BUS LOAD — Edmondson High School students pour out of the school and onto the buses awaiting them at the stop. Extra buses are routed to where the loads seem heaviest. The Baltimore Transit Company complains that students misuse the reduced rate of 15 cents by passing their privilege card to others not entitled, and traveling at the reduced rate during the hours when they are not attending school.

burned seats and marked walls, Mr. Headly stated.

"Unfortunately, the schools are most costly, he admits, wryly.

"In the morning and afternoon when the buses are filled with students and adults, it is difficult to identify the person really responsible for the damage when they all gather in the rear of the bus, Mr. Headley said.

Some vandals have even been taken to court to make them pay for the damage.

The results have been encouraging here because "We are getting the juvenile courts to realize the seriousness of tre problem," Mr. Headley declares.

Recently, however, the bus company has taken the problem into the schools, in the form of talks on caring for the bus.

"The results from these talks have been very good, Mr. Headley says, and "the school officials have been very helpful."

THE PROBLEM of transporting students is complicated by the fact that the students and adult workers usually ride the bus between the hours of 8-9 a.m. and 2:30-4 p.m., which make these the heaviest hours of the day for the BTC.

"There was a time when it was not expensive to carry students who went to school at eight in the morning.

"But now most students go to school at nine or later in the morning, which is more expensive to us in equipment used and the wear and tear on the equipment," Mr. Headley said.

Dealing with the huge throng after school is partially solved by routing extra buses on lines nearest the school.

Extra buses now run on lines near Edmondson, Eastern, Mergenthaler, Garrison, Junior and Lemmel Junior High Schools.

Carver Vocational - Technical High School, thanks to its principal, Saul Perdue, also has a special bus to run its Cherry Hill and Westport students to and from school.

Added to the problem of losses suffered through the transportation of pupils, the BTC has additional headaches in the form of an overall drop in the number of passengers it carries, and constantly increasing costs of operation.

Johnny is learning to read: Miss Adams

Elementary school seeks to "educate, to make children competent, capable and successful in dealing with the demands of everyday life," says Miss Mary A. Adams, assistant superintendent for elementary education.

In that matter, she said, the business of elementary school has been what it always has been.

Miss Adams, in a talk before the Winston Elementary School No. 209 PTA Wednesday, suggested that the vast amount of knowledge today tends to increase the importance of the elementary school.

• • • •

CENTRAL IN knowledge-getting, Miss Adams stated, is the ability to read.

And, she declared, "If there is anything an elementary school worth its salt it is doing well in teaching children to read."

Miss Adams took issue with the book "Why Johnny Can't Read," published some years ago, stating:

"Not only can Johnny read, but he is reading better than he ever has, more fluently, joyfully, searchingly and discriminatingly."

The superintendent said mathematics, science and languages are also being stressed more in the elementary schools, to lay the groundwork for the growing number of engineers, scientists and technicians, needed in the emerging space age.

ON THE Eastside

By CHARLOTTE W. DOWNIE

The town is still talking about the real fine elegance displayed at the 18th annual Blue Ribbon Tea.

Milady's chapeaux topped anything seen on our Eastside in a long time. Just to mention a few that I spotted at real eye catchers Ida Pretty's frilly lace hat dotted with tiny pink flowers . . . Antoinette Mosley stunning in a beige tweed dress with cocoa brown accessories, her tiny hat made of leopard skin . . . Celia Crawford charming in two - piece Nile green pongee suit made of silk . . . Mary Hawkins' handsome beige coat trimmed in mink topped with a white chiffon turban trimmed in white flowers. Anne Dorsey was a dream in her gold Robin Hood hat.

Cute Marie Smallwood was lovely in a black and white dress which featured a very tricky bow at the back and with this she wore whipped-up white turban by Milburne . . . Mother and daughter Theresa looked sweet in a yellow princess styled dress with butterfly sleeves . . . style setter Mamie Hoggard was the last word in her grey and lavender dress with a fitted bodice and very wide skirt and hat to match (on her it looked goooood) . . .

Viola Jones looked wonderful in an apple green sheath dress trimmed in flowers and wore an elegant mink stole to set it off . . . Mary Perry was heavenly in a winter white sheath and a beautiful flowered high crowned hat to match . . . Chic Martha Underwood was the talk of the tea in her gold brocade princess style dress with matching shoes and wide (and I do mean wide) brimmed toast color leghorn hat . . . Beatrice Cockrell was dainty in a dove grey sheath trimmed in black and with this she wore a soft velveteen high crowned hat . . . Octavia Gentry was pretty in a navy blue full skirt dress . . . Leah Clarke was stunning in a two - piece black jersey suit trimmed in Ranch Mink. More fashions next week.

Rites held for Clean-Block campaigner

Final rites were held Thursday for Sylvester E. Dean, a 72 - year - old World War I veteran who died Monday at Fort Howard Hospital after a brief illness.

Services were held at his home at 2838 Raynor Ave. The Rev. S. A. Thompson of Ebenezer AME Church officiated.

Mr. Dean, a native of Snow Hill Md., came to Baltimore when he was 15 years old. He was the son of the late Peter and Eleanor Dean, and the widower of Mrs. Beatrice Brooks Dean.

He had not been employed for the last six years.

He was outstanding in his contribution to the annual AFRO Clean - Block Campaign, according to friends.

"Every year he would lead the children in new work projects to compete with surrounding blocks," said Mrs. Annie Wells, a clean block director in the area.

"He was a tireless worker," Mrs. Wells said of the deceased.

Mr. Dean served three years in World War I, and saw military action in Germany during the height of the war.

"There are no survivors."

"Wanted,— cry the big way time headlines! And every teacher in Maryland takes a second look at the poster on the bulletin board. They see the charming features of Baltimore County supervisor, Paulines V. Hobbs, and are pleasant surprised.

Enough votes have nominated Mrs. Hobbs for membership, executive committee of the Maryland State Teachers Association.

She is now endorsed by the women educators of Baltimore County (WBCO) and the Teacher's Association of Baltimore County (TABCO) plus a host of Maryland boosters.

The poster goes on to say "qualifications of this candidate may be found in the March issue of the Maryland Teacher. Reward: to those who vote Assurance of Superior Representation. Signed Sheriff. I Will Vote."

Six Maryland educators are trying for the two vacancies. Vote...Pauline V. Hobbs.

WHAT DOES GOD LOOK LIKE?
The Prophet has warned us of a time that would come when God would judge the wicked or rather destroy the wicked and give the earth over to the rule of a righteous people. What will God look like? If we expect the destruction of the devil, what will the devil look like? How will I distinguish him? If the devil should be destroyed, in order not to follow him to his destruction, how will I recognize him? What world's end will come? And what is that world that is going to end? Does that include everything that makes up the Solar System, the planet earth? If so, what shall we expect? These questions will be answered Sunday at Muhammad Mosque, 514 Wilson Street at 2 P.M., by Minister Isaiah Karriem. Tune in Station WSID each Sunday 12:30 P.M.
