—Victim found

tioning Friday morning, a full day before the child's body was found stuffed in a dark closet under the stairs in the untenanted house in the 800 block Buchanan St.

Her throat had been cut, and a 2 by 3-inch piece of glass was found near the body. However, Dr. Pedro L. Lardizabal of the medical examiner's office said that the autopsy showed she had been choked to death.

Reports to Det. Capt. G. M. Lloyd indicated that the child was slain in the kitchen area, dragged through another room, across a hall and into the closet. Blood stains were found on the kitchen floor.

Her green sweater was in a first floor room, and the body was fully clothed except for underwear and a shoe which lay nearby.

LINDELL WAS a second grade pupil at the Buchanan School, just a block away from her home.

Her teacher points out that she was a softspoken youngster, well mannered, likeable, got along easily with her classmates.

"She had difficulty with reading," the teacher said. "But she tried very hard. She showed a desperate eagerness and willingness to learn."

SHE WOULD RAISE her hand and always participate in the lesson; brought in very nice news report on civic subjects, and was a great little helper in the classroom.

"She was progressing in her studies although at a slow rate. But she was a child who really did try. She understood that it was important to learn to read, and to work with numbers, to learn about the community and to live companionably with other people," the teacher reflected.

THE CHILD was the daughter of Mrs. Queenie Solomon, who is estranged from the father, William E. Booker. The mother works in domestic service, and formerly lived in the Fulton area.

The neighborhood of the tragedy is a sub-standard area, many of the buildings having been deserted and condemned, with city plans being made for redevelopment.

While is one of two suspects questioned about the child. The murder charge was placed against him on Sun. A. M. Evening.

The accused man's mother said that White is unmarried, having broken off with the young woman who bore him two children.

He is the youngest of eight children. A brother, James is serving a life sentence, following conviction 18 months ago on rape and robbery charges involving two women, one a student nurse.

THE SOLOMON girl's body was discovered by Sgt. S. J. Wood and Patrolman S. B. Baughan of the Vice Squad during a house - to - house search in which the full Juvenile Division, headed by Lt. J. R. Johnson, the first patrol, the vice and detective divisions cooperated.

At one time, there were as many as 15 officers participating in a 10-block canvass those of the Juvenile Division including Mrs. Lucile Bowers, Mrs. Ruth Blair, J. P. Cuffy, and A. B. Epps.

The official investigation now is being handled by Det. Sgts. Frank Randolph and J. L. Brooks, under direction of Lt. E. S. Wakefield.

Services for the little girl, one of 10 children, are set for 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Price Funeral Home. Burial will be in Woodland Cemetery.

Beside her parents and grandparents, she is survived by two sisters and seven brothers.

INVESTIGATING A report that the child was last seen leaving the home of Mrs. Alice (Big Mama) Corbin, a 500 - pound neighbor, police found sufficient evidence to charge the woman with being of ill - fame.

Mrs. Corbin, a Welfare Department client, lived in the 700 block of Buchanan St., and Lindell was in the habit of running errands for her.

Police said that White was reported seen there at the same time as the child. They said also that the place was frequented by persons of questionable character and habits.

So they closed the up flat and sent 'Big Mama'' to City Hall, pending her Feb. 20 Police Court hearing.

THREE PERSONS were arrested at the flat and charged as vagrants. They were placed under peace bonds for six months. They were jailed, however, in default of bonds.

They were identified as Miss Bessie D. Miller, 900 block of Buchanan St.; Fred Valentine, 35, of the 800 block Jay St.; and James Patterson, 63, of the 500 block of N. 19th St.

SLAYING OF 8-YEAR-OLD Lindell Solomon attracted this crowd to the empty Buchanan Street house where her body, throat cut, was found Saturday by Richmond police who had been searching for the child since her disappearance the previous danger world peace.

● Justify the United Nations' policy in the Congo and the Administration's support of that policy.

● Weaken the position of those in this country and abroad who have criticized both the United Nations and the Administration for seeking to unify the Congo Republic by opposing the rebellion of Moise Tshombe in Katanga Province.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY underscored these conclusions when he told the Congolese prime minister following a White House luncheon, that he believes success in the Congo is closely related to the success of the United Nations.

