political arena started in 1930 when he served as the district's state central committeeman, a post he held until 1932.

• • •

FROM 1933 to 1939, he served as alderman from the Second Ward and has been the ward's Democratic Committeeman since 1939.

Today he functions in a policy-making capacity in the National Democratic Party, serving as secretary of the Democratic Congressional Committee and vice chairman of the National Democratic Committee.

Frequently and consistently, he sums up his political advice to colored voters throughout the country in two words: "Get smart."

The basic prerequisite of getting smart, Congressman Dawson contends, is for colored people to take a realistic, "non-sentimental" look at the history of the Democratic and Republican Parties of this country.

• • •

HISTORY SHOWS that the Republican Party "sold out" the colored voter in order to be declared the victor in the disputed Presidential election of 1876.

"They've been selling out the colored people ever since," Congressman Dawson declared, "and this Tuesday promises to be their friends."

Bringing his example up to date, the Illinois Representative said the "Hayes-Tilden" combination" (conservative Republicans and southern Democrats) is functioning in the current session of the Congress.

He cited the Democratic - Republican coalition in both the Senate and House and in the major Committees of both chambers which block both liberal and civil rights legislation.

• • •

INCREASED REGISTRATION of colored in both the North and South, plus intelligent use of the ballot, will destroy this North - South coalition, Rep. Dawson declares.

Failure of colored citizens to apply the political technique, which would solve most of the basic problems, is due to "bad leadership," he says.

"When we get smart, we will get most of what we must have to be first class citizens," the veteran politician asserts.

Of President Kennedy, the Congressman says: "His heart is right. He has done more in one year than the previous Republican Administration did in eight years."

HE FEELS certain that before Tuesday is often more than then the President will be. That President Youlou is a French priest not an African priest and that President Houphouet-Boigny of Ivory Coast is a French businessman not an African business man.

They point out further, that on most African-Asian questions the Brazzerville Group supports the French position, not the African - Asian side.

They point to the fact that at the height of the French criticism of the United Nations action in the Congo it was Ambassador Bernard Dadet of Congo (Brazzerville) who called a press conference and defended the United Nations and bitterly attacked Acting Secretary - General Thant, the only open attack on the Secretary-General made from any quarter before or since.

On all the questions discussed above, Ghana and President Nkrumah have been on the opposite side.

• • •

INFORMED SOURCES here point out that time is running out and these French African Countries are going to have to decide whether they are pro or anti-colonial or neo-colonial.

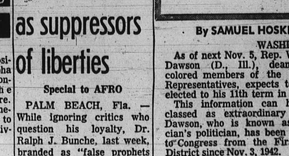
It is no secret here, that among African states, even some of those in attendance at the Lagos Conference, there is a feeling that by this alignment with the Brazzerville Group, Nigeria is making a bid for preeminence influence, and influence which the rest of Africa has had no intention of going along with.

Foreign Minister Wachuku has already joined this camp against total African independence at this time, and his die is cast.

THESE SAME sources point out that any attempt to shift the spotlight off the political implications of these actions and make the Lagos Conference one of economic planning will not meet the test.

Discussing the Lagos Conference, President Nkrumah of Ghana said: "I advocate the need for economic planning of a co-ordinated basis throughout Africa as means of pooling "our economic resources together for our mutual benefit. "We cannot establish such sound economic links in Africa without giving them sound political direction, force and purpose.

"We must therefore come to grips with the new and basic issue of African Unity, which alone will make the artificial boundaries and regional demarcations inherited from colonialism obsolete and superfluous.



CAPITOL SCENE — Rep. William L. Dawson, Illinois Democrat, is shown in his office in the Old House Office Building with his administrative assistant, Mrs. Norma O. Williams.

President Kennedy leaves office he will have accomplished all that was pledged in the Democratic Party platform and all he promised during the 1960 campaign.

As for the current session of the Congress, he is not too optimistic regarding enactment of "meaningful civil rights legislation."

The reason: "The combination is stronger this session than last session."

