Mid-winter pop concert delights at Chick Webb

By ADA K. JENKINS

The new multi-purpose room of the Chick Webb Center was the scene of the Mid-Winter Pop Concert by the Center's Band, conducted by Robert A. Smith, and featuring a potpourri of classics and semi-classics with several "household favorites."

There was a Bach air from the "Peasant Cantata," the "Adagio" from Schumann's "Berceuse" (Lullaby) and Finale by the contemporary Russian, Stravinsky.

Selections from the well known musical "Brigadoon" and the blues influenced "Deep Purple" were among the semi-classic works.

No band concert would be complete without the time honored and special contribution — the march. This occasion offered two concert marches by Oestering and "March Gusto" (Farrell).

A three-movement suite, "Fandango" and "Holiday for Trombones" completed the concert.

Again East Baltimore has scored a high point in musical activities as well as in providing the community with a recreational activity of high standard. The Chick Webb Recreation Center Band is a project of the municipal Division of Recreation.

Mr. Smith, who is member of the department of music in the public schools and teacher at Dunbar High School, also plays in the string section of the Baltimore Civic Orchestra.

THE DIGNIFIED concert hall of Peabody Conservatory echoed to strains of jazz—cool and hot—in "Tonight," the revue given by Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia of the National Music Fraternity, no less.

Now in their second year of television productions the men of the conservatory chapter were responsible for eleven acts that were a clever parody of popular TV shows.

The sizable audience seemed to enjoy thoroughly "Cooking To-day," a kiddy show with "Captain Jack, and Jolly George"; "Huntley - Brinkley Report on World Affairs;" "Showdown" in true Western badmen tradition; "a Street Fight" with a New York gang and "A Young Peoples Concert" with the weidest collection of instuments.

The vocal sextet in "The Game" that featured the conservatory football team (non existent) garnered a goodly potion of laughs and appreciation for their good singing. William (Billy) Myers of the "team" also stated in his blues solo.

One of the funniest acts was "Wrestling in New York," with a portly tenor (in shocking pink shorts) and a diminutive opponent, played by Robert Dure and Brent Price.

"To-Night," a duet by May Dickinson (one of the young ladies borrowed for the occasion) and Chris Wolfe was well received.

Sondra Banfield, imported for the evening, took several bows following her delightfully sophisticated dance "Weasel."

A 17-piece band, which was augmented later by nine strings, rendered valuable assistance in keeping the revue well paced, under the direction of Murray Sidlin.

Along with Messrs. Wolfe and Price, he was responsible for the script. Music was arranged and composed by Louis Caroma and Mr. Price.

There were a number of hilarious situations and clever jokes in "Tonight." Delivery of the "punch lines," however, is an art that requires professional touch, which the talented fraternity members might acquire with some coaching.

FIRST RUN FILMS

'Kings Go Forth' playing New Albert

A tender love story with the unusual theme of an interracial conflict, "Kings Go Forth," a United Artists release, is now at the New Albert Theatre.

Starring Frank Sinatra, Tony Curtis and Natalie Wood, as the three principals involved, the picture which tells of two men who fall in love with a girl who is half-colored, is in no sense a preachment, but a warm moving story of two men and a girl: one man genuinely in love, the other is out for what he can get, and the girl unfortunately unable to distinguish between true love and "a good line."

Top cast in 'Ben Hur' at the Regent

When Gen. Lew Wallace wrote "Ben Hur" eight decades ago, he peopled his story with Romans, Judeans, Arabs, Byzantines, Corinthians and characters of similar origin.

To portray the people of these many nationalities in the Academy Award-winning motion picture now at the Regent Theatre based on Wallace's famed book, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer rounded up a host of persons with backgrounds as colorful and varied as those described in the story.

They are Charlton Heston, who portrays Ben-Hur; Martha Scott, who plays his mother, Miriam; Cathy O'Donnell, who has the part of his sister, Tirrah; and Sam Jaffe, is cast as the faithful steward, Simonides.

Haya Harareet, in the feminine lead of "Ben-Hur," as Esther.

Stephen Boyd, who plays Messala; Jack Hawkins, cast as the naval commander, Quintus Arrius, and Finlay Currie, playing Balthasar.

'Walk On Wild Side' held over at Royal

Bursting with the vitality and raw violence of life itself, with its seaminess and its exultation, "Walk on the Wild Side," now plays a second week at the Royal.

Laurence Harvey stars in "Walk on the Wild Side," along with Capucine, and Jane Fonda, Anne Baxter and Barbara Stanwyck as "Jo."

Harvey appears as a somewhat idealistic young Texan uprooted by the depression of the '30's who makes his way to New Orleans and the notorious Doll House Cafe.

Actually, he is seeking a lost love, played by Capucine, and he finds her as the most attractive of the Doll House Cafe's several attractions. Miss Stanwyck plays the proprietor of the place, a woman whose life leaves no room for emotion. Jane Fonda, plays Kitty Twist, also a wanderer in a rootless men and women shared, makes a sultry widow, also attracted to Harvey. Second attraction is "Cash on Demand."

Funny 'Sergeants 3' on screen at Met

One of the most glamorous offbeat characterizations in casts ever assembled (or, in this case, re-assembled) star in "Sergeants 3," Panavision, Technicolor production now playing at the Met Theatre through United Artists release.

It stars Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr., Peter Lawford and Joey Bishop who have long been the nucleus of a closely knit group of friends in Hollywood.

Adding to the all-star cast are Henry Silva and Ruta Lee, the only femme headliner in the cast. Miss Lee, a "champagne" blonde, was signed by Sinatra after he saw her in a television performance.

Harlem holds over 'King of Kings'

The three chapters of the Gospel of Matthew, which provide the only written record of Jesus' Sermon on the Mount, have been described as the most important contribution ever made to morality.

Director Nicholas Ray spent more than an entire month on preparation and filming of the Sermon on the Mount sequence of Samuel Bronston's spectacular production of "King of Kings," presented by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, held over at the Harlem.

Comprising 81 individual camera setups and 21 days of actual shooting, it is the largest action scene ever filmed in Spain.

AT THE REGENT — Charlton Heston, as Ben-Hur, tries to wrest a whip away from Messala (Stephen Boyd) when the latter strikes out at him during the spectacular chariot race of Metro-Goldwyn - Mayer's Academy Award - winning "Ben-Hur", now at the Regent Theatre. The William Wyler presentation was filmed in Italy and other foreign locales in color and MGC Camera 65.

Standing ovation acclaims Odetta

ATLANTA (ANP) — One of the nation's most outstanding folk singers made her debut here last week in a long program of music from many sources, ranging from pre - Revolution days to the present.

Odetta, whose artistry thrilled Atlantians, sang before a near - capacity crowd in the Morehouse College gymnasium. She was tendered a prolonged standing ovation at the end of her concert.

SALISBURY, N. C. —Shirley Verrett Carter, mezzo soprano, will appear in recital at Price High School Auditorium, sponsored by the Livingstone College lyceum committee, March 23-24. She made her Town Hall debut in Nov., 1958.