"If you fail and the Congo should fail, it would be a serious blow to the U.N." the President said.

Adoula arrived in Washington at 10:30 a.m. Monday and was met at the Military Airport Terminal by an official party which included Under Secretary and Mrs. Ball and Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs and Mrs. Williams.

THE CONGOLESE official made the trip from New York City in the President's plane and was accompanied by Angier Biddle Duke, chief of protocol.

Following an exchange of official greetings by Under Secretary Ball and Prime Minister Adoula there was a 19-gun salute and inspection of an honor guard of Marines.

Adoula and his official party of 11, including Mrs. Adoula, were transported to the State Department and the Blair House. At the State Department, Adoula conferred for an hour with the Under Secretary and other State Department officials before going to the White House for lunch with the President.

The Prime Minister was met by the President on the porch of the White House where they exchanged cordial greetings and posed for photographs.

ADOULA TOLD the President that U.S. policy in the Congo scored a bull's eye. He said that efforts of his country to preserve its independence would have been of no avail if it had not been for the "moral and material help which we have received from you."

He vowed that the Congolese people will never forget to say "thank you" to the United States.

"It will not be like some other peoples which are willing to receive aid only to criticize later those who are helping," Adoula declared.

THE PRESIDENT and Adoula conferred for more than three hours. White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said they talked about the problem of the rebellion in Katanga and the implementation of the Kitona agreement between Adoula and Tshombe to end that rebellion.

At a press conference held in Blair House, the Prime Minister revealed that negotiations have been held with directors of the Union Miniere mining corporation in Katanga and his government believes the company will start paying taxes due the Central Government.

However, Adoula expressed impatience with Katanga for the delay in ending the rebellion.

FOLLOWING THE White House meetig, the Prime Minister went to the Capitol where he had a conference tea with Sen. Albert Gore (D., Tenn.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee on African Affairs.

Monday night the Prime Minister and Mrs. Adoula were dinner guests of Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Williams.

Before returning to New York City Tuesday, Adoula had conferences with Eugene R. Black, president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, and H. Merle Cochran, deputy manging director of the International Monetary Fund.

He will leave New York for the return trip home Thursday night.

Dr. George T. Stansbury, distinguished physician of Harve de Grace, received the National "Freedom Day" award in Philadelphia, on Feb. 1, in recognition of his oustanding accomplishments and contributions to his race and humanity.

During his high school days, he became acquainted with and encouraged by the town's only colored physician, Dr. Claude L. Cowan, currently Head of the Department of Ophthalmology, Freedmen's Hospital and Howard University. It was through his association with Dr. Cown that he was introduced to the medical profession.

Upon graduation from high school, he studied at Morgan State College and then entered the School of Medicine at Howard University. He was an honor student, a member of Kappa Pi Honor Society and Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity.

SINCE HE BEGAN his practice in his home town in 1950, Dr. Stansbury has brought much respect to his race by being the first in many areas. He was the first colored person given staff privileges at the Harford Memorial Hospital.

In July, 1957, his appointment as City Health Officer by Mayor Jesse Smith Jr., was unanimously confirmed by the City Council and he is now serving his third consecutive term, having been reappointed by the two succeeding mayors.

HIS COLLEAGUES in the 42-member Harford County Medical Society, a component of the Maryland Medical and Chirurgical Faculty, elected him treasurer of the organization in 1959; after serving two years, he was elected president of the Society in December, 1961.

He is a member of the board of directors of the Harford Council Junior College, American Medical Association, National Medical Association, Elks, NAACP, and a member of St. James AME Church.

The president of the Montgomery Alabama Improvement Association, the Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, delivered the inspirational address at the 21st anniversary celebration of National Freedom Day.

His message, heard by the Freedom Day audience, included Mayor and Mrs. Richardson Dilworth, Judge Juanita Kidd Stout, of Philadelphia.

REV. ABERNATHY was also a recipient of a National Freedom Day Award. Others receiving awards were the Rev. Arthur R. James, Wilmington, Dela.; Dr. Robert Saxton, Philadelphia; and Dr. William M. Whitehead, Hampton, Va.