• • •

THE CONGRESSMAN estimates there are 400,000 constituents in his District.

He is chairman of the powerful House Government Operation Committee and member of the District of Columbia Committee.

When President Kennedy was organizing his cabinet, Rep. Dawson was offered the post of Postmaster General, an offer which was rejected on the grounds that he could be of greater service to the country in the capacities he now serves.

Lack of unity hints struggle for power at Lagos meeting

By C. P. HOWARD Sr.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — There is more than meets the eye for the failure of a "spirit of unity" at the conference of heads of state of independent African countries at Lagos, Nigeria.

Twenty - eight states were invited, only nineteen were scheduled to appear. Eleven showed up by deadline time. Foreign ministers who met earlier in the week to approve plans express doubt they may be any success could be achieved.

CHARLES P. HOWARD

A gloomy attendance picture was caused by several reasons. The conference preceded by a preliminary meeting of foreign ministers, whose duties included that of the "preparation of the agenda."

The Conference was presided over by Nigeria's Foreign minister Jaja Wachuku. The foreign ministers decided "not to invite" the Algerian Provincial Government.

The former French Colonies opposed inviting the Algerians for fear of offending the French Government, from whom they get most of their financial aid. But an equal serious blow to a "show of unity" was the fact that, according to President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, "all the necessary arrangements for the conference were made unilaterally."

This was interpreted here to mean that Mr. Jaja Wachuku of Nigeria made the arrangements without consultations with the Casablanca Group. This, President Nkrumah said, "deprived us of the opportunity of making the necessary preparations with all the care and attention demanded by such a conference."

Actually, the failure of a third, minus one, of the heads of state to show up has much deeper roots than appears on the surface. It is in reality a "show down" in the "power struggle" going on in Africa. And this power struggle is being fought out over fundamental issues.

• • •

THE POWERS outside Africa for a long time, informed politicians here say, have been struggling to undermine the well earned leadership of President Nkrumah of Ghana.

Further, they say, Nigeria, because of its size and potential, has been seized upon by these "outside powers" as the group capable of whitning Nkrumah down to size.

They hope to make Jaja Wachuku the "hatchet man." But, these sources say, Nkrumah is too astute for an inept and inexperienced Wachuku to out-maneuver.

Nigeria's alignment with the Brazzerville 12, often referred to here as "the French Captive States" is unnatural, they say.

The struggle now going on inside Africa points up several areas of difference between the Brazzerville Group, which appears to be dominating the Monrovia Group.

• • •

THE BRAZZERVILLE Group favors the independence of Katanga and are supporting Tshombe. President Youlou of Congo (Brazzerville) has often called for the independence of Katanga and has never abandoned the idea.

Support for Katanga's independence is in accordance with Alliance with Sir Roy Welensky, Prime Minister Ver-Salazar of Portugal.

Katanga's independence is a road block to the independence of Angola, Mozambique, South Africa, South West Africa and the federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

The Brazzerville Group, led by President Youlou is opposed to the Algerian Provisional Government and votes with France on all Algerian questions.

It is the Ivory Coast representative here in the United Nations who challenges Shirkairy of Saudi Arabia on all Arab questions.

• • •

NO ARAB STATE is represented at the Lagos Conference. Ivory Coast representative attacks Kriishna Menon of India on the Goa question.

Africans here say the Brazzerville Group is often more

Color bigger threat than communism

WASHINGTON

The threat from colored nations, not from communism, probably constitutes "the greatest danger to be faced during 1962 by the Western World," says a Georgia Congresswoman.

Rep. Iris Fatreloth Blitch, Democrat, made this statement to the House when she asked that an article published recently in the Washington Star be reprinted in the Congressional Record.

The article, written by syndicated columnist Constantine Brown, backs up her beliefs, Rep. Blitch declared.

QUOTING GEN. Charles de Gaulle of France, the article states that the governments of the West face a "tidal wave of color."

Gen. de Gaulle said the Western World in 1962 will come more from the colored nations than from the West, he is considered opinion of responsible West European observers, including British," the article states.
